Heavy Rain Washes Soil

A year ago now pastures were all dried up and corn fields were parched, the crying need being for a shower. This year the situation is reversed, with rain following rain in rapid succession and bringing with it many transfers of real estate as the soil is washed away by the flood waters, being transferred from one farm to another or passing on to the river in the swollen mud-waters of the creeks that provide drainage. Another of the proverbial gully washers came last Tuesday night, or rather at an early hour Wednesday morning. At the farm of Ed Brunkow, where a coffee can was sitting in the yard, it was found to contain four inches of water after the rain. In town, the measurement of the rainfall showed a good inch and a half—a generous amount in any event.

Looked Over Farm Lands

In order to know how things are progressing in the country throughout this portion of the county, W. G. Holt and wife made a trip in their new car last Sunday, driving north a few miles, thence west and as far to the south as Coatsland, having ample opportunity to view the fields and note the crop prospects as they went. They found the wheat fields looking tip-top and with prospects of a bountiful early harvest. The corn, however, is not so far advanced as ordinarily, due to the long wet spell and necessity of replanting on many farms. In some places they found it very weedy, due to the fields remaining too wet to permit the farmers to get into the fields and cultivate it. However, if the weather clears, prospects still look good for a fair corn crop this year, Mr. Holt declares.

River Work Fund Voted by Upper House

United States Senate Approves List of Water, Harbor and Dam Projects Thursday.

Funds for completion of improvement of the Missouri river from its mouth to Sioux City, Ia., and for construction of Fort Peck dam, were voted by the United States senate Thursday in authorizing 253 rivers and harbors improvements to cost approximately 370 million dollars.

The senate added 50 projects estimated to cost more than 110 million dollars to a long list.

The measure would legalize scores of projects already undertaken under the public works administration and for which millions of dollars have been allocated. Without congressional authorization these projects would have to be maintained in the future by communities which they serve.

"The enactment of this legislation," said the commerce committee report on the bill, "will give the authority of congress to the undertaking of the important projects for rivers and harbors now necessary in the interests of commercial navigation and will establish a definite program for execution at a rate covered by the funds to be made available for this purpose."

This meeting had been planned as a farewell party also for Mrs. W. L. Hillis, who will soon be moving away. The honored guest was given a handkerchief shower. She then favored the group with a song, "When I'm Gone You'll Soon Forget Me." A fine program was enjoyed by all. The rest of the afternoon was spent sewing carpet rags. At the close of the meeting the hostess served delicious refreshments.

The next meeting will be held on July 5, with Mrs. Louis Laune and her daughters as hostesses at their home. All are asked to meet that day at the church at 1:15, whereupon transportation will be provided.

Haynes to Aid Superiors in Filling Post

Resigned Relief Director Is Silent on Conference Scheduled in Chicago.

Lincoln, June 27. — Rowland Haynes, who resigned Thursday as federal relief administrator for Nebraska, said he will meet with Howard Hunter, regional federal emergency relief director for 11 midwest states, in Chicago Monday.

Asked if the conference concerns a new administrator to fill the vacancy in Nebraska when he leaves July 10, Haynes said:

"I am meeting with Mr. Hunter in Chicago at his request. That's all I can say."

Plans Vacation. Haynes resigned after a conference with Frank D. Throop, chairman of the state emergency relief committee. He was Nebraska administrator more than 21 months.

Following a three weeks' vacation, Haynes will become a professor in the University of Michigan institute of health and social science at Detroit.

Throop expressed regret at the resignation and offered his congratulations.

"Nebraska's record in relief administration is outstanding both for economy and efficiency and Mr. Haynes deserves full credit."

Survived Attacks.

Campaigns to have Haynes replaced and a Nebraskan placed in charge of relief work were launched both in Washington and in the state some time ago, but Haynes survived them and continued his policies, with the state committee giving him its support.

Shortly before announcing his resignation Haynes revealed that Randall Biart, director of the federal emergency relief administration urban rehabilitation program in Omaha had been released from duty as a result of the program's ending last Saturday. Biart formerly held the post of state relief director.

FEAR MEAT BUYERS' STRIKE

Washington.—Rising meat prices had agriculture adjustment officials worried over whether they might lead to a possible consumers' strike. Protests over the recent increases in beef, pork and lamb quotations are deluging the agriculture department. Some have reached capitol hill. Two groups have appeared to protest to the department over the AAA processing taxes and what has been termed the "packers' spread."

Rumors that efforts would be made by some organizations to start a consumers strike have reached AAA officials and Chairman Smith (d. S. C.) of the senate agriculture committee.

Farm administration officials said they were looking toward a continued rise in meat prices until fall and there was little they could do about it. As a barometer of future meat prices, AAA officials said they were looking to the spring pig farrowing crop report due Friday.

Cool Dinner for the Hot Day

By JOSEPHINE GIBSON
Director, Heinz Food Institute

WITH HOT weather beginning to close in upon us, it's high time we think about cool meals for our families. These first warm days should serve as a warning to spur us into action. For the thermometer will soon soar to torrid temperatures when any extra meal planning will seem an effort. A well balanced menu planned in a more temperate moment will seem a godsend some lazy summer afternoon. Prelude the dinner with a tall tumbler of chilled tomato juice, and with this serve tempting tidbits of cheese and olives, pickles and sweet relishes. Then pass a platter of cold cuts of meat and an abundant bowl of potato salad. Add a warm vegetable or two, and taper off with a delicious ice-box dessert prepared in the cool of the early morn. Such a dinner as the following will send your family into hot weather raptures over your planned cool-weather meals:

Chilled Tomato Juice Assorted Canapés*
Stuffed Spanish Olives Celery Curls
Platter of Assorted Cold Meats Potato and Pickle Salad*
Cauliflower with Mushroom Sauce*
Frozen Prune Whip*
Coffee

(* Indicates recipes given below

Savory Cheese Spreads for Canapés
I Cream 1 package cream cheese and mix with 2 teaspoons Prepared Yellow Mustard until soft enough to spread on potato chips or thin wafers.

II Soak 1 teaspoon Evaporated Horseradish in 1 tablespoon cold water for 10 minutes. Cream 1 package cream cheese, then add 2 teaspoons Tomato Ketchup or Chili Sauce and the Horseradish, and mix until soft enough to spread on potato chips or thin wafers.

Horseradish Canapés—Soak 1½ teaspoons Evaporated Horseradish in 3 teaspoons cold water for 10 minutes. Cream 1 package soft cream cheese thoroughly, then add the Horseradish and ¾ teaspoon salt. Toast rounds of bread on one side and spread a generous layer of filling on untoasted side. Sprinkle generously with paprika and top with tiny squares of bacon, if desired. Broil in a 375° F. broiler for about 8 minutes.

Potato and Pickle Salad—Boil potatoes with skins on and allow to cool before peeling. Peel potatoes and cut into small dice. Add 2 tablespoons sweet onion, ½ cup coarsely chopped Greet Gherkins and sufficient Mayonnaise to moisten and bind ingredients. Serve in a nest of lettuce; garnish with paprika. Should be served very cold. Cauliflower with Mushroom Sauce (erves 4)—Remove the lower leaves from 1 large head cauliflower and allow water to flow over cauliflower to remove dust. Cut bottom of stem off smoothly so the head will stand upright in kettle. Place about an inch of water in kettle, cover and steam for 15 minutes, or until tender but yet firm. A few minutes before cooking is completed, sprinkle generously with salt. Drain, cut away remaining leaves and lower stem, and place in center of heated serving dish. Melt 1 tablespoon butter in a saucepan, add 1½ tablespoons unsifted all-purpose flour, and blend well. Add 1—10 oz. can Cream of Mushroom Soup and cook, stirring constantly, until thick. Pour this sauce over the cauliflower and sprinkle with a mixture of toast crumbs and grated cheese—1 thin slice dry toast, finely crumbled, mixed with ¾ cup grated American cheese.

Frozen Prune Whip—Combine 20 marshmallows, 2 tablespoons water plus 2 tablespoons lemon juice, and heat over hot water until the marshmallows are melted. Add 1—5 oz. can Strained Prunes and cool until it stiffens slightly. Whip 3 egg whites until stiff, then fold in 3 tablespoons sugar. Combine the egg whites with the prune mixture and freeze without stirring.
