

UNION ITEMS.

Mr. and Mrs. Ivan Balfour are enjoying the use of their new V-8 which they recently purchased.

John Banning and wife of Alvo were visiting in Union last Monday, looking after some business matters for a short time.

W. H. Porter was a visitor in Omaha delivering a number of loads of cattle to the stock yards during the early part of this week.

A. L. Becker was looking after some business matters in Plattsmouth last Monday and as well was meeting with his many friends there.

John T. Becker and wife were over to Plattsmouth last Saturday night looking after some business matters and as well were visiting with their friends for a time.

Wm. Dickson of the northern part of the state, but formerly making his home here was a visitor in Union for over the week end, coming last Saturday and remaining for over the week end, returning to his home in the northern part of the state the first of the week.

Mrs. Moss McCarroll who has been visiting at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Strong, returned home last Saturday night after having enjoyed a very fine visit. Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Madison were over to Lincoln to bring Mrs. McCarroll home the latter being a daughter.

The Union orchestra and the Morris Brothers were material in the producing of entertainment at the King Korn Carnival at Plattsmouth last week. All those who were fortunate enough and many thousands were, to hear the music by these Union people surely enjoyed it. Thank you boys for your good music.

Celebrates Birthday.

Rue H. Frans and family of Syracuse where Mr. Frans is engaged in the lumber business, were visiting for the day on last Sunday at the home of his mother, Mrs. Jennie Frans and as well at the home of his brother, D. Ray Frans and family where Mrs. D. Ray Frans provided a very fine dinner and had as guest of honor, Mrs. Jennie Frans, mother of the two boys, celebrating her 77th birthday anniversary. Mrs. Frans has lived in Union a long time and has been one of the very best of citizens. She was born on September 22nd, 1858 at Iowa Point, Kansas. A very fine time was had with best wishes by all for many more happy years for this excellent woman.

Visited at Alvo.

Last Sunday Mr. and Mrs. Joe Banning and daughter, Miss Nola and Miss Pearl Banning, a sister of Mr. Banning, were over to Alvo visiting for the day at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Banning. There was also there for the day Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Travia of Lincoln friends of both the Banning families, making a merry crowd of friends.

Business Changes Hands.

On last Monday the Trunkenholz Oil company service station which has been conducted by Junior Upton was sold to Ralph Morley of Avoca who immediately took over the station and is operating the same. While the station has been conducted in the very best manner the new manager is also well qualified for the position, having been engaged in the business at Avoca with his father, Mr. Ed Morley.

Are Attending Convention.

Rural carrier out of Murray, Eugene Roddy and Ralph Opp agent for the Missouri Pacific, departed late last week in the auto of Mr. Roddy for St. Louis where they are attending the national convention of the American Legion and were joined on Tuesday of this week by Dr. R. R. Anderson who went on the train last Tuesday night.

At Farmers Parade.

E. E. Leach who is a horseman and loves a pretty horse, was over to Plattsmouth on Thursday of last week and with his riding horse was a portion of the farmers parade at the Korn Carnival in Plattsmouth last Thursday. Ray Becker who enjoys having a fine horse, was also there with his stallion, participating in the parade of some 95 horses which were congregated from over this section of the county. Both the horses of Ed and Ray acquitted themselves nicely.

Delivers Much Corn.

Carl Wessel has been holding his corn for two years and in order to have room for the cereal, shelled and delivered the same to the Stites elevator early this week, he having some 11,000 bushels of the grain to deliver. While the price was not as high as some time in the past, still the crop netted him a neat sum. The condition of the present crop has warranted the disposal of the corn in order to have crib room for the corn which is at this time maturing.

Building Corn Crib.

Notwithstanding the fact that there was a prolonged dry spell which had a tendency to curtail the production of corn there has been a good deal of corn grown. W. A. Ost is having a new crib built and Mrs. G. W. Cheney is having one torn down and remodeled.

Uncle Killed By Auto.

Horace W. Griffin received the sad news of an uncle, Buell Griffin of Fairplay, Mo., 63, being struck by an auto when he was crossing the street of his town about a week ago and from which he died last Monday. Mr. and Mrs. Griffin and son, Paul, departed for Missouri last Tuesday morning to be there for the funeral that afternoon. He leaves a wife and two grown sons.

Delivers 25 Cords of Wood.

A. L. Becker has with his truck and that of his son, Henry H. Becker just completed the delivery of some twenty-five cords of wood to Lincoln parties and while the distance, has been considerable the roads are good, being paved with the exception of some ten miles, and thus has made the delivery of the wood not a difficult matter. The wood which was cord wood, permitted the loading of the same to advantage, and netted Mr. Becker $200.

Visited Injured Friend.

J. R. Cochran, formerly of Auburn and an employe of the Texaco Oil company, who has been transferred to the Pacific coast, was in Omaha last week and on Sunday morning was injured in an auto wreck on West Dodge street road. George A. Sties was over to see him as soon as he was apprised of the injury, as the men were very close friends. Mr. Cochran is very critical.

Charles W. Hoback, wife, daughter, Marjorie, and two sons, Donald and Ivan, were in Plattsmouth last Friday, where they enjoyed the Korn Carnival and the merchants' parade that was one of the features that day.

W. A. Ost was called to Plattsmouth last Monday, having some business matters to look after at the county seat.

Attended Farmers Parade.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry H. Becker and family, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Taylor and Charles W. Hoback, were all over to Plattsmouth last Thursday, where they witnessed the farmers' parade at the King Korn Carnival. They say the parade was a dandy and well worth the trip notwithstanding all the other entertainment provided during the afternoon and evening.

Friends Good to Them.

Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Taylor were pleased when their friends called on them, bearing numerous gifts. S. M. Taylor and Gertrude brought with them a bushel of very fine peaches, Herman Ross a quantity of grapes, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Niday, W. L. Hoback and Mr. and Mrs. Ray Bollman, peaches. They surely appreciate the kindness of their friends.

Extension Club Meets.

The Union Extension club met on September 15, for their first meeting of the new year, with Mrs. Ruth Handley as hostess.

The new president, Mrs. Fuesner, took charge and outlined the year's program. The surprise of the afternoon was the presence of Miss Baldwin, who in a few well chosen words told us what the lessons would be this year, and they sound very interesting.

We are always glad to have Miss Baldwin with us and wish it were possible to see her more often.

The coming county Women's club convention, October 2, was discussed and all members urged to attend, as there will be an interesting and instructive program.

The social leader, Mrs. Handley, took charge after this and gave a short program on Constitution day, after which we finished the afternoon with several games.

At the close of the games, the hostess, Mrs. Handley, assisted by Mrs. Clifton Garrison and Mrs. George Garrison, served delicious refreshments.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Fuesner, club president. At that time the first lesson of the club year will be taken up and all who intend to belong to the club this year are urged to be present.

A Free Play.

The young people of the Prairie Home Methodist church will present the drama, "Bathane" at the Eagle Methodist church Sunday evening, Sept. 29th at 8:00 p. m. This play is one of the most interesting and gripping missionary plays ever written. It is the story of a Burmese boy who had received his education in a mission school. His sister is defamed by an American oil driller. Bathane associates the American oil driller and the American missionary in the same category. What would you do if your sister had been so treated? What did Bathane do? Come see this play packed with emotion and dramatic action. Imagine a dimly lighted room. A slinking Burmese youth with a knife stealing upon the unsuspecting figure of the missionary as he prays. The knife arm raises. A smile of satisfaction is seen on the killer's face as he anticipates the act that will even the score for his sister. Who can save his victim now? Come and see for yourself the tense drama of this play. You will not be disappointed. The admission is free, but a free will offering will be taken.

Final Reports Last Hurdle In 4-H Club Work.

37 of the 44 home economics clubs organized within the county, have filed their final reports and leader's summary, marking the completion of the year's work in 4-H cooking, clothing, keep-well, girls room and canning clubs. Of the 22 agricultural and livestock clubs in the county, only one club has filed their final reports as yet. It is necessary that all final reports be turned in by October 1st, therefore we would urge club leaders and members to co-operate in getting their reports filled out at once so that they may receive credit for the year's work. Final reports must be on file in the office of the Extension Agent for all members wishing to be considered for special awards.

"Variety in Vegetables" First Project Club Lesson.

The first of the series of training meetings to be conducted by the Home Extension Agent for project leaders of women's extension clubs in Cass county, will be held Wednesday, September 25 at the home of Mrs. Chas. Bailey in Elmwood. The subject for the first lesson of the 1935-36 project club year is, "Variety in Vegetables." Vegetables have important contributions to make to the family diet. Those which are attractive to look at and pleasing to taste will be popular items in the daily menu. In order to preserve color, texture, flavor, and nutrients, methods of cooking must be carefully considered. The cooking of vegetables will be made an interesting task after this demonstration which includes a variety of methods for preparing vegetables.

Any new groups interested in taking project club work this year should organize right away so that their leaders may attend one of the training meetings. If not definitely organized at the time the nearest training meeting is held, two representatives may be sent to the meeting in order to see the demonstration and take the work back to their group. The meetings will start promptly at 10:00 o'clock and last until 3:30 p. m. The women are requested to bring their own lunch.

Presidents of the organized project clubs are being asked to the first training meeting when some time will be spent discussing the president's responsibilities and some of her problems.

Following is the schedule for the remainder of the first series of training meetings:

Thursday, Sept. 26.—Mrs. Geo. Sheldon's, Nehawka.

Friday, Sept. 27.—Mrs. Henry A. Tool's, Murdock.

Tuesday, October 1, M. E. church basement, Louisville.

Thursday, October 3.—Mrs. Marvin Carr's, Eagle.

Tuesday, October 8.—Christian church, Murray.

Wednesday, October 9, Weeping Water.

Time to Add Pickles to the Winter Supply Shelf.

With a plentiful supply of peaches, cucumbers, green tomatoes, water-melons, etc., on hand, the thrifty homemaker will spend a little time in making pickles and preserves. We speak of pickles and preserves in the same breath and the fact is that when we say preserves we mean foods put up in sugar to preserve them, while pickles are foods put up in brine or vinegar to preserve them.

The quality of homemade pickles (and all other pickles, for that matter) depends first of all on the quality of the materials used in the making. Fruits and vegetables should be fresh, of high quality and sorted for size and ripeness. When peaches, cucumbers and other fruits and vegetables are pickled whole it is important to have the lot uniform because then the pickling liquid can penetrate and season the meverly.

Use high quality spices, also, but not too much spice for the flavor keeps on coming out of them as the pickles stand.

Of the three types of pickles usually made at home, the easiest to make are the fruit pickles, such as whole peaches, crabapples, or pears, cooked in a spicy sweet-sour sirup. (Water-melon pickle is more complicated). Then there are quick-process pickles made from vegetables salted down overnight and combined with spices and vinegar the next day. Next are brined pickles, or fermented pickles, which go through a curing process lasting from two weeks to two months.

In general, pickles keep better if sealed airtight. Sometimes they will keep satisfactorily in covered jars in a cold place, but there is danger of spoilage.

General information relative to making pickles and preserves, and special recipes for making water-melon pickles, pickled onions, dilled cucumbers or green tomatoes may be obtained upon request at the Farm Bureau office.

Hold Soybean Demonstration.

Four varieties of soybeans, Virginias, Illini, Manchu and Dunfield, were inspected in field trial plots at the Parr Young farm, 4½ miles west of Murray, Monday afternoon. D. L. Gross, extension agronomist, was present to discuss soybeans with farmers visiting the demonstration.

About four outstanding things were observed in these plots. They were:

(1) That soybeans are poor weed fighters and weed killing must be done before they are planted. An early plowing with several discings and planting about the middle of June will do more perhaps to kill weeds than most forms of cultivation after planting.

(2) When soybeans are seeded with a press drill it is necessary to plant about two bushels per acre on ground that has a reasonably high fertility in order to get a heavy enough stand to shade the ground before the weeds get a start.

(3) In order to cut soybeans for hay they should be cut just as the bottom leaf or two turns yellow, or when the lower pods are about half filled. The protein content is highest at this point for hay and the loss of leaves will not be as great as a later cutting when the beans are more mature. Two methods seem to be recommended for cutting soybeans for hay. First, cutting with a mowing machine on a bright sunny day and letting it lay in swathes about one and a half to two days and then raking up into windrows in the morning while there is a light dew on. This will keep the leaves from shattering. Then put into small shocks and let stand a few days until they are thoroughly dry. The other method is to cut with a binder, putting four or five bundles in a shock, and letting it stand several days before putting into the barn.

The chief objective in handling soybeans for hay is to get them up with the least amount of shattering and have them well cured as the heavy stems mold easily.

(4) When used as a grain crop or for seed the beans should be let to stand until practically all the leaves have fallen. They can be cut with a combine or binder and threshed.

Samples were taken from each of the four varieties at the demonstration and will be thoroughly dried out and threshed at the College of Agriculture for yield tests. Estimates on the best varieties were that they would run twenty to twenty-five bushels per acre. The plots were planted June 12, 1935 and the Dunfields seemed the earliest variety as they are now ready to cut for seed. The Illini were next, Manchu third and the Virginias fourth. The Virginias were just about right for a hay crop which means there is perhaps from one to two weeks difference in the Dunfields and Virginia varieties in maturity.

Wheat Contract Soon Available.

Friday, September 27, several counties composing the eastern district of Nebraska will meet at the Farm Bureau office at Weeping Water for a school of instruction on the new wheat contract and how to fill out the applications. Committeemen and clerks will attend the meeting and obtain the information necessary in writing new wheat contracts. The

Party Chiefs of the G. O. P. Brand to Hold Meeting

Gathering at Washington for Fowwow Preliminary to Next Year's Presidential Battle.

High captains of the republican party converged upon Washington to discuss strategy and intensify organization activities for the 1936 presidential campaign. Wednesday's meeting of the national executive committee of twenty-two will be the first formal G. O. P. committee assembly since the party selected Henry P. Fletcher as chairman. Most of the committeemen were taking a New York detour to the capital in order to witness the Louis-Baer fight. Fletcher left at noon to join them, after declining to issue a pre-meeting statement.

Altho finances and details of party organization will be the subjects of formal discussion, the committeemen, representing all sections of the nation, are not expected to pass up the opportunity to exchange views in private conversations on prospective candidates and issues for next year's presidential battle. The committeemen also will lay the groundwork for the meeting of the full committee, probably in December, when the date and place of the national convention will be selected. Kansas City, Chicago and Atlantic City have been mentioned in some quarters as likely hosts.

With prominent republicans manifesting marked interest in the next campaign, several proposals for increased organization activity are being made. Harrison E. Spangler of Iowa already has announced that he will demand a vigorous campaign in the west at the earliest possible time. In that connection, he expressed confidence that the committee would approve opening of a Chicago headquarters to direct and co-ordinate republican activities between the Appalachians and the Pacific coast, sponsored jointly by the national committee and the permanent "grass roots" organization.

Jess Atteberry of Cheyenne, Wyoming, who has been here visiting with his children and members of the L. E. Vroman family, departed Tuesday night for his home. He is engaged with the United Air Lines at Cheyenne.
