Battle Royal Looms Over the Bonus Paym't

Bill for Immediate Cash—Bill Will Be Pushed.

Washington.—A new, immediate cash payment bonus bill, backed by the three major veterans' organizations, was slapped down on the desks of congress as that body opened, with advocates predicting they would propel it to the status of law before the month is up.
A battle royal was in prospect, nevertheless, particularly over a method of payment. Two other measures, strongly backed, already have been put forward. Prompt introduction of the measure backed by the veterans' organizations, however, opened the way for possible votes in both senate and house as early as next week. Parliamentary jockeying by the two houses still may delay a vote well beyond that time.
Introduction of the measure was accompanied by criticism of immediate bonus payment from an organized sector of the nation's business. The chamber of commerce of the United States said in a statement that "payment of the bonus means increased debt, increased taxes or printing press money."
The chamber predicted that it would require approximately $1,277,000,000 more than congress has estimated to pay the World War veterans' bonus. It said in a formal statement that "while the credit of the government is still good, there are distinct limits to the amounts which it can safely borrow."
Intimations that the house ways and means committee might take up the veterans' measure early next week were heightened by a promise of "early consideration from Chairman Doughton (D., N. C.)."
There were some hints, too, that the democratic leadership on capitol hill would seek to obtain senate action first on the bonus in an attempt to get a bill that would be less objectionable to the administration than some others.
Senator Byrnes (D., S. C.), co-author of a bill mentioned as a basis for a compromise that might win administration approval, said he would "try to get action in the senate first." Should the bill pass by a two-thirds vote, he said, it will show the house that a bill was at hand that could override a veto in event the president followed the precedent of last year and disapproved a bonus measure.
