From Wednesday's Daily—
The Chamber of Commerce last evening staged another of the very popular Happy Hundred dinners at the American Legion building and which had as its special features the address of Cullen Wright of Scottsbluff, as well as the honor paid to the Plattsmouth high school basketball team.

The dinner was prepared by the American Legion Auxiliary and was a repast that was thoroughly enjoyed and served delightfully by a group of the high school girls.

The menu comprised:

Chicken Fried Steak
Mashed Potatoes, Brown Gravy
Green Beans - Cold Slaw
Rolls - Jelly
Apple Pie
Coffee

The program of the evening was presided over by Milo W. Price, member of the high school faculty, who proved a most entertaining and versatile master of ceremonies in presenting the various speakers and features of the evening.

Talks of Chamber Achievements
J. Howard Davis, president of the Chamber of Commerce was presented and gave a very excellent exposition of the purposes of the civic body and also many of the activities that the Chamber of Commerce with other organizations had sponsored and made possible for the city. The activity in promoting industries and other civic advancements was touched on by the speaker.

Coach Bogges Speaks
Coach H. C. Bogges of the 1937-38 basketball team was introduced and gave a resume of the season which showed the team in a victorious rush in the opening and later a slump had lost several games to teams that were far less potent than the Plattsmouth team. The season closed that carried them to the southeast Nebraska tournament finals and to the state tournament.

Coach Bogges presented the members of the team who received a rousing welcome from the members of the banquet party. The ball players honored were Raymond Wooster, captain; Robert Hayes, Ronald Rehal, Warren Reed, Joy Miller, Ben McCarty, John Jacobs, Donald Wall, Edward Smith, Joe York and Bob Richter, student manager.
Raymond Wooster, captain, responded on behalf of the team in a very clever manner, expressing appreciation for the honors and paying tribute to the fine spirit of cooperation and fellowship that had been shown by the members of the team in this season and past. To those who were to carry on, he extended the best wishes.

Spring Musical Surprise
The dinner party had an unusual treat and one that invoked great merriment when that master of the xylophone, Andrew Kroehler was presented and while Andy had only a piano to operate on he threw a mean hammer. Mr. Kroehler received a wild greeting and presented his assistant, Anton Bajek.

Honor E. H. Bernhardt
On behalf of the Chamber of Commerce, Carl Schneider, past president, presented E. H. Bernhardt, vice-president and general manager of the Norfolk Packing Co., of this city. Mr. Schneider expressed the universal feeling of pleasure of the community on the selection of Mr. Bernhardt to this position in one of the city's largest industries.

Wright Urges Old Ideals
The speaker of the evening, Cullen Wright, of Scottsbluff, is one of the most popular after dinner speakers in the state and well merited this reputation in the entertaining and worthwhile message that he brought to the Cass county people in "Building Communities." Mr. Wright has a very fine humor that has earned him the reputation of the Will Rogers of Nebraska and this timely philosophy and wit was found in abundance in the lighter moments of his remarks.

In his thought of the evening Mr.

Wright stressed the community service that the citizen should give, the necessity of organized bodies such as the Chamber of Commerce to promote the community advancement. He also touched these organizations as the means of people knowing and understanding each other better, the establishing of friendships in common association and service. Another of the great helps in a community life was the closer understanding of the man on the farm and the man in the town, of their interwoven problems, in this giving several cases of his own western home.

In his closing Mr. Wright made a fine appeal for the people to keep their feet on the ground and follow the well chartered course that had marked the history of the nation, both in their personal life and in the political life of the nation, denouncing foreign ideas and propaganda that has today made Europe great armed camps and destroying the liberty of the individual and the finer ideals of racial and religious life.

Assisting in no small way in the success of the banquet was John Frady as song leader and E. H. Wescott as pianist and L. S. Devoe who had been active in arranging details of the banquet. Dr. P. T. Heineman, chairman of the banquet arrangements and J. W. Holmes, ticket chairman.

Lewis and Clark Expedition is to be Dramatized

Notable Exploration of the Missouri River in 1804 to Be Placed on the Radio.

Miss Olive Gass has received word that Swift and Co. of Chicago are contacting members of the P. M. Gass family, in order to get more material for a dramatized radio broadcast of the Lewis and Clark Expedition of 1804, of which Sergeant P. M. Gass was a member and the authorized journalist. He was a great-uncle of Miss Gass.

The sponsors write: "We wish additional information as to Mr. P. M. Gass. We are making him one of the heroes and a leading character in our dramatization of the Lewis and Clark Expedition."

This dramatization is by the Sunbrite Jr. Nurse Corps, a national organization of girls of school age.

The story of the Indian princess, Sa-ca-ja-wea, is also featured. This Indian woman joined the expedition at Ft. Mandan, North Dakota, where the men had spent the winter.

The radio broadcast dramatizes the thrilling historical adventures of the Lewis and Clark Expedition, the most romantic exploring expedition of all time.

Guided by this Indian woman, whose courage, skill and loyalty failed not, the expedition was brought in safety to their destination—the northwest coast, a mythical land where no white man had ever been before.

Sa-ca-je-wea died in 1884 and was buried at Wood River, Wyo., where a monument was erected to her memory.

Return from a Motor Trip to the Southland

Plattsmouth Ladies and Friends Make Interesting Trip to the Southern States.

Miss Mathilde Soennichsen and Mrs. Frank R. Gobelman of this city, Mrs. A. F. Fritchen, sister of Mrs. Gobelman, of Decorah, Iowa, and Harriett Jones, of St. Louis, a former resident there, returned Monday night from a trip to the southland.

The ladies have had a delightful outing and had the opportunity of seeing much of the south that is seldom touched by the average traveler in hurried motor trips from city to city.

They had the chance to observe the general condition of the share cropper family and the colored farmers through the deep south as they motored through. They found most of the families quartered in one room houses and with very primitive methods of farming as compared with the farmers of this part of the nation. One horse was generally used in the plowing with occasional an ox being found drafted to do the plowing and cultivating work. They had an interesting picture in a colored couple in Alabama en route to town in a two-wheeled cart that was drawn by a cow.

They enjoyed stays in San Antonio, the gay southwestern city that has attracted so many of the northern visitors, as well as New Orleans where the pre-Lenten festivities were being held and found this a most entrancing city. Motoring through Mississippi and Alabama they found the natural beauty of the deep south and the little changed rural country from that of years past. They also made a short stop at Atlanta, one of the great cities of the south and a great manufacturing center.

County Agent D. D. Waincott Resigns Office

Head of Extension Work in County for Nine Years, Mr. Waincott to Take Up New Position.

After almost nine years of very active extension work in Cass county, D. D. Waincott, county agricultural extension agent, has resigned to take a position with the Steckly Hybrid Seed company of Weeping Water. His resignation was accepted by the executive committee of the Farm Bureau board at the office last Saturday.

"It was with great surprise and regret to all of us," said John B. Kafenberg, president of the Farm Bureau board, "when Mr. Waincott handed in his resignation at the board meeting. His work has been entirely satisfactory to us as board members and we will find it very difficult to replace him. But we did not feel that we should in any way prevent him from taking a position to better himself."

The Cass County Farm Bureau has been organized and sponsoring extension work in this county for twenty years, having employed two agricultural agents, L. R. Snipes for eleven years and D. D. Waincott for nine years, and two home demonstration agents, Mrs. Nelson Berger, the first home demonstration agent, and Jessie Baldwin, the present agent.

These agents have been very successful in bringing to the people of Cass county valuable and worthwhile information from the U. S. Department of Agriculture and the University of Nebraska Experiment Station. The activities of the extension service have been widely participated in by the people of Cass county. This is evidenced by a recent study made from the records in the agricultural agent's office in Weeping Water for the year of 1936 which shows that eighty-one per cent of the farm families in the county participated in some activity of the extension service during the year.
"I think I shall like this new work that I'm going into, as the hybrid seed business is a new field in agricultural development. We are planning on putting out about 500 acres of hybrid corn this year. So you can see I shall be very busy," Mr. Waincott said.

At the present time the Farm Bureau board is busy trying to locate a new man whom they hope to have employed in the very near future so that he may have some time to work in the county before Mr. Waincott leaves which will be about May 15th.
