Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Holt, who spent some two weeks in the Ozark country of Missouri, returned home the fore part of last week, enthusiastic over that part of the "Show Me" state, and willing to admit they had been shown some wonderful sights. They found it plenty hot there, however, the same as elsewhere over the middle west these days.

Rev. Peters reports the sale of three threshing machines last week and had calls for two more. He delivered two of those sold one day and the other one the following day. That certainly indicates an improved condition in farming lines with such a demand for equipment. Let the good work go on, and maybe almost before we know it, we will find prosperity has returned.

Ran Into a Farm Wagon

Mrs. Marie Bogenrief, while driving along the highway had the misfortune to strike a wagon and hay rack driven by Henry Eikerman, resulting in considerable damage to the car and the wagon and rack. Luckily, however, none of the occupants were injured beyond a good shaking up.

Made Good Average Yield

Art Newshul, upon completing the threshing of his 65 acre field of wheat found it had yielded an average of thirty bushels to the acre, although there were some portions that made upwards of 35 bushels per acre, while other portions dropped away down from that figure, making the average yield thirty bushels. That's not a bad figure for a field of that size in any ordinary year, and certainly good for this year, when wheat was damaged by rain and wind during the time of filling out.

Suffered a Heavy Loss

Arthur Stewart was playing in exceptionally hard luck, the late heavy rain having flooded his truck garden to a depth of some ten feet, with six or seven feet of water standing on it for a sufficient time to destroy the fine crops he had under cultivation. He estimates his loss at $250, which sum had been counted upon to contribute to their living expenses during the coming winter. And the worst part of the matter is that it is now too late to plant any of the crop again. When a man has worked as hard as Art did and produced what promised to be a splendid yield, it is discouraging to see the fruits of his labors washed away. However, life itself is a gamble, and those who grow crops of any kind are constantly gambling with weather, markets, and other handicaps that seek to destroy or reduce their return.

Best the Yellow Jackets

The baseball team of Greenwood, one of the up and coming teams of this part of the state, in a game at the local park last Sunday, had as their opponents the Yellow Jackets, a colored team from Lincoln that also had in its lineup some real ball players. The battle was closely contested, the Greenwood team winning by a score of 6 to 4. It was a mighty hot day, one of those sweltering kind that sap the energy of ball teams and both sides gave their level best to win, with the locals having the edge on their opponents. As for that, the Greenwood team always gives a good account of itself on the ball diamond.

Out Amidst Cooling Breezes

George Ducknell, wife and children left Wednesday morning for an outing in the west, their first stop to be at Burlington, Colorado, where the parents of Mr. Bucknell reside, together with a number of other relatives. After a short visit there, they expected to go on to Colorado Springs, Denver and Longmont, stopping in Estes Park on their way home. They planned to spend some ten days in this cool vacationland, sightseeing and enjoying a respite from the extremely hot weather that is gripping this part of the country. It would certainly seem nice to lay down to sleep tonight under a blanket or light spread, such as our good friend George and his family undoubtedly are doing.

Had Enjoyable Trip to Denver

Mrs. Elsie Peters, who made a trip to Denver recently with her brother, Garfield Dunning, after some two weeks there, returned home last week and was accompanied back here by her brother, who made the trip expressly to bring her home, later returning to his home in the Mile-High city of the west. He left here Wednesday morning, expecting to make some fast time on the return journey. Mrs. Peters tells of having a fine time while she was away and was much pleased with the considerate attention she received at the hands of her brother.

Business Looking Up

While in Greenwood the other day we overheard a conversation between a traveling implement salesman and the local representative on whom he was calling that indicated the trend of business is upward. The implement salesman told of selling thirteen binders during the past week. This with the tractors, new cars and other things which have been purchased certainly indicate we are not living in a poverty-stricken land. Business is said to be on the upgrade and the hope is held out that it will continue to increase.

DUCE'S MEN FACE WATER SHORTAGE

Mogadiscio, Italian Somaliland July 26.—Fascist Italy is confronted by a serious problem—water for her African troopers. Reports are circulating here that Italian authorities have been paying fantastic prices for water from Port Sudan.

John F. Rolfe, publisher of the Hartford (Conn.) Times, says:

"The average community newspaper must sell its advertising to the same merchants day after day, year after year. Unless it consistently brought returns your newspaper would disappear from your community. Some reasons why newspaper advertising is profitable to manufacturer, dealer and consumer:

Newspaper advertising reduces the cost of living by providing volume of consumption.

Newspaper advertising puts luxuries into the necessity class by lowering prices as demand increases.

Newspaper advertising levels and stabilizes prices by keeping the markets open.

Newspaper advertising creates local outlets and service for national and international products.

Newspaper advertising builds up local markets that keep expenditures at home.

Newspaper advertising gives your home town folks the same weapon for trade that the metropolis offers.

Newspaper advertising is read and acted upon as the buying barometer for every community.

Newspaper advertising is the most flexible as well as the quickest means of selling. Plans, prices and campaigns can be made or cancelled overnight.

Newspaper advertising is reliable, truthful, censored and so tested by every family in the community.

Newspaper advertising is the cheapest of all mediums.

Newspaper advertising is actually paid for by the non-advertiser whose business and volume is lost to build up his advertising competitor.

Newspaper advertising makes sales quickly. Department stores prove this. The rare big users of newspaper space. Returns from week-end advertising are known and checked immediately. Unless it paid, there would be no repeat. Some other medium would be substituted."

CEREMONY AT PIERCE DAM

Pierce, Neb.—The new Pierce city dam will be dedicated formally Sunday. The dam, within the city limits, is on the site of the first dam constructed by the late Steve Gilman to operate a flour mill in 1881. Land surrounding the lake has been named Gilman park and has been taken over by the city for park purposes. Construction of the dam was one of the largest FERA projects of its type in Nebraska.

Workmen in changing the course of the north fork of the Elkhorn river at this point for the new dam found huge timbers installed fifty-four years ago by Gilman were still in good condition. Work on the dam started about a year ago and the FERA provided most of the labor. The city of Pierce and citizens contributed more than $5,000 for materials.

The large lake provides boating and fishing facilities for this section of the state and a pier has been constructed out to deep water. Prominent state and FERA officials have been invited to attend the dedication ceremony. Fishing, swimming and diving contests will follow the ceremony. Boat races also have been arranged by Mayor D. J. Malone, chairman of the program committee.

SECURITY FOR THE FUTURE

One of the outstanding developments in life insurance during the past decade or two has been the change in the calibre of the agent.

Not so long ago, the life insurance agent was a salesman and nothing more. His business was to sell policies as fast as he could. He didn't bother with analyzing the needs of his clients, so that they could obtain the utmost in investment and protection.

Today the average underwriter has raised his calling to the dignity of a profession. His first step is to inquire into a client's individual status and requirements, and to draw up a comprehensive insurance program accordingly. He knows that a program that fits John Jones to a nicety may be fundamentally wrong for Richard Smith who works at the next desk. He realizes that the kind of insurance a man carries is as important, and perhaps more important than the amount.

As a result, the American citizen is better and more soundly insured today than ever before. He gets more for each dollar he spends. And his own future and that of his dependents is consequently more secure.

DILLINGER GUNMAN CAUGHT

Peoria, Ill.—Police said the gunman who was wounded and later arrested following a robbery and gun battle in the heart of the business district was identified by Washington authorities as a member of the Dillinger gang.

The prisoner was identified as Dick Ray, 52, recently released from the Michigan City, Ind., penitentiary after serving a term for a holdup in Terre Haute, Ind.

A telegram from the federal bureau of investigation at Washington, to local police said that a former member of the late John Dillinger, he was the only one of the four men who participated in the daylight robbery who was captured.

George Backes, payroll guard who was wounded when he attempted to avert the robbery of a payroll being brought to Peoria tavern from the Commercial Merchants' National bank, was near death, physicians said, with 10 to 35 hotgun slugs in his body.

EMPLOY 2,000 ON PROJECT

Gothenburg, Neb.—The 2,000 job goal of the $7,500,000 Platte Valley public works and irrigation district has been achieved prior to the tentative deadline of Aug. 1, according to Harry Williams, president of the project district. Employment on the huge project already has passed the 2,000 mark, Williams said.

"Every able bodied man in the five county district who really wants work now is able to find it on the Platte Valley project," he said. Re-employment director of the district, comprised of Keith, Lincoln, Dawson, Buffalo and Hall counties are finding difficulty in filling new jobs opened up on the development. The work here is expected to last until December before a complete shutdown is forced by winter weather. Progress was emphasized by Williams' prediction that there will be water in the big reservoir by Christmas.

SEES END IN SEPTEMBER

Washington.—Standing in the white house office for one of the few times in thirty-two years on capitol hill, Senator Norris (r., Neb.) forecast that congress would end its labors sometime after Sept. 1.

He had just lunched with President Roosevelt and said he felt the executive put the utility and tax bills at the top of congressional jobs remaining. Should holding company abolition be defeated, the Nebraska said the president could carry the issue to the country.

As for the rest of his luncheon chat with Mr. Roosevelt, the 74 year old veteran smiled: "We just had a general talk about many things, but about nothing in particular. Sometimes it is well for friends to talk things over."

MILLS PAY NO BILLS

Washington.—Even if the government should make midget money, you won't be allowed to pay bills with a carload of coins that make 10 to the cent. The treasury said that—if authorized by congress—the new one mill pieces would be legal tender only to the amount of three cents, while the new half cent piece would be legal to the amount of only ten cents.

War Blazing on National Guard Front

Adjutant General Paul Denounces Tactics of Opponent as Undignified.

War raged Friday within the official ranks of the Nebraska National Guard. It began with a blast of artillery fire from Adjutant General Paul directed at Brigadier General Thomas of Omaha commanding officer of the 69th infantry brigade, with whom he is in competition for the position of commandant of the 35th National Guard division, which includes regiments in Nebraska, Missouri, Kansas and Arkansas, a post recently left vacant by the retirement of General Charles Martin. He said Thomas' tactics were neither dignified nor military.

"I've stayed quiet on this thing long enough," General Paul said. "I've tried to handle the whole situation in a dignified and military manner but I'm going to talk now. Why, I made Thomas everything he is today. Three years ago I stepped aside and let him have his brigadier general's job."

Paul, who has the nomination of the governors of Nebraska, Missouri and Arkansas for the post, said that under an agreement arrived at by governors of the states comprising the division, he was to receive the appointment.

"I have letters from Maj. Gen. George Leach, commander of the national guard, and from Maj. Gen. Frank Boles, new head of the 7th corps area, referring to that agreement and apparently concurring in the belief that the appointment should revert to me," said Paul.

"I have consistently remained clear of any statements in regard to the matter. But since General Thomas has employed tactics which are neither dignified nor military in seeking the post, I feel that in justice to myself, I should describe the true situation."

Paul pointed out that his record shows 35 years of military service both here and in France, "exclusively with combat units."

"General Thomas, I believe," he said, "has 20 years—chiefly with the military police."

The commander of the Nebraska national guard was bitter in his references to Thomas' tactics. He accused the Omahan of securing a recommendation from the governor of Knasau thru an alleged promise that the post of brigadier general in command of the 69th brigade would revert to a Kansan with Thomas' advancement, thus assuring numerous promotions among Kansas officers of the national guard.

Paul, however, said that no such agreement was feasible, since they will certainly revert to a Nebraskan should it be vacated by Thomas' advancement.

Paul said that an endorsement of Thomas' candidacy by the executive committee of Omaha post No. 1, American Legion, was a violation of regulations of the veterans' organization.

"Fred Winter, commander of the Nebraska department of the American Legion, will demand that the Omaha executive committee retract this endorsement as contrary to legion regulations," he said.

Paul said he was given the endorsement of Governor Cochran despite a barrage of pressure in tele-

"I made no request for the recommendation," said Paul. "But Cochran, after investigating the situation, believed that in view of comparative experience and the previous agreement among the various governors, I was entitled to the position."

Final recommendation for the appointment will be made at Omaha by Maj. Gen. Frank Boles, commander of the Seventh corps area. The recommendation then is forwarded to Maj. Gen. Frank Leach at Washington, the appointment made by the secretary of war, and confirmed by the U. S. senate.

FAVORS ARMY-NAVY UNION

Washington.—Representative Stefan endorsed consolidation of the army and navy into one national defense department as a measure of important governmental economy.

In an address Stefan expressed hope congressmen would "break down the over-grown menace of war lords" and assure peace for this country.

"Our army and navy," he said, "are among the biggest buyers and spenders in our nation. These two branches of our government are spending about a billion dollars of your money during the next twelve months and that won't be enough."

"To build up an army and navy to such an extent that both branches become competing forces and grow beyond reasonable proportions at the expense of the suffering taxpayers is wrong."

STAMFORD WOMAN IS KILLED

Norton, Kas.—Mrs. Marada Jansen, about 35, was killed outright and Mrs. Katherine T. Sporing, 39, was injured, probably not seriously, when Mrs. Jansen drove her car into a Burlington motor train at a grade crossing at the west edge of Norton Thursday afternoon. Stamford, Neb., is the home of both women.

The car was traveling at high speed toward the crossing, according to C. K. Stamey, a farmer also on his way to Norton, and Mrs. Jansen presumably did not see the train in time to avoid the collision, altho she swerved her car. Mrs. Sporing was reported by hospital attendants to be doing well.

BOY HIT BY CAR

North Platte.—Charles M. Boyce, son of Mr. and Mrs. T. C. Boyce, was injured while playing in the street near his home. Struck by a car driven by Lester McCarty, he was badly shaken and suffered internal injuries. McCarty was arrested on the complaint of the boy's father and trial has been set for Aug. 3.
