PARTICIPATES IN RAID

State Deputy Sheriff J. E. Lancaster, of this city, was one of the participants in the raid made by officers on the "ghost" town of Kinney, Nebraska, and where a party of eleven persons were rounded up and revelations found that the place had been a hideout for a gang of supposed bank robbers, a gang that is thought to be responsible for many of the recent robberies.

Mr. Lancaster was shown in a picture of the bandit party in the Sunday metropolitan papers, among the other officers that participated in the daring raid.

Bank Collection Remains High in Spite of Drouth

Federal Land Bank President Hogan Announces at Omaha Meeting Held This Morning.

Collections of maturing installments on Federal Land Bank and Land Bank Commission's loans this fall have been fairly good in spite of the drought that severely affected Iowa, South Dakota, Wyoming and Nebraska during the past summer, according to a report given by President D. P. Hogan of the Federal Land Bank of Omaha, at a conference of the presidents of the twelve Federal Land Banks at Omaha today.

The drought has not affected sales of farms held by the Omaha Federal Land Bank, President Hogan reported. He said that not only had the number of sales by the bank increased, but the prices received were larger and the purchasers were making larger down payments.

"The number of livestock held on farms in the eighth Federal Land Bank district has been greatly reduced as a result of the drought which has made it necessary for farmers to sell a large number of cattle and hogs and buy feed for the smaller number they have been able to keep," President Hogan pointed out. "The number of cattle on farms in the district have declined to where they were in 1928, and higher cattle prices should result."

In discussing general agricultural conditions in his district President Hogan said, "Good fall rains in South Dakota have brightened the outlook for the future in that state. The supply of rough feeds on farms in Iowa and Nebraska although not of high quality should be ample to feed stock now held on farms, but farmers will find it necessary to purchase concentrates to supplement the rough feed in many instances. Wyoming farmers are suffering from the necessity of disposing of a large proportion of their cattle, because of the drought, but expect higher cattle prices to improve the outlook in the near future.

"Although there has been a seasonal increase in the number of applications received this fall by the Omaha Federal Land Bank the 3,600 applications received during November is only about one-third the number in November, 1933," President Hogan said.

COLLEGE HILL

Mrs. Harold Dumpke gave a miscellaneous shower at the hospitable home of Mrs. August Stohlman, Sr., on Sunday in honor of Mrs. Carl Vogtmann. The afternoon was spent in playing several kinds of games, and at the close of the afternoon dainty refreshments were served by Mrs. Harold Dumpke and Mrs. August Stohlman, Sr., assisted by Miss Irene Rueter, Esther Stohlman, Matilda Stoehr and Amelia Vogtmann. There were about fifty present and Mrs. Vogtmann received many beautiful and useful gifts with congratulations and best wishes for many happy days to come.
