

NEW CHILDREN'S BOOKS

Another installment of books given by the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace to interest the children in their friends of other lands has been received at the library. These books are received four times a year and are very much appreciated by the library. "Petite Suzanne," by M. de Angeli is a story of a little Canadian girl. "Sean and Sheila" by Marian King is a story of Ireland; "The Story of Li-Lo," a little Chinese boy who didn't like the customs of his country but changed his mind after a trip to the United States, by Ann Mersereau; "Greek Journey," a story of a trip made by an American minister and his family to Greece and around that country by car and train, by L. and M. MacVeagh. A book covering more than one country is "The Story Book of Corn," by M. and M. Petersham.

Gertrude Sheldon - Wolph Pioneer Woman

Long Time Resident of Nehawka Community—Member of Distinguished Family.

The death of Gertrude Wolph, widow of the late B. Wolph, removes another from the rapidly decreasing ranks of Cass county's pioneer sons and daughters, and her passing brings sadness to the entire community.

She had been afflicted with asthma and had been in failing health for several months. Saturday, her illness became acute and she was taken to the Lincoln General hospital where she passed away at 9:00 p. m. Saturday, February 5, 1938.

In her passing not only does her family lose a most devoted and loving mother, but the whole community suffers the loss of a sympathetic friend.

Gertrude Sally Sheldon was born in Nehawka, Nebraska, July 7, 1861. She was the oldest child of pioneer parents—Julia Ann Pollard and Lawson Sheldon. One sister, Florence, died April 9, 1888, a brother Frank P., died August 30, 1936. Two brothers survive, Vilas P. of Nehawka and George L. of Greenville, Mississippi.

As a child she knew the hardships and the privations of pioneer life but she also knew its pleasures. The diversions of radio, telephone, easy journeys or even of newspapers were not known then and the days were long for the enjoyment of home and the cultivation of friends. The friends of those years have been life long in their devotion to each other.

She attended the district school at Nehawka. Then there was no course of study and after the three R's were taught, the study was decided by the teacher. But there must have been taught fine things in those little school houses, else how could men and women with such courage and wide sympathy have been developed!

During her early teens she took organ lessons at Nebraska City where she had to stay weeks at a time because a lumber wagon was the only means of travel. When she was 19 years old she went to Springfield, Mass., to remain a year with her mother's sister, that she might study music. On her return to Nehawka she gave lessons on the organ.

From 1882-1884 she was a student at the University of Nebraska where her mind was opened to Chaucer, Tennyson and Wordsworth. These years she always remembered with pleasure. Cousins from Nehawka and other friends kept house together bringing many of their provisions from home. There were no week ends at home, so the time was long for study and for the cultivation of friends who have remained constant and devoted during all the years since.

April 2nd, 1885, Gertrude was married to Bucephalus Wolph who died January 21, 1936. She was always a worthy helpmate in all his endeavors and activities of life. Eight children were born to Mr. and Mrs. B. Wolph, three, Julia, Mabel and Henry died in childhood. Evelyn at home, Emily (Mrs. Ben Olive) at Weeping Water, Arthur at Los Angeles, Calif., Paul at Avoca and Conant on the home farm. Eleven grandchildren survive.

She was a devoted mother, proud of her children and grandchildren, and delighted in having them about her constantly. She loved her home and domestic duties. She was a close observer, an admirer of the beautiful and a lover of nature with its trees and flowers.

During all her life she has lived in the vicinity of Nehawka, and this community and its development have been of vital interest to her. In her lifetime she witnessed the unfolding of the age of applied science—the miracle of a thousand years. To have been a connecting link between these two worlds was her blessed privilege and one which she appreciated intelligently.

She has given generously for the upbuilding and advancement of our churches and schools and other public enterprises.

She was a member of the Historical Society, of the Maple Grove extension club, the Nehawka Woman's club, the Busy Worker's society and the Daughters of the American Revolution. She was behind very club for boys and girls—supported the Red Cross—all the things which made for a wider social sphere.

Her home was always open, her hospitality far-reaching, and her greeting warm hearted and sincere. She was always cheerful and courageous and patient in her suffering, never burdening other with her troubles. She indulged in no airs and made no pretenses. She had faith in God and in her friends, and lived a long life of love and service, maintaining her bright and keen intellect to the end, and in her last moments conversed with members of her family and friends.

Here was a life well spent—a life not lived in vain. A must say farewell to a great life—but a life which lives on in the hearts of friends everywhere, whose good influence can never be obliterated.

"We are not dead until we are forgotten."

MANY ATTEND MEETING

The Cass County Ministerial association staged a very largely attended meeting at Nehawka on Monday evening that was attended by practically all of the Protestant ministers of the county. Sunday school officers and many others interested in the association work.

Musical selections were offered by groups from the various churches over the county to add to the impressiveness of the service.

The chief address of the evening was given by Chaplain Thomas E. Maxwell, of the Nebraska state penitentiary, who has spent several years in the service of spiritual adviser to the residents of the penitentiary. He told very impressively of the work with the convicts, of their reactions to the religious teachings.

Rev. Schwab of Murdock is the president of the association and Rev. A. B. Small, of Nehawka, the secretary and at whose church the meeting was held.

A large number from this city were in attendance at the meeting.

CONSOLIDATE OFFICES

The various federal and state activities that are co-operating in relief and employment work in Cass county are having their various offices consolidated in one location in the court house.

The sewing project that had its rooms in the basement of the court house since its start, is being moved to the Rawls building to the east of the court house, taking over the room that formerly was used by the commodity center, this being located now in the Wetenkamp building.

The old age assistance offices which have been located on the third floor of the court house will be moved to the basement where they will office with the county relief office and the FERA office, placing all of the activities in touch with each other at all times.

The WPA offices are to be moved to the court house and located in the room formerly used by the FERA in the basement.

CHANGE MEETING TIME

The board of education has changed the hours of their meeting for the regular monthly sessions on the first Monday of the month. The date of the meeting is set by law but in the past years the board has usually met at night, but at the meeting yesterday the hour was set for 4:15 and which enabled the members to transact their business and get home and enjoy the evening free.
