New Formula Given for Making Fall Lawns

Supply of Plant Food Vital for Starting New Lawn or Repairing the Old One.

While it does not seem quite natural, it is a proved fact that fall is the best time to make new lawns. This is due to several reasons. In the fall the moisture content of the soil is more uniform. Few weeds germinate at this season, minimizing the weed problem. Grass growth in cool weather is more favorable for quickly establishing a dense turf. This is because grass plants are inclined to stool out during cool weather, forming low-spreading crowns or tufts.

If you have not had success with lawns made in spring, try putting in a lawn this fall. Besides being the ideal time from the plant's standpoint, fall lawn making works in much better with the home gardener's program. In fall there is plenty of time to do the work right. It is time to start planning the work if you intend to remake your lawn this fall. Is the grade of the present lawn right? Is the drainage satisfactory? These are things which should be determined between now and the time actual lawn making is to start. A soil test, too, is very important, for when you know the condition of your soil, you can intelligently proceed to develop the proper degree of acidity.

Lawns are most successfully grown and easiest to care for when the soil is neutral to slightly acid. Such soil is favorable for grass growth and unfavorable for the growth of weeds. When you know the condition of your soil you will be able to correct it, by the use of lime if it is too acid, or by the use of aluminum sulphate if it is alkaline. The constant ill-advised application of lime is responsible for the flourishing weeds on many lawns. Before using either lime or aluminum sulphate have your lawn tested. Your garden supply dealer can make this test for you or arrange to have it made.

Even if your lawn looks hopelessly burned from the sun it may be possible to revive it through an application of complete plant food and regular soaking with water. You can determine whether or not it is worth trying to save the lawn by pulling out a few individual plants. If the roots seem fresh and alive, I'd recommend the plant food and water treatment as a means of reviving the lawn.

Inflated or ordinary dollars will still buy the most when spent in your home community, for a part of each goes to meet the tax burden and other costs including the upkeep of churches, etc.

Persistency is what counts most in advertising!
