Chums of Nelson Being Hunted in a Chicago Area

Verdict of Jurors Is Justifiable Homicide Following Inquest on Slain Killer.

Chicago.—The slaying of George "Baby Face" Nelson, the killer, was written into the books as a justifiable homicide by a coroner's jury which found that he had died in battle with two federal agents who gave their lives to the tradition of "always getting their man." The same inquest disclosed that the terrorist's practical wife, Helen Gillis, had several months ago picked out the undertaker she wanted to lay out the body of her gangster husband when he met the inevitable—death at the hands of the law he defied.

The jurors, decided Nelson died of wounds in the abdomen inflicted by either or both government agents, Samuel P. Cowley and Herman E. Hollis. The formality of the inquest dispensed of, federal agents concentrated on a search of Nelson's widow, believed to have been with the Dillinger henchman when he was slain, and the unnamed gunman who made up the trio.

Two persons whose seizure at the union bus station here led to a report that Nelson's widow and John Hamilton, sole survivor of the major Dillinger henchmen, had been captured were slated for release. They were Chester Gideon, 21, of Loveland, Okl., and Mrs. Opal Caton, 24. Police said there was no evidence against them.

Hundreds at the Morgue.
Hundreds of persons passed thru the morgue to see the body of Nelson as it lay on the same slab which four months ago held the body of John Dillinger, but to the disappointment of watching government operatives Mrs. Gillis was not among them. After the inquest the body was removed to the undertaking establishment.

Mrs. Juliette Fitzsimmons, sister of the slain desperado, told the jury that Helen Gillis several months ago had informed her that if anything "happened to Lester (Nelson's real name was Lester Gillis)" she wanted Undertaker Sadowski, the family mortician, to be called. She said she had not seen her brother since he began a sentence in Joliet penitentiary several years ago.—State Journal.

FUNERAL OF MRS. GREEN

The funeral of Mrs. Rachel Green, 95, was held on Friday afternoon at Oak Hill cemetery where the interment was made beside that of the husband, Calvin W. Green, who died several years ago.

The funeral services were held at Lincoln and the body brought here for the last rites, arrangements for which had been prepared by the Sattler funeral home. The body was accompanied by the two sons, H. W. and Frank E. Green as well as a granddaughter.
