

RETURN FROM ILLINOIS

W. W. Wasley and son, Russell, returned Thursday from a short visit in Aurora, Illinois, where they were guests of Mr. and Mrs. George Casanova, relatives of Mr. Wasley. They report that the conditions in Illinois and Iowa through which they passed are excellent and every prospect is for fine crops and everybody in the most optimistic spirits.

HERE FROM ALLIANCE

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Rokey and daughter of Alliance are here to enjoy a visit at the home of Mrs. Rokey's aunts, Mrs. John Wehrlein, Mrs. Fritz Kaffenberger, and Mrs. Harry White. While here Mr. Rokey is attending the Masonic convention in Omaha.

UNHURT AS CAR UPSETS

North Platte.—Minor injuries were sustained by Mrs. Gaylon Guthrie when the car she was driving overturned three times. Police said she lost control of the car while attempting to round a curve at too great a speed.

Death Calls Mrs. Weddell, of Murdock

Well Known Lady Passes Away Thursday Evening After a Prolonged Illness.

Mrs. Marie Weddell, nee Kruse, born March 25, 1882, near Le Sueur, Minnesota, departed this life at her home in Murdock, Nebraska, Thursday evening, June 10, 1937, at the age of 55 years, 2 months and 15 days.

She was educated in the Minnesota public schools in the early years of her life, and occasionally attended the summer sessions of the church German schools. She was confirmed in the Lutheran church and united with the church in Le Sueur early in life, remaining a member until the time of her death.

Mrs. Weddell came to Nebraska in 1903 and made her home in and near Elmwood until 1904, when she came to Murdock and found regular employment. On March 12, 1908, she was married to William T. Weddell of Murdock and has lived in this village ever since.

She joined the Royal Neighbors of America lodge in Murdock on January 16, 1917, and served the chapter faithfully throughout the years as a member and officer. She was elected the Receiver for the year 1926 and was re-elected to the same office in 1931. She remained in office until she found it necessary to resign to go to the Bryan Memorial hospital for further treatments to regain her lost health and vigor.

The deceased experienced many hours of suffering in recent years and was compelled to submit to four long periods of treatments in the last four years. The family testify to the fact that she was a patient sufferer, never complaining, although at times she was compelled to remain in the hospital for many weeks.

With an unusual power of endurance and determination, she sought to overcome the effects of a major operation several years ago. After a period of hospital treatments for several months, she would give evidence of complete recovery, only to be stricken again and again, until relief came in a quiet, peaceful sleep, from which she did not awaken.

The departed leaves her devoted and sacrificing husband, William T. Weddell, her son Meredith and her daughter, Ione Weddell, of Murdock. Likewise, she leaves two sisters, Mrs. J. C. Jents, of St. Paul, Minn., and Mrs. Edward Schlegel, of Le Sueur, Minn., two brothers, Henry and William of Le Sueur; a number of cousins, which include Mrs. August Klemme, of Ashland, Nebraska; Mrs. William Knaup, of Murdock; William, Charles and Irvin Rodenburg and Mrs. Lydia Seba, of Drummond, Oklahoma, together with her beloved lodge comrades of the Murdock chapter and a host of friends in Cass, Saunders and Lancaster counties in Nebraska.

Funeral services were held Sunday afternoon, June 13, 1937, in the Ebenezer Evangelical church in Murdock, by the Rev. Harvey A. Schwab. Mrs. William Zabel and Mrs. H. A. Schwab, accompanied by Mrs. Emma Ward, rendered hymns of comfort for the bereaved.

The pall bearers were Charles Schafer, Myrle Gillespie, Henry Backemeier, Henry Tool, Edward Brunkow and L. B. Gorthey. Interment took place in the Murdock-Wabash cemetery.

DEATHS FROM INFLUENZA

Nebraska suffered the most serious epidemic of influenza and pneumonia last January since the World war period, Dr. Bartholomew, state health director, disclosed.

Deaths attributed to influenza totaled 289 during the month and 269 persons died of pneumonia—the highest fatality record for respiratory infection diseases since the winter of 1918-19. Dr. Bartholomew said there was some evidence that the epidemics of these diseases run in cycles.

Concerning the reduction of accidental deaths from a rate of 82.5 in 1935 to 81 for 1936, Dr. Bartholomew said nearly 10 percent reduction in deaths from auto accidents alone is evidence possibly of more care in driving and maintaining motor vehicles in better condition. Accidents are classed as one of the six principal causes of death. Scarlet fever cases reported in May totaled 267 as compared with 486 for the same month last year. The total number of cases reported this year up to date is 1,694 compared with 3,546 for the same period last year.

Wabash News

Frank L. Reese, who has been in poor health and confined to his home much of the time, is reported considerably better now.

Messrs. John C. Browne, Jack West and John Gerdes were visiting with friends and looking after business in Ashland last Wednesday.

Mrs. Jack West and little son are spending a couple of weeks at the home of her parents at Eldorado Springs, Mo., where the West family formerly resided and where she has many friends and acquaintances.

Paul Murfin and Mrs. L. R. Stanley have been tearing off old paper from the Stanley home, while Pete Lyon has been putting on a new covering to the rooms, thus getting the home in very good condition.

The joint picnic of the Bible schools of the Callahan, Louisville and Murdock churches which was to have been held last Wednesday, was postponed on account of the rain and will be held Thursday of this week.

Henry H. Gerbeling sold one of his fine teams to some parties north of Ashland and immediately made the purchase of a horse at Murdock and another one at Alvo to replace those sold, at a considerably lower price than he received.

LeRoy Stanley and Hobart Hensen were in Lincoln last Tuesday, going to secure a truck load of groceries for the Wabash store. They were able to get them home all right, but had to do some explaining to the pickets, that they were hauling supplies only for their own store.

Here After Many Years Some thirty-three years ago there resided in Wabash, Murdock and Weeping Water, Emerson L. Shedy who moved to Lincoln a third of a century ago, where he has since resided. During the past week he was in Wabash for a visit at the home of his daughter and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Marshall, and enjoyed meeting some of his old-time acquaintances here. During his brief stay, he made some repairs to the Marshall home.

Will Move to West Coast J. W. Sweeney, who has been making his home at South Bend, where he was employed on county road work and the repairing of tractors, is soon to depart for California, where they will make their home in the future. They will drive to the west, making the trip in an auto and trailer attached.

Mr. Sweeney was in Manley last Wednesday, working with Louis Schmidt in the overhauling of the caterpillar tractor which the latter uses in his road patrol work.

Entertained at Papillion Mrs. Hazel Kazmarek, who was elected some time ago as Worthy Matron of the Eastern Star chapter at Elmwood, and during her term of office removed from that town to Ashland, entertained the O. E. S.

Kensington at her home in Papillion one day during the past week. A group of about twenty-five ladies was present, among them Mesdames Ralph Dorr, I. C. McCrorey and Frank Buell, of Wabash. They report a most pleasant time.

Shipped Cattle by Rail

Frank Marshall was delivering cattle from the neighborhood of Wabash to South Bend, where they were loaded into cars and shipped to Omaha. The cattle had been bought up from farmers in this territory by an Omaha stock buyer, and by shipping them to market he was able to get them into Omaha without taking chances on having to run the picket blockade that has been set up around the city to halt all trucks.

Burial Rites Monday

Hattie Keiser was born on March 4, 1894, some four miles southwest of Louisville and lived most of her life in and near Louisville, attended the public school there and was united in marriage with Fred Shellhorn in Omaha in 1929, they making their home in Louisville, Omaha, and Council Bluffs, Iowa, living in Louisville until 1931. Since then, she and her husband have worked on different farms throughout the county. For the past year, they have made their home west of Wabash, where they have maintained a garden patch. Mr. Shellhorn has also been working on public works and done some farming besides.

Last Friday, when he returned home from work, he found the wife dead in their garden, where she had been working. She had been in poor health for some time. A short time before, Dr. Liston of Elmwood had been calling on a patient in Wabash and as he was returning home observed Mrs. Shellhorn working in the garden, so it is positive that she died very suddenly.

The body was taken to Louisville for funeral services at the Methodist church there. Interment also took place in Louisville.

When a girl, the deceased united with the Methodist church at Glenwood, Iowa, and continued as a faithful member of that denomination ever since. Her father, Mr. Keiser now makes his home in Louisville. The mother passed away in 1902.

Mr. and Mrs. Shellhorn were visiting at the home of her father in Louisville last Monday, when she appeared to be in her accustomed health, although as stated, she has not been well for some time.

GARDEN CLUB NOTICE

The Plattsmouth Garden club will meet Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock at the Hotel Plattsmouth. Dr. Ernest Hemminghouse, of Omaha, landscape gardener, a graduate of Harvard university, will speak on lawns. Each member is requested to write a suggestion for the betterment of the flower show, to be discussed at a later meeting. Do not sign names. The public is invited. d&w

CHAPTER XVI

At Dr. Young's request, Mrs. Brown and Mrs. Reynolds made themselves comfortable in his business office while he continued his discourse on habits of childhood. "Habits rule our lives, shape our destinies, and incidentally some habits shape our faces. Many parents refuse to worry about the outcome of certain habits of childhood. 'He will outgrow it later on,' they say. True, in many cases, children do outgrow bad habits. In the meantime, however, serious damage may be done. The prevention of bad habits in childhood is of great importance to parents because a parent's greatest satisfaction is a healthy, normal child.

Bad posture habits can injure children. Such habits are acquired, and often go unnoticed by parents. Sometimes, children form the habit of sleeping with the face buried in the pillow or sleeping with the head upon the arm or hand. Other children sleep with the arm beneath the pillow, with the head resting on the resultant bulge. These habits cause constant pressure on one part of the face and many times alter the shape of the jaws. The Flathead Indians used to bind the soft skulls of their little papooses to a board in order to flatten the backs of their heads. The same effect, in a lesser degree, may be produced by continued sleeping with the face resting on the hand or arm. In the case of wrong sleeping habits, parents must watch the sleeping child and change his resting position often.

"Occasionally, school children acquire some bad posture habit. They may place the hand against the upper front teeth or on the chin or side of the face. At the same time, they rest the elbows on the desk. This is a lazy, but effective method of supporting the head without studying. The constant pressure caused by the weight of the head on the hands may, in time force the face bones out of line. The school child's wrong posture habits can best be cured by co-operation between parent and teacher. Some children acquire the nervous habit of pushing the lower jaw forward or sideways and holding it there for long periods of time. If this habit is not corrected early, it may cause the teeth to shift out of their regular position. This, of course, will result in irregularly shaped jaws. If the child cannot be cured of this habit, appliances should be placed on his teeth to straighten them.

"Lip-biting is another bad habit of childhood. It is either an outgrowth of lip-sucking—an instinctive habit which some infants develop—or it is a nervous habit acquired as the child grows older. Usually the lip-biting child draws the lower lip into the mouth and holds it there by clamping it between the teeth. In time, this constant pressure may force the upper teeth forward and the lower front teeth backward. Sometimes, this bad habit can be corrected through the process of suggestion. If the habit is firmly fixed, appliances must be placed on the teeth to prevent the child from continuing the practice."

Just then Dr. Young's assistant informed him that his next patient was waiting. "Excuse me for a few minutes," said Dr. Young. "As soon as I take care of this patient's aching tooth, I'll tell you about another bad habit of childhood—that of mouth breathing."

SOME QUAKES MAN MADE

St. Louis.—Man made earthquakes were described by among the latest plagues to engineers. A paper dealing with "earth movements in the region of Boulder dam," prepared by Ralph R. Bodle of the United States coast and geodetic survey and read before delegates to the annual meeting of the eastern section of the Seismological Society of America, focused the experts' opinion on "man made shocks which seem to be occurring."

Bodle discussed the possibility the enormous amount of water impounded by Boulder dam—30,500,000 acre feet—would conceivably produce "marked changes in the earth's crust in the vicinity of Mead lake," being formed by the Colorado and Virgin rivers.

"Two quakes already have been felt in the area," Bodle said. "In September, 1936, a series of slight earth shocks occurred southwest of Boulder City, Nev., where they were distinctly felt. Slight shocks again were felt in March of this year."

He said careful study of levels of the region by engineers will be repeated when the full water load is impounded in hope of definitely determining "if the water load is to blame."

MAY TRANSFORM A SANDPIT

North Platte.—A sand pit in Cody park here will be transformed into a swimming pool for children, Leo Scherer, WPA recreation director said, if the city council approves plans he has submitted.

Scherer began the annual summer recreational program for school children this week with a record attendance. Plans for the summer include boys' and girls' softball leagues, hikes, fishing trips and fish fries.
