DENTISTRY and PUBLIC HEALTH Approved by American Dental Association and the United States Public Health Service PLATTSMOUTH DENTAL SOCIETY

CHAPTER XXXV "I never realized," said Mrs. Knight, that a child's first teeth were so important. If mothers only knew how important they are, I'm sure they would give them better care.

"That it true," replied Dr. Young. "Fortunately, mothers are learning. Magazines, newspapers, and the radio are devoting a great deal of space to child health. Parents are more health conscious than ever before."

"Do you think Carl's face would be disfigured if you extracted that baby molar and did not put in a space maintainer?" asked Mrs. Knight. "I wouldn't say definitely," answered the dentist. "It might and it might not. I do know that the early loss of the baby teeth often plays havoc with the shape of a child's jaws and mouth."

"Let me show you a few pictures of some interesting cases which I have in my collection. These are pictures of children who lost one or more of their baby teeth early in life. Their permanent teeth came in crooked and they had to spend many months under the care of an orthodontist in having their teeth straightened, simply because they weren't given the proper preventative dental care."

"Here is a young girl whose lower baby molars were so badly decayed that they had to be extracted when she was 6 years old. Her sixth year or first permanent molars shifted forward into the space left by her lost baby molars. This caused her upper and lower teeth to come together improperly. As she grew older, her upper front teeth shifted forward and her lower front teeth shifted backward. Naturally, this spoiled her looks, as it gave her a rabbit-like cast of countenance."

"Here is another case," said the dentist, as he picked up a second picture, "which could have been prevented had the child been given preventive dental care. Notice how the bicuspids on one side of the mouth are crowded and crooked. That was caused by the fact that the baby molars were extracted too soon. Sometimes, when the baby molars are lost too soon, the child's first permanent or sixth year molars tip forward and partially close up the space. This, of course, prevents the bicuspids, which are the permanent teeth that replace the baby molars, from coming in properly. In fact, sometimes, the first permanent molar tips so far forward that the bicuspid becomes locked beneath it and can't erupt at all."

"This is an interesting case," continued the dentist, as he held up a picture of a fourteen-year-old girl. "This child has a buck tooth. See how the upper cuspid has been forced out of line and how it has erupted above the other teeth? Because she lost two of her baby molars when she was quite young, her jaws did not develop properly. Because of the underdeveloped jaws, her teeth were so crowded that her upper permanent cuspid had to erupt above and to one side of her other teeth."

"Each one of these cases of abnormal occlusion, as they are called, could have been prevented had these children been given the proper kind of early dental care." (To be Continued)

29 LIVES SNUFFED OUT IN ACCIDENTS FROM OCT. 19-16

Twenty-nine people in Nebraska lost their lives as the result of accidents during the week ending October 16, 1937 according to the report compiled by the State Department of Public Instruction and the Nebraska Press Association. This high has been reached only once before. The week ending July 11, 1936 also recorded twenty-nine deaths. Accidents for the week showed a continued drop totaling only two hundred seventy as compared to three hundred twenty-two for the week ending October 2, 1937 and injuries and deaths came to two hundred fifty-nine as compared to two hundred eighty-two of the previous week. The children's report for this week shows five children killed, one disabled, and fifty-six injured.

JAZZ BAND AT PALACE

LONDON, Nov. 15 (UP)—King George VI has broken a tradition which even his predecessor the present Duke of Windsor was unable to do. Buckingham Palace attendants agreed today. For the first time a "jazz" band played for the royal dancers and 1,000 other guests in the palace's ball room last night at the court ball in honor of King Leopold III of Belgium. Former King Edward could not do that, palace sources said, because most of his brief reign was the official mourning period for the late King George V.

MURDOCK ITEMS

A beautiful monument was erected to the memory of the late Charles M. Buell last Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Lawton were in Lincoln early last week, where they papered an apartment.

The sale of Mrs. William Heier last Tuesday was well attended and most of the property brought a good price.

Carl Buck, who was injured in a wreck on the highway some time ago is now able to be about on crutches, although not yet recovered from his injuries.

Herman R. Schmidt has been cutting down some dead trees at the home of Uncle Fred Deickman, and will have a good supply of fuel when he gets done.

Mrs. Ray Gamlin has been seriously ill at her home in Murdock, the services of a nurse being required. Mrs. Trulteen, a graduate nurse, has been secured to care for the patient.

Bryan McDonald was in Lincoln last Monday, being called there on business and to consult with the governor regarding the game preserve to be maintained in the vicinity of Murdock.

Alvin Bornemeier, who was so seriously injured some months ago, having to have his arm pinned together, was in Lincoln one day last week and had the splints used to hold the arm in position removed, returning home and is again back at his work.

The home of Glen Harger was made happy last Monday by the arrival of a son and heir that tipped the scales at 8 1/2 pounds. The young man and his mother are getting along very nicely and the father is as proud as a peacock. The young man was born at the Bryan Memorial hospital in Lincoln.

Visited with Brother Mr. and Mrs. Henry Heinemann were at Brownville last Monday, where they went to visit at the home of Will Heinemann, who resides a few miles north of that historic old village. While there they attended a sale and purchased some apples. In speaking of the apples raised down there, Henry says there are thousands of fine apples still laying in heaps in the orchards awaiting for some one to buy them.

Shall We Have a Town Team? The Murdock high school has a fine basketball team again this year, that can be counted upon to take more than their share of games played. There are also some tip-top players here from the high school teams of former years who are desirous of organizing a town team. The Independent Order of Foresters have provided the uniforms and other incidental expense of getting a team organized, but the big problem is finding a suitable place to practice at a figure which the boys interested in forming the team feel they can afford to pay. Some of the opinion of the Foresters should also bear this expense. The matter of raising money for the rent of such a place is being considered by a number of citizens and business men of the town, but nothing definite has been done as yet in this respect. A town team, composed of these ex-high school stars should prove a popular drawing card in games with like teams of other towns.

Making Home Modern Mr. and Mrs. Rex Peters, who have been making their home in the house which Mrs. Fred Stock, Sr., purchased last spring, moved to the Mrs. John Bornemeier house. Since the house of Mrs. Stock was vacated, she has been having it remodeled and made modern in every respect, installing water and all the modern conveniences it affords, as well as a furnace to heat the place. When the work is completed, Mrs. Stock will move to town and make her home in the property.

Mr. Harry Gillespie Here Mrs. Harry Gillespie of North Loup, has been a guest at the home of her mother and brother, Bryan McDonald. Mrs. Gayle McDonald has also been visiting here during the past week. Sunday, Gayle and the children came down and visited for the day, Mrs. McDonald returning home with them.

Albert Schroeder Very Sick Albert Schroeder, who has resided alone on a farm southwest of Murdock, after being in poor health for some time, became much worse last Monday morning. He was able to crawl to his telephone and dialed the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Kupke, asking that a doctor be sent out.

Mr. Kupke hastened to the office of the doctor and with him went to the home of Mr. Schroeder, giving the patient medicine and otherwise providing for his comfort. A nurse was secured, but as he grew steadily worse he was taken to Bryan Memorial hospital in Lincoln, where he might receive better care and attention and where a physician would be constantly on hand if needed. He continues in a very serious condition.

Forming Game Reserve A number of the people of Murdock and vicinity have been interested for some time in the matter of providing a reserve for birds and animals and have been instrumental in having set aside by the state authorities eight sections of land, of which the town of Murdock is a part. Under authority of the state, this entire tract has been posted with "No Hunting" signs, thus providing a place of refuge for birds and animals.

To Spend Thanksgiving Here Miss Dorothy Goerthly, a student at Peru Normal, will spend the Thanksgiving vacation at home, being accompanied by her school chum, Miss Anna Laura Sleet. They will arrive Wednesday evening and remain the rest of the week.

Cass County Representative Vernon Rikli has been selected to represent Cass county at the National Cattle show which will be held in Chicago starting November 27th. There will be a representative from each county in the state, sent with all expenses paid. The Rock Island railroad is furnishing free transportation for the boys in its territory.

Building Feed Bunks James Miller, residing north of town, was hauling material from the lumber yard here with which to construct some feed bunks. He turned most of his corn crop into ensilage, and is constructing the feed bunks to handle it with the least possible loss.

Junior Class Play The Junior class of the Murdock high school gave their play, "The Dutch Detective," at the high school building on Friday evening of last week. A large crowd was present, and all felt they had received more than their money's worth in entertainment. The cast of characters included Silas Schlaphof, in the roll of Otto Schmutz, the Dutch detective; Sam Long as Jabo Grabb, the town constable; Erwin Schlaphof as Plunk Jarick, an escaped lunatic; Warren Rikli as Major Hannibal Howler, the irate father-in-law; Maurice McDonald as Augustus Coo, newly-wed; Eunice Kuehn as Ambrosia, waitress; Lavina Cordes as Mrs. Augustus Coo, the Major's daughter; Ruth Ruge as Araminta Soundrops, a designing spinster; Pearl Reuter as Hortensey, the lunatic's companion and Doris Bornemeier as Katrina, Otto's sweetheart.

Entertained O. E. S. The Order of Eastern Star at Elmwood, with many members in Murdock and vicinity, were being entertained at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Henry A. Tool last Wednesday. Assisting hostesses were Mrs. Hannah McDonald and Mrs. Oscar C. Zink. A very pleasant social hour followed the business session, climaxed by the serving of delicious refreshments.
