HOME ON THE RANGE

These Hopi Indians might well be preparing for a Saturday night bath, but the squaw in the picture knows the single pail of water is only for drinking purposes. Pure drinking water was hard to get on this reservation in New Mexico until the Rehoboth Mission purchased this modern steel water tank from the Columbian Steel Tank Company, of Kansas City, Missouri. Now each family receives a daily supply of water delivered by the Mission.

The Hopi still live in adobe or mud huts little better than those of their ancestors. They are extremely camera-shy, but the driver of the water tank had little difficulty in securing this picture.
