Judge Duxbury Returns from the Rotary Meeting

Retiring President of Local Club Finds Great International Gathering Most Interesting.

Saturday evening Judge and Mrs. A. H. Duxbury with their children, Dorothea Mae and Dickie, returned from their outing in the east and which included a visit at the Rotary International convention at Detroit, one of the largest that the organization has held.

The Duxbury family made the trip east by auto and enjoyed a most delightful outing in the many places that they visited on their journey. The first stop of their trip was at Springfield, Illinois, where they visited at the home of Abraham Lincoln which is now a national shrine and also at the tomb of the great civil war president.

The party motored to Detroit to join the 12,000 Rotarians that had assembled there to take part in the international meeting of the society. The city was filled with Rotarians and the day filled with meetings, banquets and many social features that were arranged for the entertainment of the visiting Rotarians.

Dickie Duxbury was given recognition as the youngest son of a Rotarian present at the convention and with his sister, Dorothea, had their pictures appear in Detroit papers.

The Duxbury family later motored to the east and visited at the Rovers' shop at East Aurora, New York, once operated by the late Elbert Hubbard and which is still carried on as one of the best known printing establishments in the east.

The two older boys remained in Creighton for a longer visit and will return home on the train in a few weeks.

Enroute home, they visited at the home of Fred Holst, a cousin of Mrs. Webb, at West Point, and also called on Rev. R. D. Murphree and family at Valley for an hour last evening. Long Time Resident of Near Eagle, and Prominent Democrat Dies Suddenly Monday Night.

The death of Edward Carr, 70, occurred Monday night at the home near Eagle following a sudden heart attack, he passing away before medical aid could reach him. Mr. Carr had not been in the best of health for the past year and Monday afternoon had returned home and complained of feeling poorly and suffering from his heart but had rested and seemed to be about as usual when the fatal attack claimed his life.

Mr. Carr has been a very prominent figure in the affairs of Cass county and long had been an outstanding figure in the democratic politics of the county, being active in the conventions and work of the party. He was a lifetime friend of the late William Jennings Bryan and of Governor Charles W. Bryan.

The deceased was a native of Kentucky where he was born on November 27, 1863, but spent his younger years in Ohio, coming to Nebraska in 1887 and located in the vicinity of Greenwood and later moving to near Eagle where he had been engaged in farming and had extensive land interests in that section of the county.

He enjoyed hearing news of old friends here and was looking forward to a visit from his sister, Mrs. Nelson Jean and children, who is now here visiting, as well as other of the relatives here who will probably accompany her to Plainview and asked that we convey his regards to all the old acquaintances in Plattsmouth.

Weeping Water Faces Problem of Water Supply

Sources of City Water Supply Drying Up and Leaves Grave Situation for the Citizens.

Weeping Water and its people are being faced with a very serious problem in the last few weeks, that of an adequate supply of water for the community supplied by the city water system.

The supply of the city water has been from Crystal lake and the creek that feeds it and both these water sources have been gradually drying up in the long drouth period and at this time there is only a small reserve supply left in the lake.

In the past two months the city officials have urged the citizens to conserve the supply as far as possible and sprinkling of lawns or all unnecessary use of city water has been discontinued for several weeks now by the residents of the community.

To add to the water shortage a few nights ago some person visited the reservoir which carried the supply for the water mains and opened the outlet of the reservoir and let out the supply of water.

The condition of the water supply is such that the city probably will have to seek other sources for their water if the drouth and dry conditions continue to dry up the lake and creeks.

Names Craft for Members of Lewis and Clark Party

Boats to Make Trip Up Missouri River Revive Memory of Expedition of 1803.

Under the heading, "Government Towboats Blazing a New Water Trail," the Kansas City Star gives a graphic account of two new government towboats that are now paddling up the Missouri river from Gasconade, Mo., to Fort Peck, Mont., a distance of 1,875 miles. They passed Plattsmouth this morning at 6:30.

The boats are christened the John Ordway and the Patrick Gass.

The boats are following the romantic trail of Lewis and Clark expedition, symbolical of these first explorers. The boats are named after two sergeants of the Lewis and Clark Expedition. Sergeant Gass and Sergeant Ordway. The boat trip is also a pioneering venture, for just as the explorers opened the country to white men, these two boats herald the coming of river traffic from St. Louis to Fort Peck, Mont. Incidentally two of the dredges will be known as the Lewis and the Clark.

In connection with the government's recognition of the Lewis and Clark Expedition, extracts are given below from a talk by Miss Olive Gass before the Lewis and Clark chapter of "The Delphians."

"The Lewis and Clark Expedition was the great empire-making adventure of Thomas Jefferson, who bought from Napoleon, for $15,000,000 the great territory of Louisiana which then extended from the Gulf of Mexico to Canada. Nowhere in the annals of exploration is there a record of so magnificent an adventure as this one. The plan called for a trip around the world.

"The object was exploration and a complete record of the condition of the country, the Indians, the animals and plant life of the Louisiana Purchase.

"The Lewis and Clark Expedition consisted of about 30 young men. They left St. Louis in the fall of 1803 and rowed up the Missouri river in barges.

"Among these young men was First Sergeant Patrick Gass, for whom one of these 1934 boats is christened.

"Patrick Gass was my father's great uncle and my father, Perry Patrick Gass, was named for him.

"This Patrick Gass of the Lewis and Clark Expedition was selected by the government to write the Journal of the Expedition. He was born in Pennsylvania in 1771 and died in West Virginia in 1870, at the age of 99 years. Mr. Samuel Waugh, former officer in the First National bank here, was with him when he died.

"In July 1904 this expedition passed the site where Plattsmouth is now located, and on up the river to where Council Bluffs was afterwards built. At this point the expedition held a council, hence the name.

"In the Journal the passing of the site of Plattsmouth is designated as Saturday, July 21, (1804)—'We had a breeze from the southeast, by the aid of which we passed, at about ten miles, a willow island on the south, near highlands, covered with timber at the bank, and formed of limestone with cemented shells. On the opposite bank is a bad sandbar, and the land near it cut through at high water by small channels, forming a number of islands. The wind lulled at 7:00 o'clock, and we reached, in the rain, at a distance of fourteen miles, the great river Platte.

"On the morning of the 22d of July (1804) the party again set sail, and having found, at a distance of ten miles from the mouth of the Platte, a high and shaded situation on the north side of the Missouri (Bellevue) they encamped there to make observations and to send for the neighboring tribes of Indians."

"The expedition then moved on up the Missouri river and when near the present location of Sioux City, they lost one of their men by death, Sergeant Charles Floyd. This was the only death among the men during the expedition. Floyd was buried at this place and a cedar post with his name upon it was placed at the grave. The state of Iowa, assisted by the government have erected a monument to Charles Floyd. This monument is just south of Sioux City and many Plattsmouth people have visited the spot where this monument stands.

The expedition continued its way up the Missouri river and at the site of Mandan, North Dakota, they erected a fort which they named Fort Mandan. They wintered at this fort, and in the spring continued their journey to the Pacific ocean.

The expedition returned to St. Louis and the members were mustered out in 1806.

Norfolk Packers Win from BREX Last Evening

One of the Best Games Staged on the Local Grounds Won by the Packers, Score 4 to 2.

From Wednesday's Daily
One of the real thrillers in the kittenball league was afforded the customers last night when the Norfolk Packers won from the BREX team by the score of 4 to 2.

The game was a great hurling contest between March of the BREX and Rolph of the Packers, Rolph being especially effective in the pinches and held the usually hard hitting shop team to a few scattered bingles and but for an outfield bobble should have had but a single score tallied against him.

The BREX took the lead early in the game and held this until the sixth inning when they were swept from the lead by the timely blows of the Packers that brought over the necessary runs to give the Packers the lead.

The BREX made a desperate rally in the seventh inning to stave off the defeat, but Rolph proved effective and the Packers checked up the win.
