

Weeping Water

Carl Nickles and wife were over to Union last Friday, spending the day at the home of their son, Cecil Nickles and family, and with other friends and relatives.

Miss Myrtle Wood, rural carrier of mails of Wabash was looking after some shopping in Weeping Water on last Tuesday and as well meeting her many friends here.

Mr. and Mrs. Amos Cappen were visiting with friends at St. Joseph last Monday, looking after some business matters as well. They were guests of Henry Scott while there.

Esther Johnson who has been making her home in Lincoln where she has been with an uncle and aunt for the past several weeks, returned to Weeping Water last Sunday and will remain here for the present.

Seward P. Day who has not been in the best of health for some time has been stricken with rheumatism and his family physician has ordered him to bed to give his body an opportunity to throw off the disease.

A. D. Zaar of near South Bend, one of the committee on the corn-hog proposition, was in Weeping Water last Tuesday attending the school of instruction which is had for those administering the provisions of the act.

Guy Lake, living a few miles north of Weeping Water, has made the purchase of a new four-door V-8 Ford de luxe sedan which he will use for transportation of the family, securing the car from the Cole Motor company.

Miss Clara Johnson who has been conducting the C. Wally Johnson cafe here is at this time visiting at the home of her brother, C. Wally Johnson and wife at Friend where Mr. Johnson conducts a moving picture theatre.

Miss Helen Ruth Cole of Weeping Water was one of the graduates of the state university this year. Nebraska has many who have completed their education in the state school, and while Cass county has a number, this is the only one credited to Weeping Water.

The kiddies of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Allen are going this coming Sunday to Millford where they are to camp for some ten days enjoying the out of doors. Meanwhile Mrs. Allen is departing the same day for Chicago where she will visit for some ten days at the home of an uncle, Frank Corbin and wife.

Mr. and Mrs. Chris Rasmussen and wife were over to Rulo last Sunday visiting with their son, Walter Rasmussen who is stationed there as a member of an Historical Society company doing some investigating and survey work. He is well pleased with the work and the parents were greatly pleased to have the opportunity to visit their son.

Married at M. E. Parsonage.
On last Friday evening John Kettlehut and Miss Ruth Evelyn Hogue appeared at the Methodist parsonage and were united in marriage by Rev.

E. S. Pangborn, pastor of the church. Miss Hogue, the bride, has been a teacher in the schools at Manley for the past three years while the groom has been engaged in farming. They will make their home at Nehawka.

The Methodist church of Weeping Water and as well that of Nehawka, celebrated the Children's day program which was held at the churches on last Sunday, the Nehawka program being given in the morning while the one at Weeping Water was celebrated during the evening.

Getting Camp in Readiness.
There are about a dozen men employed at this time on the CCC camp which is being inaugurated in the Baker woods two miles south of Weeping Water. The camp is being hurried as it is the desire to complete it and have the members there so they can go ahead with the work.

The Cass County Fair.
The dates for holding of the Cass county fair have been set for September 12, 13, 14 and 15. It is time to be thinking about this exhibition and to be getting your exhibits ready. Cass county is an inland empire, capable of producing almost anything that grows and as well of a very fine quality. The stock grown here compares very favorably with that grown anywhere while the grain is the very finest and the fruit compares favorably with that of other places.

Let every person in Cass county get behind this annual exhibition and do your part to make it the greatest in the country. It is free and there is plenty of room for all who care to come and participate in the exhibition.

Home From Their Visit.
Mr. and Mrs. Ross Shields who have for the past three weeks been taking a vacation, spending the time at Spencer, Indiana, where the folks reside and where Mr. Shields made his home when a boy. They met many old time friends of the family and enjoyed an excellent visit. Mr. and Mrs. Shields tell of the crops back there being much more advanced than here. The wheat is away up tall and headed out and the corn had been plowed, some of it the second time.

Summer in the West.
The Misses Irene and Verne Gibson, both teachers and daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Gibson, with a lady friend from Plattsmouth and one from Friend departed last Wednesday for Los Angeles where they expect to spend the summer, they making the trip via bus.

Soon to Pass Birthday.
W. H. Frizell who is the only veteran of the Civil war in Weeping Water, will pass his 90th birthday anniversary soon and during the more than four score and a half of his life has seen many changes in the country. He is hale and hearty and

Utilities Bill Passes Senate Under Pressure

Administration Backed Measure Receives Large Majority, and Amendment Defeated.

On President Roosevelt's insistence, a lashed senate at Washington Tuesday passed the Wheeler utilities bill which virtually destroys the nation's vast holding companies.

The vote was 55 to 32. The measure now goes to the house where utilities interests will fight to modify drastic provisions they declare will cripple the vast industry.

Opponents to the measure all but succeeded in removing the bill's range before the final vote was taken.

Loss by One Vote.
Amendments by Senator Dieterich (D.) of Illinois, to regulate instead of kill holding companies lost by a single vote—44 to 45.

The only hope of opponents now is on the house interstate commerce committee where strong effort will be made to report a bill which would regulate holding companies rather than destroy them.

Powerful appeals of utility interests, letters and telegrams from thousands of stock owners failed to stop the administration steam-roller.

Senator Wheeler cracked the whip of presidential displeasure when, from a note from the chief executive, he quoted:

"To verify my talk with you, I am very clear in my mind that while clarifying or minor amendments to section 11 cannot be objected to, nevertheless any amendment which goes to the heart of major objectives of the section 11 could strike at the bill itself and is wholly contrary to the recommendations of my message."

Hold United Front.
In the face of this challenge, 31 democrats joined 13 republicans for the Dieterich amendments. Thirty-five democrats, eight republicans, a progressive and a farmer laborite held the united front for holding company abolition.

Administration forces were jolted by the near-repudiation of the president's plea. The opposition was quick to predict the close vote would stiffen house opposition to destroying holding companies.

A co-author of the bill, Chairman Rayburn of the house interstate committee, tensely watched the roll call. He has three subcommittees working on a final draft of the house bill.

GIVES FINE PROGRAM

The Fellowship hour of the Methodist church held Sunday evening was under the auspices of the Epworth League and who for the program had secured the services of Emil J. Weyrich.

Mr. Weyrich had his motion picture camera with him and gave a program that was most entertaining and presented some beautiful views. Mr. Weyrich had several reels of trips to the tombs of the Egyptian kings as well as through the Holy Land and several reels that he had taken himself of the Century of Progress exposition as well as many nature studies that were most attractive and showed the skill that has made Mr. Weyrich a real genius in the photographic work.

It was a real treat and all felt very grateful to Mr. Weyrich for his coming to give them the excellent program.

Elective Officers Face Restrictions in New Filings

Occupants of Office Filing for Other Offices Must Part With the Job They Hold.

Among laws passed by the legislature which are not understood by many, including some legislators who voted for their passage is the act relating to vacation of elective offices when an incumbent files for another elective office.

Herrick of Frontier introduced the election bill, H. R. 7, which was generally interpreted to mean that an officer vacates his office the moment he files as a candidate or accepts a nomination filing for another elective office. That is not exactly the effect of the bill. When it was so interpreted it was said that the bill would cause a great deal of grief among politicians. It was a bill alleged by some politicians to prevent "good men from running for office," a bill to thwart the will of voters and thus be an unconstitutional restriction upon freedom and elective franchise of an obstruction to elections.

The introducer of the bill is reported to have had Railway Commissioner Bollen in mind, because he ran last year while holding a six year office for another six year office, that of United States senator, but did not win the nomination. Others contended it was to reach a district judge who holds a non-political four year term office and who filed on the political ballot as a candidate for congress, a two year term.

The new portion of the bill as it passed the legislature and which will become effective Aug. 26, reads:

If the candidate for an elective office be the incumbent for another elective office, the filing of the requisite nomination papers of such incumbent for said other elective office shall be perfected at least fifty days prior to the date of such primary, notwithstanding any more general or special law respecting elections contained in Section 22-1124, Compiled Statutes of Nebraska, 1929, or Section 32-1108, C. S. Supp., 1933; and filing requisite nomination papers, perfected as aforesaid, shall create a vacancy in the elective office which said candidate then holds as of the date of the commencement of the term of the office for which he filed or for which he accepted filing; and candidates may file for the unexpired term of the office which becomes vacant, as aforesaid."

This is pretty much a puzzle to aspirants for office and office holders, but it is generally interpreted as meaning that the candidate running for another office loses his present office if he loses the nomination or the election to a new office, but he does not lose his old office if he is nominated and elected to the new, for he can step from the old into the new office. It is understood to mean that a district judge who ran for congress, if he lost the nomination or election, would be obliged to vacate his judgeship the day the term for congress commenced, which would mean he would lose two years of his four years in the office of judge, for he would have to vacate his office as judge in January following the election when the term of congressman begins.

The same effect would follow if a candidate for railway commissioner ran for United States senator and lost out. He would be obliged to vacate his office as railway commissioner when the term of office of senator begins, and thus lose four years or two years of the railway commissioner's term, and that candidates could file to fill the office of railway commissioner.
