

Nehawka

Robert McDonald transacted business in Wahoo last Monday.

Glen Rutledge was looking after business in Plattsmouth Monday.

W. O. Troop purchased a mule from a Mr. Tennant of near Louisville, which Earl Mrasek brought over for him in the truck.

Mrs. Emma Studer, of Rock Valley, Iowa, has been visiting in Nehawka for some time at the home of her brother, Silas Munn.

Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Pollard were at Nebraska City last Sunday forenoon for a short time, also visiting in Omaha during the afternoon and evening.

Edward Egenberger, of Plattsmouth, Cass county representative for the Omaha World-Herald, was looking after business matters in Nehawka Monday.

Mrs. W. O. Troop and son Tommy were guests last Saturday at the home of Mrs. William Gardner, daughter of Mrs. Troop, while Mr. Troop visited at the home of his sister, Mrs. Jane Brooks, for the afternoon and evening.

Verner Lundberg has found something to take up his vacation time since the close of school, as he is busy every day carrying mail for Robert H. Chapman while the latter is taking his vacation and will also act as substitute carrier for Tommy Mason, who will begin his vacation on June 12th.

Mr. and Mrs. John O. Yeiser and family of Omaha visited last Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Sturm, all returning to their home that evening with the exception of Ansy and Susanne, who are to make their home in Nehawka with their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Sturm, during the summer.

Mr. and Mrs. Ivan Deles Dernier entertained at their home last Sunday, when an excellent dinner was served to the guests who were, Mrs. Eugenia Deles Dernier, mother of Ivan, and Mrs. Susie Barger, who has just recently returned home, and who although not feeling well for some time, is much better now.

Messrs. Frank Lemon and Albert Anderson and the latter's son went to Shenandoah last Sunday to take in the flower show with its multitude of flowers. They also stopped at Hamburg, where they had been putting on a peony festival during the past week and enjoyed looking over the large fields of peonies in bloom.

Miss Mary Troop, who has been making her home at Wymore, where she was employed at a state institution, visited with relatives north of Nehawka and at Plattsmouth during the past two weeks. She returned to her work last week and was accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Troop, of Plattsmouth and Mrs. Victor Wehrlein and son, Billie, who visited at Wymore for the day.

Getting Ready for Paving

Stuart Rough and Emory Kellberg have been removing the line fence on the Stuart Rough farm so work can proceed with the paving of the gap in the O street road. We are informed this work is to be started in a short time. This will make a good hard surfaced road from Lincoln to both Plattsmouth and Nebraska City, without penalizing the residents of either locality a single mile in getting to and from the capital city. It will also serve through traffic over the Missouri river bridges at both of these points, over U. S. 34 via Plattsmouth and Iowa No. 3 via Nebraska City. The paving of this road, known generally as the "O Street," will fill a long felt need and prove a great convenience to local and through traffic.

They Found a Way

When the truckers' strike got so intense no trucks were leaving Omaha loaded, Bruce Wells, who sells bread through this territory and also the Smith company of Lincoln got their trucks out of these cities empty, shipping their bread via express to points where they could pick it up and render service to the stores selling their product. Mr. Wells had his shipped to Plattsmouth and Union, thus saving the housewife from having to resort to the old fashioned practice of making bread, something very few of our modern day matrons are doing now.

Passed Natal Day Saturday

Olaf Lundbergh, who was seventy-five years of age last Saturday, June 5, was born in Malmo, Sweden, June 5, 1862. Coming to America when a lad of 24 years of age, he located in Chicago, where he resided for a time before coming on to Lincoln. After staying there for a short time, he went to Minneapolis, and later back to Chicago. Still later he located in Omaha, where he worked for a time and then came to Nehawka in 1891, and has since made his home here, enjoyed the passing of his anniversary. He was given a fine dinner and reception by the immediate members of his family in honor of the event.

Mr. Lundbergh recalls many instances of the earlier days when he first came here and was employed in the quarry. He has been engaged in the garage business here for many years, having turned to autos in the early days of the gas vehicles. He says Nehawka is an excellent place in which to live and he is pleased with the friendly attitude of the people here, which in his case is undoubtedly increased two fold as a result of his own friendly and helpful spirit. People like Mr. Lundbergh generally make friends — and keep them.

Visiting in Iowa.

Stewart Rough and daughter, Mrs. Martin Ross, departed last Tuesday for Iowa City where they are to visit for a week or ten days at the home of Messrs. and Mesdames Howard J. Dane and R. B. Benson and their families. Mesdames Dane and Benson are daughters of Mr. Rough and sisters of Mrs. Ross.

Pea Canning Season Opens at Factory Here

Two Complete Lines Set Up to Handle Fine Crop This Year—Weather Conditions Ideal.

At 5:30 last evening, the pea season opened at the Norfolk Packing Co. Approximately 275 workers are busy this week handling the spinach and peas. Cool weather and frequent rains have been ideal for both crops in this section.

Peas for the canning factory are raised by the farmers in this community on land contracted by the packing company. As soon as the pods are filled, the vine is cut just above the ground by a mowing machine. The vines are then loaded on trucks and carried to Plattsmouth or to another of the company's eight viners. Here the pods and vines are separated from the peas. The farmer is paid by the ton of peas secured after the vining process.

Peas are placed in wooden boxes and conveyed to the washer. Water is sprayed through the peas and the sediment, blossoms, and chaff are separated from the peas. They are then carried by cup conveyors up to the second floor of the building where they enter large revolving cylinders.

Five Grades

Holes in the cylinders grade the peas into five size divisions. They then fall into one of the 16 hoppers which are being used this year. From the hopper the peas are carried by pipes to the blanchers. Here they go through a steam process. The temperature in the blancher is between 170 and 200 degrees F.

A second washing process follows and the peas move onto a moving belt. Four women watch each belt, removing split peas, hard peas, or any pieces of husk that may have passed through the other processes. At the end of the belt the peas are picked up in cup conveyors and carried into the hopper which fills the cans.

Add New Equipment

A heavy crop of peas has justified the building of a second track this year. Each fills the No. 2 cans at the rate of 120 per minute. Gallon cans are filled by hand and weighed individually. Sauce, mixed in the proportion of 50 lbs. of salt to 90 lbs. of sugar, and 400 gal. of water is then added and the can moves to a machine which places and seals the lid.

Girls lift the cans into crates and they are carried to retorts. Each retort holds approximately 45 cases of No. 2 cans. 22 retorts can be put to use at a time. Peas are cooked 35 minutes at 240 degrees, F. Cold water under 15 lbs. pressure is sprayed over the cans to cool them quickly. They are then removed from the retort and packed into boxes of two dozen each.

Storage

Canned goods is stored in the warehouse to await orders. No labels are attached until the order is received. The label pasting machine can care for 300 cases of cans per hour.

Pea canning is more highly mechanized than many of the canning processes. Spinach is one of the products which require more hand labor. The spinach season is also in its height now.

Spinach Canning

The farmer brings his spinach to the factory in bushel baskets after it has been cut just above the ground. It is also bought by the ton. The baskets are emptied into a shaker which removes the chaff and very small leaves. From the shaker the spinach leaves pass on the picking belt. 35 women stand at the belt, removing dried leaves, chaff, tough stems, etc.

At the end of the belt it is placed in wooden boxes and carried to the washer. Six revolving cylinders help to wash the leaves thoroughly in cold water. They are then conveyed thru a hot water cylinder which sprays the leaves with hot water, then they pass into the wilter, and on to a second belt. There women wearing rubber gloves give final inspection.

The spinach is then placed in a wooden container with a wire bottom. The water is pressed out and then the spinach is packed into cans by hand. Each can is weighed individually. They then pass through the steamer which corresponds to the blancher in the pea process, then to the closing machine which seals the lids. They next go to the retorts for cooking. Spinach is cooked 45 minutes at 252 degrees.

Efficient Management

Among the other products which the canning factory cares for are pumpkins, beets, carrots, corn, hominy, spaghetti, vegetable and tomato soups, chili beans, red beans, kidney beans, and lima beans. Although no tomatoes have been raised in this section since the opening of the factory five years ago, one room is devoted to the equipment for the canning of tomatoes. It is hoped that it may be tested this year.

A. E. Stewart is the able manager of the Norfolk Packing company in Plattsmouth. He has been with the company since the opening in 1932. E. H. Bernhardt is superintendent over the plant and acreage. R. E. Werstler is superintendent over the canning of spinach and the dry line. O. N. Broman, who was here in 1934, returned a month ago to act as superintendent over the pea and corn canning.

LOCALS LOSE A CLOSE GAME

The Plattsmouth Merchants of the Southeast Nebraska League dropped a close 5 to 4 game here Sunday to the Conservation Corps Camp team from Weeping Water.

The Plattsmouth team led four to one until the ninth inning, when the local defense cracked and with errors and bad judgment the visitors were able to put over four runs and win the game from the Merchants.

The Merchants garnered two scores in the first and again in the sixth they put over two more scores to place themselves in front.

Harley Streets gave one of the finest exhibitions of pitching seen on the local lot and retired nineteen of the visitors but the bobbles of the game robbed him of a deserved victory.

The box score of the game was as follows:

Bible School Lesson Study!

Sunday, June 13th. By L. Neitzel, Murdock, Neb.

"The Brotherly Love of Judah"

Gen. 44:18-34.

For a perfect understanding of the life of this extraordinary man, Joseph, chapters 37, 39-47 must be carefully read. The story of this lesson includes chapters 42-45:15. A very fascinating and pathetic tale which can only be understood after studying oriental customs and usages of that day. We have seen in a former lesson how this man, without any specific training, was promoted from a slave and prisoner to be the ruler of an empire—and he made good. The secret of this unprecedented act is revealed in the statement: "But the Lord was with Joseph" (Gen. 39:21) and God's promise was also fulfilled when He says: "Them that honor me, I will honor." (1 Sam. 2:30). This fact should be a challenge to our generation, especially our youth, to consecrate their life to God's service. It pays to serve Jesus!

Joseph's predictions for the years of plenty had come true; now the prediction of the "lean years" of famine are on. Three of such are recorded: Gen. 12:10; 20:1 and this one. Our generation should learn from this record not to destroy any "surplus," but gather the fragments for the next meal, or give them that are short of food. There is much suffering at this date, because of unwise policies of our government—costing our nations many billions of dollars. All because we lack God-fearing leaders such as Joseph was. The famine took in much territory. Canaan suffered, Jacob and his family also. Even God's children had occasion to pray: "Give us this day our daily bread." We may have to go to Egypt after it; but God will provide. Some of God's deep laid plans and purposes are revealed in this story. We have already mentioned the exaltation of Joseph—here the purpose is made known.

Joseph, living close to God knew: "God did send me before you to preserve life." Then the sin of Jacob's ten sons, committed twenty years before, had not been repented of nor forgiven. These men were
