CHAPTER XXVI

"Did I understand you to say," asked Mrs. White, "that two of Bobby's sixth-year molars are decayed? What should cause them to decay so quickly?" They have just come through the gums."

"No," replied Dr. Young. "I didn't say they were decayed. I said that his two lower sixth-year molars were defective. By that I mean that they have weak spots, cracks, in their enamel covering. Small particles of food will lodge in those cracks and decay. Eventually, of course, the acids produced by the decaying food would cause the teeth to decay."

"But I brush Bobby's teeth every day," said Mrs. White. "That should prevent decay, shouldn't it?"

"Partly," replied the dentist. "If you could get the bristles of the brush down into those cracks and by so doing remove all of the food particles, I suppose that you would prevent the teeth from decaying. However, these cracks are so deep and so narrow that you can't get to the bottom of them with a brush. Therefore, in spite of daily brushing, decay can take place in those unbrushed areas."

"Flaws or defects in the enamel covering of sixth-year molars are very common. That is why so many children lose these important teeth so early in life. Parents do not know that the enamel on their children's teeth is sometimes defective, and, thinking that baby teeth do not need attention, neglect them until they are so badly decayed that they must be pulled out."

"I never realized that new teeth were defective," said Mrs. White. "I thought the defects always developed after the teeth came in. Why should they have holes in them before they erupt?"

"I wish I could answer that definitely," replied the dentist. "We think that it is because the child did not receive enough of the right kind of food when the teeth were forming. The sixth-year molars start to form about the time the child is born, although they do not erupt until the child is about six years old. If, for some reason or other, the child does not receive enough of the calcium and phosphorus-containing foods during those six years, the enamel may have weak spots in it. These weak spots usually occur in the deep crevices on the biting surfaces of the teeth. That is one reason why it is so important to feed growing children properly. You can't build good teeth from poor food."

Wabash News

Carl Jensen has accepted a position at the government quarry and has been working there for nearly two weeks.

We were asked not to say anything about the apple cart and so we are not going to mention the matter one way or the other.

Hosea Halan of Lincoln was a visitor in Wabash and a guest at the home of his friend, Carl Hansen, for a couple of days during the past week.

Sherman Hardaway, salesman at the Wabash store, last week purchased a car from Alfred M. Race, who was moving to California and closing out his property.

Frank Reese and wife and their son-in-law, William Pruesing, of Lincoln, were visiting at the home of their daughter at Mound City, Mo., over the week end.

Warren T. Richards was looking after business matters in South Bend last Wednesday afternoon, stopping in Murdock to look after some business on his way over.

Marilyn Schmidt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Schmidt, has been very sick during the past week or more, being under the care of the doctor much of the time.

Miss Geraldine Schmidt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Schmidt, who is studying to be a beautician at an Omaha school, writes home that she likes her work very well and is making good progress.

Ivan McBride will farm the place where Jerry Smith has lived during the present season, and has been doing some fall plowing, getting the land ready for next year's crop. Mr. Smith will farm a place near Alvo the coming season.

John Weyers, of southwest of Elmwood, came over with his tractor and three bottom plow and plowed the land of his brother, Fred. The latter is undecided whether he will put it into wheat this fall or corn in the spring. Anyway, the ground is plowed and ready.

E. F. Marshall has completed his threshing, having upwards of 300 acres of small grain this year, which provided no small task. Anyway, he is glad that it is done. The work was retarded considerably by rain and this coupled with the large amount he had to thresh delayed completion of the job until last week.

Mrs. Matt Sherman, Louis Sherman, wife and little son, Billie, of Enid, Oklahoma, visited last Saturday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Schmidt, being accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Schmidt, of Murdock, at whose home they had been visiting, and all enjoyed a fine dinner at the Louis Schmidt home.

Sick Colts Reported
L. R. Stanley has a sucking colt which seems to have gotten poisoned. In an attempt to treat the animal, it pulled a rope through Mr. Stanley's hand with such speed that the inside of his hand was burned very badly. Then the colt got away and ran over many fields before it could be caught. It is reported that Fred Towle has a colt similarly affected.

Small factories will find welcome and the opportunity to expand (through river transportation) in Plattsmouth.

Elmwood News

Alfred M. Race and family were guests over last Monday evening at the homes of Mr. and Mrs. Emil Bornemeier, and for breakfast Tuesday morning at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Dennis, left that day for Los Angeles, where they will make their home in the future.

Vacationing in the West
Mr. and Mrs. Charles West and Mr. and Mrs. Doan Stark left last week for a trip through the west. They anticipated a very pleasant visit in Yellowstone park and will be gone some two weeks enjoying the cool mountain air, relaxing and taking a real rest far removed from the cares of everyday life and should return greatly invigorated and refreshed.

Trip to West Coast
Morris Penterman, who has been working pretty hard for some time, is taking a three weeks' vacation in the west. He left Wednesday for Lincoln, from where he took a bus to Grand Island, and there transferred to one of the through route Greyhound buses bound for the west coast, via Salt Lake. He planned to visit both San Francisco and Los Angeles.

Celebrated Her Birthday
Mrs. Verona Olsen was passing her birthday anniversary last Sunday and celebrated the same by visiting with her daughters at the home of Morris Mendenhall, where she and they were guests for the evening and a very fine birthday supper as well.

Missouri Pacific Bus Stalls
The Missouri Pacific bus, which stops at Elmwood on its Lincoln to Union round trip each day, stalled just out of town Tuesday evening, the mail being delivered to Postmistress Helen Schneider, who in turn delivered it to a messenger and the same was taken on into Lincoln, as the bus could not proceed.

Telephone Officials Here
J. A. McKinzie, district manager for the Lincoln Telephone and Telegraph company, came over from Lincoln to inspect the workings of the exchange here and found everything in excellent condition. Joseph Abrahams, of Weeping Water, district manager for this portion of the county, was also a caller at the Elmwood exchange Monday of last week.

Visited in Iowa Sunday
Sidney James, William James and Jack James made up a merry party of investigators who went to Iowa last Sunday, starting early and driving to Leon, where they looked the country over and made note of the conditions and the crops. They found some pretty rough country in Ringgold county, but excellent crops for the most part. Everything looked fine with plenty of rain and green grass and corn in abundance. They were well pleased with the country and the fact that in a few hours they could drive from here to what seemed an entirely different country.

Resigned Position in Store
John Woods, who has been employed at the Ted Hall store in Elmwood for some time, recently resigned and will rest for a time, but expects to engage in business for himself soon. The position has been filled by Orville Julian, who has been employed in Lincoln prior to beginning work here Monday of last week.

Mr. Hall himself has been feeling quite poorly and has been unable to continue his work during the past few days on account of hay fever.

Will Harvest Fodder for Feed
LeRoy Volgamouth of Seward, a cousin of Emil Bornemeier, was in Elmwood last Monday, coming to purchase a corn binder for the purpose of securing all possible of the corn crop, which has been badly burned in that part of the country.

Attended Reunion at Hickman
William Groat was a visitor in Hickman, where one of his sons reside, going down to attend a reunion of citizens of that town and meeting many of the old friends he knew when they made their home there. Mr. Groat says the country is much drier down that way than in Cass county, where rains have assured a fairly good corn yield this year.

Visited Folks Here
Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Rogge, who have been making their home in Lincoln since leaving Elmwood, were visitors here Tuesday, meeting many of their old friends. While here they called on and tendered congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. L. F. Langhorst, who were celebrating their fiftieth wedding anniversary.

4-H CLUB INTEREST
LINCOLN, Aug. 21 (UP)—L. I. Frisbie, state 4-H club leader said today farm boy and girl members had shown more early season interest in the 4-H club show to be held at the Nebraska state fair than for several years. He said individual and group exhibitors have made early reservations for space in record numbers, the baby beef entries already top the 1926 total. Members in western Nebraska are demonstrating renewed interest. The fair will be held Sept. 5 to 10.
