Bible School Lesson Study!

Sunday, March 13th By L. Neitzel, Murdock, Neb.

"Feeding the Hungry"

Mark 6:30-44

The story of the feeding of 5,000 men is the most colorful of any miracle Jesus performed, which will be seen as the incidents are told. But it has a prelude started in our last lesson, namely the sending out of the twelve by twos, on a missionary tour of teaching and healing. They came to report to Jesus at Capernaum, of their work; for correction, reproof, commendation. It was their first effort, they had worked hard, they were weary and tired. It was a great gathering, like an annual conference, where stewardship is reported. (All four Gospel accounts must be consulted: Matt. 14:13-21; Mark 6:30-44; Luke 9:10-17; John 6:1-14). This preaching mission was part of their training. Jesus had given them an example. They reported a very successful tour. They passed their examination and were to be rewarded by a quiet time with Jesus alone. They leave the western shore of the sea of Galilee, crossing over to the eastern shore near Bethsaida. They leave with high hopes of a good rest; they anticipate a fine time. Did they realize their hopes? God prepared a great work for them. The Passover of the Jews was high; great caravans of people were on the way to Jerusalem.

That accounts for the great multitudes. When they saw the direction the ship took, they outran the ship and awaited him when he landed. Jesus and the disciples went high up on the slope, and when Jesus saw the masses, His great heart was stirred with compassion, they were leaderless and like a flock without a shepherd. How gladly would He be their shepherd to lead and feed and protect them. They had no spiritual guide—so are the masses today, wandering on the highways—going—going—but where? All are on the way, but is it the "good way . . . the old paths . . . the highway of Holiness?"

Stop! Look! Listen! "And He began to teach them many things."

The Father had drawn a multitude together—the quiet hour they had expected is forgotten—here is an exceptional opportunity especially prearranged. This was an occasion of a great revelation for the disciples as well as for the people to get acquainted with the Son of God. It was a long service, it is drawing near evening—3 p. m.—time for the dismissal of the people, to find victuals and lodging—the disciples thought best to remind the Lord of these facts.

Jesus told them that they should give them to eat; then asked Philip where bread might be secured.

Andrew the "finder," makes inquiry and reported "there is a lad here" whose mother had put up a lunch for him, five barley loaves and two small fish; that is all to be found. Philip found that there were only 200 penny (denarii) or about $50.00 in the treasury—not enough for so many.

The "lad" gives up his lunch—how proud he must have been later in life, as he told the story to his children. Jesus proved himself to be a leader of men; out of chaos He brings order. A great "sit down" is ordered. Now look at the wonderful color scheme—the green slope—the sea in front—the mountain in the rear—the companies by fifties and hundreds—the profusion of oriental colorful dress—like flowerbeds.

Five thousand men cover some space—women and children—about as many as men, on one side. It is Jesus' party. He is the host. An ample supply for all is on hand. "In the Father's house is bread enough and to spare." (Luke 15:17). The meal begins; the blessing of the food, thanksgiving to the giver—an example for every man, not Christians only. How often forgotten!

The usual prayer was: "Blessed art thou, Jehovah our God, King of the world, who causes to come forth bread from the earth." The waiters come with their traveling baskets. Jesus breaks the bread, which multiplies as he breaks it; all receive all they want, bread and fish. So feeds our Father daily 1,500,000,000 of mouths three times a day—what a family—what a provider! This is, with the exception of the raising of the dead, the most remarkable of all the miracles recorded in the Gospels. Now the Lord gives us a lesson in economy: "Gather the fragments—for future use: You will be hungry again." All baskets are filled of what was created by Jesus and the hunger of some ten thousand persons—men, women and children—has been satisfied.

The Israelites were worrying how God could provide food for them in the wilderness; the answer was: "I will rain bread from heaven for you." (Ex. 16:14). The Psalmist gives us a fine record of God's care for his people. (See Ps. 106:40, 41). What a wonderful Saviour! First he feeds these people's souls, then their bodies. Jesus himself is the satisfying portion for every soul while in life; but perfect satisfaction is yet in the future. "I shall be satisfied when I awake in thy likeness." (Ps. 17:15).
