Wheat Field Catches on Fire

The wheat field of Homer Cook east of Charles Gordon's south place caught on fire Friday afternoon.

At first the fire threatened to be a large one and to do much damage, as the wind was quite high, but because of most of the field being rather green yet, the fire was soon under control.

The fire department was called out and they were soon on the scene of the fire and in a very short time with the aid of other volunteer help the fire was soon out.

During the past week two other fires did some damage west of town. William Mickle had a pasture burned and considerable damage was done to the fences as a result of this fire.

Wm. Carper and family, who have been making their home in Omaha for a number of years, spent the Fourth of July Sunday and the entire week end, for that matter, at the home of his brother, John F. Carper, where they all enjoyed a very fine visit and they also were able to meet many of their old friends.

POEMS IN CONTEST

The following are the completion of the poems submitted in the recent contest held among the school children of the city:

School's End
Now at last our work is done;
Now's the time we have our fun.
Schools are closed; our worry is past;
Now aside our cares we cast!

Summer days are full of joy.
For everybody—girl or boy.
Now we can play or fish or hike,
Oh, its the summer days we like.
—John Soennichsen,
Second place, grade 7.

Terry Lee
I have a little puppy
I named him Terry Lee,
He always is so happy
Frolicking after me.

I also have a ducky
They named him after me.
He likes to play with puppy
Because he is Terry Lee.
—Dolly Jane Richardson,
Second place, grade 6.

After the Rain
Last night as I stood neath a dripping tree
And gazed at the heaven high,
A beautiful vision came before me,
A rainbow was in the sky.
As I gazed there in awe at its blue and its gold,
A reminder of God's promise true,
A promise for me and for you,
I thought—"If I'd follow it into the west
How far in the world would I go
Till I came to the place where we find peaceful rest,
(At the Savior's feet, you know.)
Then my worries would cause me no woe
For I'd have the pot at the end of the bow."
—Dorothea Fulton,
First place, sophomore.

"Tony"
There was an Italian named Tony
He always ate macaroni,
He ate it for breakfast, for dinner,
and tea;
And hungry for it, he always would be!

One day he went to a cafe
In the city,
And there he tried a dish
Of spaghetti.
Now he eats both of these
At all of his meals;
And is it not strange?
How funny he feels?
—Ruth Westover,
Second place, grade 8.

PRIZE FOR GAS OR OIL WELL

LINCOLN, Neb., July 10. (UP)—Nebraska is offering a prize of $15,000 to the firm or individual who discovers the first oil or gas in paying quantities in the state, Assistant State Geologist E. C. Reed said today.

He believes major oil companies will soon conduct more exhaustive tests for oil in the state because geologic formations in Nebraska resemble those of oil-producing neighboring states and because no new important discoveries have been made for the past several years while consumption has increased.

SUPPORTS TAX CAMPAIGN

LINCOLN, July 9. (UP)—Governor Cochran today endorsed a campaign of the Nebraska Press association in encouraging the payment of delinquent taxes under the legislative measure recently adopted. Fred Minder has completed a series of advertisements for the campaign.

'Pea Soup' Pavement Very Inexpensive

Vibrated Concrete Said to Have Increased Tensile Strength—Is Available at Small Cost

A new type of pavement for residence streets that can be laid very economically in areas where rock is available is coming into favor throughout this territory. At Tecumseh, an extensive WPA project has been under way for some time, paving a large portion of the town. In Nebraska City, after city officials had gone to Tecumseh to view the work being done there, application is being made for thirty or more blocks as a WPA project, property owners paying only for the cost of material, while the government foots the bill for superintendence and labor connected with preparing the streets and laying (or pouring) this new "pea soup" style of paving.

Briefly, the pavement is composed of seven inches of rock base (rock used being considerably larger than that used on regular crushed rock roadways—or about the size of a man's clenched fist) into which is poured a soup like mixture of concrete and this "vibrated" by means of a new machine designed especially for that purpose.

By means of the vibrating process the concrete and crushed rock are welded into a homogeneous mass of much greater density and strength than could be accomplished without the vibrating process. In fact, as stated above, engineering experts declare vibrated concrete has a 10 to 15 per cent greater tensile strength than regular concrete laid the old fashioned way.

The vibrating mechanism is not unlike the modern pneumatic tamping devices used quite generally by cement block and tile manufacturers. The greatest difference is that the concrete mixture in this type of pavement construction is much thinner than could be used where there are forms to be removed.

In Plattsmouth there are numerous home owners who would like to enjoy the advantages of pavement, but have felt the cost prohibitive if laid by contractors in the regular manner. They would doubtless welcome the opportunity of acquiring it at a cost little greater than that for rock surfacing.

City officials will investigate the work being done at Tecumseh and soon to be started at Nebraska City, securing accurate information as to costs, etc., which in turn can be supplied to interested property owners and it is quite likely a number of blocks could be made into a WPA project here, providing the cost is no greater than first reports from points where it is being laid indicate.
