Selling Fire Extinguishers. James Earhart of near Murray who represents a company making fire extinguishers which are automatic in their action, was here Tuesday. The extinguisher is made of thin glass containing a fluid which puts out the fire. They are hung about the property and when the fire produces enough heat the bulb explodes and automatically extinguishes the fire. The lingering remembrance of the recent fire has opened a good field in this line. Another Fire Occurs. At the cleaning establishment of Ross Shields there occurred a peculiar explosion in one of the washing machines which he uses for dry cleaning. This is the first experience Mr. Shields has had in this line, although he says they occur in many of the plants. The cleaning fluid is very explosive, being composed of naphtha and gasoline. Under the right conditions, the machine, which are electrically driven, produce static electricity, and when this condition is just right an explosion occurs. This blows the door or lid of the washer open, and throws out a quantity of the cleaning fluid by reason of the pressure within. But the lid or door is so arranged that it flops shut instantly, thus smothering the fire within. However, the amount of cleaning fluid thrown out in the open air, ignites and starts a fire. This is what happened last Friday, igniting the cleaning house which is detached from the building in which he has his cleaning establishment. The small house was soon ablaze, but the fire boys were there in a jiffy, and with their hand fighting apparatus had the fire out with but little loss. Some of the windows were broken out which have been replaced. Says West Is Flourishing. Mrs. Martin L. Johnson who with her husband make their home at Arriba, Colorado, has written her father, P. H. Miller, telling of the conditions there where they have been having a rather open winter until just recently when the weather turned cold and some precipitation has come, although it has been dry before. She is desirous that the father come there to make his home, as she thinks opportunities are better there. The Knickerbockers. The members of the Knickerbocker club met last Wednesday with Mrs. E. F. Marshall where they enjoyed a very pleasant afternoon with their regular entertainment. Improvements Promised in Spring. The stockholders of the Cass County agricultural association, the Cass county fair, at a meeting held some time ago, voted to construct a building on the corner where the Wm. Dunn livery barn stood, which was acquired some time ago by the association, which will be used both for fair purposes and as well for an auditorium and general meeting place for the county and for the city of Weeping Water. A committee has the building matter in hand and are just now awaiting until the colder weather is past, when they expect to proceed with the building enterprise. This with the building which will probably be started to replace the business houses recently destroyed by the fire, and the rebuilding of the water system, should insure for Weeping Water a good bit of building activity. Will Hold No More Meets. Troy L. Davis and Carl Teft were over to Weverly and down to Humboldt recently where they conducted farm meetings, finding the farmers very enthusiastic and interested in the farmer's question. Mr. Davis said that they had gone as far as they deem proper as their work has extended over much of the southeastern part of the state and that as they had covered that, they would not likely hold any more meetings at this time. Dies at Omaha Hospital. Helmer Tweeton who was taken to an Omaha hospital for an operation and treatment, after undergoing the operation lingered between life and death for some time and later died, the body being brought to Weeping Water, the funeral being held last Tuesday at the Memorial church, interment being at Oakwood cemetery. Attended Truck Meet in Lincoln. Earl Oldham was in Lincoln this week where he was meeting with the truckers and where the matter of laws regulating the trucking business was discussed. He has taken out a license on his small truck which is only nominal and has stored his large truck until such a time as he shall get a better understanding of the laws governing the operating of trucks and the costs thereof. He will be able to do all his own hauling on the small truck and until there is a cause for getting of a license on his large one. Mrs. Charles E. Hatcliff.
