Transfer Tax Acquired Properties to New Owners, Getting Same Back on the Tax List.

At its session of September 3, 1935, the Board of County Commissioners of Cass county adopted a resolution authorizing the Cass County Agricultural Society to file an application to the United States government for a loan and grant to aid in financing the construction of an exhibit building to be used in connection with the annual Cass county fair, to be a one-story, metal roof, stone building, 80x120 feet in size.

The Board also approved granting of "Off" and "On" sale beer licenses to Ashley O. Ault, of Cedar Creek.

On the following day, in adjourned session, the Board approved orders of County Judge revoking Mother's Pension of Lorean Rathbun and renewing the pensions of Marcia M. Hise, Violet Van Winkle, Anna Pittman, Hazel Jamison, Olive Johnson, Rose Wood and Ida M. Cotner.

A quit claim deed was signed by members of the Board transferring Lots 9 and 10, Block 111, Plattsmouth to Glenn Niel, consideration, payment of all delinquent taxes against said property.

A petition and waiver of damages, signed by George Stander, Cash L. Wiles and others, for opening of a consent road, 40 feet wide, running west from the center of Section 3-12-13 to the center of Section 4-12-13, was placed on file for future inspection and consideration by the Board.

At session of September 5, a resolution was passed directing County Treasurer to exchange $6,500.00 in Liberty bonds owned by the county and called for payment October 15, 1935, for a like amount of Treasury bonds, drawing 2 1/2 per cent interest, due in 1947, optional 1945.

A quit claim deed was signed by members of the Board, transferring Lot 1, Stiles Addition to Plattsmouth, to Vernetta Hobson, widow. Consideration, payment of all delinquent tax against said property.

Refund of part of first payment of 1934 personal taxes on Protest Receipt No. 29, by Ray Patton, for alleged reason property should be assessed in School District No. 28 instead of School District No. 1, was refused by the Board.

Contrary to the ideas of some gardeners, cold weather does little injury to them, but water standing in the ground where they are planted will rot them. The old way of building up tulip beds higher than the surrounding surface to insure good drainage is still a good practice, specially if there is any doubt about pools of water forming or a generally damp condition. Lily bulbs, which are particularly likely to rot in too wet a location, are often planted each on a cushion of sand to assist drainage. There are two methods practiced in placing bulbs. Where beds are devoted solely to bulbs, the Dutch method is convenient. In this, the earth is thrown out of the bed to the depth required and the bulbs are set on the bottom of the excavation in the order desired. This method is well adapted to formal beds, where a pattern is to be worked out in the flowers. After the bulbs are placed according to the design, the earth is thrown over them. This method more widely practiced in this county is to use a dibber, or pointed tool, which makes a hole in the soft earth of the bed or border. Where the bulbs are to be planted among perennials or near shrubs, the dibber method is advised, as it prevents disturbances of the roots of companion plants. A point to watch in dibber planting is that the bulb rests on soil in the bottom of the hole and is not hung, that is, left with an air hole beneath it caused by the point of the dibber. Drop a little fine soil into the hole to prevent this. It is always important in planting seeds, bulbs, or plants to bring whatever is planted into close and firm contact with the soil. Only in this way can normal development proceed. Air holes next to roots or bulbs always cause trouble. Bulbs are very susceptible to certain poisons which are contained in manures and manure should never be used in planting them except by an expert. While tulips are grown in Holland on a soil of sand, which has been built up by manuring for centuries, it is said that manure is never used until it has been buried for a year deep under ground. A good commercial plant food, worked into the ground a few days before planting bulbs is easiest and best for amateur gardeners. See the goods you buy. Catalog descriptions are flowery enough, but how about the goods when you get them?

This year, a number of cribs are being put in condition to house the corn that may be raised and some new ones going up as well. Henry H. Gerbeling, who always gets his corn in early in the spring, has found it advisable to tear down the old cribs and build new ones. He made a trip to Murdock last Wednesday to secure a load of lumber for use in the new cribs, and was accompanied by his son, Orville. PEACHES ARE PLentiful There is an abundance of peaches this fall, and even the seedlings are big, rosy checked fellows. With this abundance, everyone is able to raise or secure a supply for canning and preserving. One farmer's wife has already canned 150 quarts of this luscious fruit, running out of jars, but went to Murdock for another supply and is again at the job, insuring a quart for each alternate day through the coming year. Those who are putting up their own fruit and vegetables will not fare so bad this winter as far as food is concerned. Some, however, prefer to sit idly by, and will be out of luck along about midwinter. Mrs. Lawton Quite Poorly Mrs. Henrietta Lawton who makes her home here and has as her companion her grandson, Keith Rymer, who attends school here and resides with her, was down town last Wednesday forenoon, but on her return home was taken suddenly ill and it has been necessary to have a physician in attendance most of the time, as her condition was grave and she has been suffering intensely. At last reports, she was showing slight improvement, which will be good news to her many friends. Making Progress with Home Work on the new home of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Wendt is moving forward at a rapid pace. The plastering is now being done, with the exterior all but completed. The work is under the direct supervision of Matthew Thimman, a capable builder. Louis and his brother August have just completed a well which will insure an abundance of water. They secured a post auger and after having bored as deep as they were able to go without some sort of power to operate the same, rigged up their car to do some of the heavier work such as pulling out the loaded auger and later operating the sand pump. At a depth of some 48 feet they struck a sand pocket and a flow of underground water. Desiring to have the well deeper, they rigged up a sand

News at Wabash

By the Journal Field Man The Journal will appreciate the giving of news items of interest to its representative by our readers on his weekly visit to Wabash.

Carl Hensen is at Hershey, a few miles west of North Platte, where he is employed on a paving project on U. S. highway No. 30. William Van Every, who conducts the Handy filling station at Weeping Water, was a visitor in Wabash last Wednesday, coming to deliver some of his products to customers here and west of town. John C. Browne completed the job of taking in some 9,000 bushels of corn in time to listen to the prize fight Tuesday night and is counting on finding time to listen to the world series which will be coming along soon. The Wabash kittenball team, composed largely of lads from the country, was over to Murdock to play a game under the flood lights Tuesday evening, and while they were not the winners, they enjoyed the game a great deal. Elwyn West, the lad who was so severely injured some week ago and who has been in a cast ever since, is getting along fairly well, but it will be a good while before he is restored to health. However, he is well pleased that he is doing as well as he is. Henry Crozier of Weeping Water was in Wabash for a time last Wednesday, calling on his friends here as well as looking after business matters. Mrs. Crozier accompanied him, spending some time at the home of their daughter, where she assisted with the work of canning peaches.

Speeding the Work The force of men engaged with John Woods in graveling the country roads of this vicinity have been making splendid progress, having completed the road south of town and are moving right along on the road that runs west, having spread gravel as far west as the Callahan church.

Home from Vacation Trip Mr. and Mrs. Henry Schlueter, who have been enjoying a vacation trip through the east during the past two weeks, returned home last week. Instead of going west, as so many have this past summer, they chose the east, making Detroit one of the objective points on their trip. They also spent some time in Chicago traveling southward out of there while en route home, with St. Louis as their next big town stop. Coming across the state of Missouri, they visited the Ozark country, which is most picturesque. After their long journey, they were well pleased to get back home. They say they had a splendid time and saw many interesting sights, but the one that looked best to them was their home town of Wabash, as they neared it on the return journey.

WATCH EVENTS AT MOSCOW Washington. — With Russian-American relations already disturbed, state department officials were disclosed to be keeping a sharp watch on an international assembly of young communists at Moscow. The U. S. embassy in the soviet capital has standing instructions to report promptly and thoroly on all such meetings. Officials here, while reluctant to comment in advance of official information, made no secret of their interest. Delegates from many nations, including the United States, were assembled in Moscow for the world congress of international youth. Unofficial dispatches told of assertions that "the young communist movement is finding a firm place for itself among the wide masses of American youth."

The present session in Moscow is essentially similar to the August meeting of the third internationale, at which speakers told of plans for building up the communist party in the United States and broadening its sphere of influence.

Home from Vacation Trip Mr. and Mrs. Henry Schlueter, who have been enjoying a vacation trip through the east during the past two weeks, returned home last week. Instead of going west, as so many have this past summer, they chose the east, making Detroit one of the objective points on their trip. They also spent some time in Chicago traveling southward out of there while en route home, with St. Louis as their next big town stop. Coming across the state of Missouri, they visited the Ozark country, which is most picturesque. After their long journey, they were well pleased to get back home. They say they had a splendid time and saw many interesting sights, but the one that looked best to them was their home town of Wabash, as they neared it on the return journey.
