Seed Corn Option Price is Hiked to $1.25

500,000 to 1,000,000 Bushels of Corn May Be Contracted for at the Price.

Contracts for the optional purchase of between 500,000 and 1,000,000 bushels of seed quality corn, to be selected from corn sealed on farms under Commodity Credit Corporation loans, will call for payment for such corn at the rate of $1.25 per bushel, on exercise of options, it was announced today by the Agricultural Adjustment Administration.

It is expected that the contracts will be in the field within the next few weeks. The plan for optioning sealed corn, as a measure to prevent unsealing and and feeding valuable seed stocks, originally placed the option price at $1 per bushel.

Under the seed corn conservation plan, the Agricultural Adjustment Administration will select cribs of seed-quality corn in such states as South Dakota, Minnesota, and Missouri, where the seed corn situation is most serious, and where reports indicate that the supply of 1932 sealed corn suitable for seed may be threatened by the demand for feed.

Producers holding corn that meets the specifications for seed quality and is held under storage conditions that will preserve their qualities, will be offered an option contract which provides that in return for an advance of 20 cents per bushel, such seed will be held for sale to the Agricultural Adjustment Administration at $1.25 per bushel, on or before May 1, 1935. The option may be exercised by the administration to acquire the corn, or in case of local demand for seed, producers may obtain written authority to sell the corn to private individuals, for seed use only.

Producers negotiating optional sale of their sealed corn will have received a total of 75 cents per bushel, including the 55-cent loan from the Commodity Credit Corporation, and the 20 cents advance from the Agricultural Adjustment Administration. The Commodity Credit Corporation will act as the fiscal agent of the administration in the seed corn conservation plan, disbursing the option advances to farmers from an allocation of $500,000 made to it by the Agricultural Adjustment Administration for this purpose.
