Business called Dr. J. W. Brendel to Omaha last Tuesday and again on Wednesday he was called to Lincoln to look after some business matters.

Miss Anna Marie Salling, who has been troubled with her tonsils for some time past, was over to Otoe one day last week, where she was having the offending tonsils removed. She is getting along very nicely.

The Marquardt elevator shipped three cars of wheat to the primary market on Tuesday of last week. This grain is of good quality and had made abundant yields which brought much money into the community.

Miss Mona Barclay of Friend, Neb., was a guest for the week-end at the home of Miss Birdie Mae Johnson. On Sunday Miss Hazel Baier was also a guest at a dinner at the Johnson home. Misses Barclay, Johnson, and Baier were friends at the University of Nebraska.

Lloyd Heneger was in Lincoln on Tuesday and was astonished at the appearance of a certain corn field west of Eagle. The grasshoppers had gone through the field in very nearly a straight north and south line, cutting a strip of considerable width until the stalks were bare, while on either side the vegetation appeared unmolested.

Stork Brings Sons
Baby sons arrived during the past week at two homes in this community. One was born to Mr. and Mrs. George Stoval and the other to Mr. and Mrs. Henry Dodehopper. All are doing nicely and happiness reigns supreme in these two homes. Congratulations to the parents and to these two future Journal readers.

First Band Concert
The first band concert for the people of Avoca and vicinity was given last week, attracting a large crowd. The band is under the leadership of Pete Gradoville, of Plattsmouth and has been engaged in regular practice for the past several months.

Visited in Avoca

MUSEUM EGGS SURVIVE SOAP AND WATER BATH
MILWAUKEE (UP)—Even the dainty egg of a ruby-throated humming bird came unimpaired through a soap and water bath to which 3,328 eggs were subjected at the Milwaukee museum.

Marvin H. Adams, assistant curator of birds and mammals, applied a soft brush to the collection to prepare it for new show cases after it had been withdrawn from exhibition for a time.

All of the eggs excepting one are from North American birds. There are 795 sets from 720 species and sub-species, and 84 nests. Derivation of the collection ranges from the extinct passenger pigeon to the albatross and the California condor.

They were gathered, often at risk of his life, by the late Benjamin Goss, a native of Pewaukee, Wis. Before his death in 1893 he had eggs of all the North American birds known to his contemporary ornithologists.

FLOUR MILLS DESTROYED
ARAPAHOE, Neb., July 16 (UP)—Fire late yesterday practically destroyed the Arapahoe Flour mills, Fanned by a good breeze the mill, located outside city limits, burned rapidly as the Arapahoe fire department used up all its chemical in a vain effort to put the fire out.

M. C. Shafer, Beaver City, owner of the mill, said it was built at a cost of $100,000 in 1919. No estimate of the damage was available until later, he said. The building was partly covered by insurance, Shafer said.

AUSTRALIA SLOWS H. C. L.
CANNBERRA (UP)—Statistics prepared by the League of Nations show that Australia's rise in the cost of living the past year was one of the lowest in the world. The increase here was between 2.5 to 5 per cent, along with that of Latvia, Danzig, Peru, Belgium and Norway.

ALLIS-KOKJER
Miss Helen E. Allis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Allis of Omaha, became the wife of Jordan M. Kokjer, Jr., son of Rev. and Mrs. J. M. Kokjer, Sr., Sunday afternoon. The father of the groom performed the ceremony at the Kokjer home in Avoca at 4 o'clock.

The bride wore an embroidered net dress of floor length over satin. It was made on the princess lines and had long full sleeves. Her finger-ring veil was of silk net and caught at the front in a coronet of lilies of the valley. Her bouquet was of white bride's roses and sweet peas.

Miss Frances Brainard of Omaha attended the bride. Her dress was of yellow organza, floor length. It was also cut on the princess lines and had puffed sleeves. She wore a coronet of yellow daisies and carried yellow gladioli.

The groom and best man, James Keill of David City, wore dark suits. The couple were married under a grape vine altar. White hyacinths formed the background and at either side of the altar stood large baskets of white gladioli. The spot was exactly the same as that in which the parents of the groom were married. Mothers of the bride and groom wore corsages of white sweet peas and gardenias.

Jim Allis, brother of the bride, sang "O Perfect Love" and "Because." The wedding march was played by the mother of the bride.

Following the wedding, a reception was held at the Kokjer home. A large wedding cake formed the centerpiece on the serving table.

It was surrounded by a wreath of fern and sweet peas. Misses Willene and Mary Fager, and Ida Mae Hunter and Mrs. John Ehlers assisted with the serving.

Mr. Kokjer is a graduate of Doane college where he was a member of the Tau Sigma Zeta fraternity. The bride has just completed her second year at Doane. She is a member of the G. F. S. sorority. The couple will make their home at Riverton where Mr. Kokjer is principal and coach.

Among the out of town guests at the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Allis and sons, Jim, Donald and Laurence, of Omaha; Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Osterhaut of Crete; Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Brainard of Omaha; Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Ehlers of Bertrand.

NEW TONE TRAIN TOOTS CENTER OF CONTROVERSY
STONINGTON, Conn. (UP)—While scores of residents were signing a petition against the "loud and prolonged" screeching of the New Haven railroad's 10 new stream-lined locomotives, William Hill was shouting praises for the "new toned whistles."

He threatened to circulate a petition asking that the present tone of the whistles be preserved—and he lives close to the tracks. The majority of the town's folk, however, feel that Hill's "sleep is more sound than his opinion on whistles."

PLATTSMOUTH DENTAL SOCIETY

CHAPTER XXI

For the second time in his three and a half years, little Bobby White sat in the dentist's chair. Fortified by his initial experience of a few days earlier, he was an interested observer of everything that took place.

"As the dentist quickly and deftly removed the decay from Bobby's little teeth, Mrs. White plied him with questions.

"My husband and I have always considered Bobby a very healthy boy," she said. "He is big for his age. At three and a half, he wears a five-year-old's clothes. He has never been sick. I can't understand why his teeth should decay."

"How was your health before Bobby was born?" asked the dentist.

"Oh, I suppose it was average, under the circumstances," replied Mrs. White. "Some days I'd feel all right; other days I wouldn't. I remember I had a terrible time eating. My doctor tried to put me on a diet, but it didn't do much good."

"Did you drink much milk?" asked Dr. Young.

"Goodness, no!" answered Mrs. White. "I never could drink milk."

"How about vegetables?"

"Our family doesn't care much for vegetables," she answered, "and before Bobby was born, I couldn't stand the sight of them. My husband doesn't care for them, and neither does Bobby. Honestly, I dread to see meal time come because I know I'll have a battle forcing Bobby to eat his spinach or carrots or to drink his milk."

"Hum," said Dr. Young, as he removed the last of the decay from Bobby's teeth. "Your eating habits seem to run in the family. It may be that that is the solution to Bobby's dental problems. Maybe you have not supplied him with enough tooth-building foods. The crowns of his baby teeth, you know, were all formed before he was born. The fact that your prenatal diet and Bobby's present diet is lacking in calcium and phosphorus foods may account for his poor teeth."

"O dear!" exclaimed Mrs. White. "Is there any way that I can overcome that deficiency now?"

"Yes, and no," replied the dentist. "You can't build new enamel on his baby teeth, because once enamel is formed, it can never be rebuilt. But you may be able to retard the progress of decay in his baby teeth by putting him on the proper diet and by keeping his mouth scrupulously clean. Also, you must realize that his permanent teeth are forming beneath his baby teeth right now. By controlling his diet, you can help him build strong permanent teeth."

"That is going to be a hard thing to do," said Mrs. White, "as Bobby seems to have most of my eating habits."

"Naturally," replied Dr. Young. "Children form eating habits very early; they are influenced by the eating habits of their parents. However, I'm sure that with a little careful training and application on your part, you can correct most, if not all, of his dietary faults. If possible, do not allow him to eat at the table with the rest of the family. Prepare his food and serve him before the regular family meal time. A child will soon learn to eat the food that it set before him—provided he is not showered with parental attention. By the way, has Bobby had a physical examination recently?"

"No," replied Mrs. White, "he has been so healthy that I haven't taken him to a doctor since he was an infant."

"Better have your physician give him a good examination," advised the dentist, "to see whether he is as healthy as you think. When you see your physician, ask him for a good diet list for Bobby—then follow it religiously."

Turning to Bobby, he said: "There you are, big boy! Take a look at your shiny new fillings—how do you like them?" and he held a small mirror before the youngster.

"Fine!" replied Bobby, as he gazed with childish admiration at the reflection of his newly filled teeth.

"Have mother bring you back next Friday, and we'll finish the job for you."
