

MANLEY NEWS

Mr. and Mrs. Thorbold Hansen entertained a number of friends last Thursday in honor of the birthday of their son.

Miss Teresa Rauth was a visitor for a few days at the home of her cousins, Mr. and Mrs. Herman Rauth, during the past week.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Zoz, who reside at Beatrice, were guests over the week end at the home of the parents of Mrs. Zoz, Mr. and Mrs. William Sleschan, Sr.

Mr. and Mrs. Herman Rauth entertained a number of friends at their home on Monday of last week. There were four tables of enthusiastic pinocle players.

A number of taxpayers from Greenwood precinct attended the taxpayers' meeting held in Manley Friday night and are planning on organizing a league there.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Flaishman visited their daughter and family at Ashland last Sunday and found Rachel with an exceedingly sore throat, similar to the many cases here.

Harold Krecklow has been afflicted with the nose and throat ailment that has been going around, and was compelled to have his throat lanced. He is reported as being much better now.

Mrs. Catherine Earhardt, who has been visiting at Nebraska City for the past week or ten days, a guest at the home of her son, Clarence Earhardt and family, returned home last Monday.

Norma Welte, who is a student at the University of Nebraska, in Lincoln, was spending the week end at the home of her parents in Manley, returning to her studies at the beginning of the week.

Gust Krecklow was in Omaha last Tuesday and says the rain came down in great volume and it was so dark that driving was dangerous. He had to stop until the heavy part of the storm was over.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis O'Brien of near Blair were guests of friends in Manley over Sunday of last week, enjoying their visit here with relatives and friends, as they made their home here some years ago.

Many people of Manley who are friends of the late Mrs. Mary Hopkins, were in Weeping Water last Wednesday to attend the funeral of Mrs. Hopkins, which was held from the Hobson Funeral Home.

W. J. Rau, Teddy Harms and John Stander were in Plattsmouth Tuesday of last week looking after business matters and discussing with the county commissioners and other county officials a set of resolutions that were passed at the last meeting of the Center Precinct Taxpayers' League.

Showing Good Improvement Mrs. Frank Bergman, who has been on the sick list, suffering from a severe case of sinus trouble and other ailments that followed an attack of flu, is now feeling much better and has been able to be up and around for a number of days.

Ninety-First Birthday A large group of friends and relatives of Wendell Heil, who resides at Louisville, gathered last Monday to appropriately celebrate the passing of his 91st birthday. Mr. Heil has lived in Cass county for more than 75 years, and has always been thrifty, a good worker and one of the best of citizens. All joined in extending congratulations and best wishes that he may live to enjoy many more happy birthdays.

Crop Control Law Explained The new law for crop control was explained at a state-wide meeting held at Grand Island last Monday. The meeting was attended by a large number of farmers who went to hear the explanation of the law and how it is expected to work.

There were five cars from this neighborhood, each carrying some five persons. Among those attending were County Agent D. D. Wainwright, Herman Rauth, Oscar Domingo, H. H. Ragoss and Parr Young.

Adopted Resolutions The second meeting of the Center Precinct Taxpayers League last Friday night was well attended. The principal speaker was Hon. Troy L. Davis, of Weeping Water, who gave a very interesting talk on the present need of curtailment of our tax expenditures—in Nation, State and County. He also stressed the relief problem, which is gaining momentum. Several resolutions were adopted to be presented to the county officials.

The next meeting of this organization will be held Friday evening, March 25, at Manley.

Farmer Holds Key to Wildlife Conservation, Says Leader

Jordan Urges Preservation of Nooks and Corners for Wildlife Breeding

"Without the farmer, wildlife restoration, so far as it effects the average American, would have no meaning."

Frederick F. Jordan, director of National Wildlife Restoration Week made this statement in launching the campaign on behalf of the General Wildlife Federation. The Federation is enlisting the support of Four-H Clubs, garden clubs, sportsmen's clubs, Camp Fire Girls, the Grange and all other organizations throughout the country whose interests include a concern for wildlife resources.

"Wildlife near the great masses of America's population is in the keeping of the farmer," said Mr. Jordan. "The wilderness was the enemy of the pioneer. He fought it, to clear land on which he could grow food. He cut down acres of forest and set fire to the heaps of fallen trees. He dug ditches and drained sloughs and marshes.

"The modern farmer has too often carried on the old warfare against the little spots and patches of wilderness that linger. He has done away with rail fences and their tangles of brush, and with pond holes, fringed with cat tails and alder, where ducks and muskrats breed. Meanwhile, to our native insects pests have been added foreign invaders, and the army of birds, without which all farming would be wiped out in a single season, has been sadly decreased because of the destruction of their homes.

"Science was adopted as the daily helper on the farm only about a generation ago. Every intelligent farmer now makes use of scientific methods of crop rotation, soil preparation, stock breeding. Scientific farming includes wildlife restoration—on a big scale to do away with the dust bowl, erosion, disastrous floods—on a small scale, by the individual farmer, to add to the lasting value of his land.

"In pioneer days practically all Americans were hunters, and hunted where they pleased. As cities grew and good roads and automobiles vastly increased, a lot of people refused to understand that the farmer's fields, fences, stock and crops actually belonged to him, and that they represented his capital, the product of his toil. Farmers demanded and got legal protection against the hoodlum hunter.

"Meanwhile state game and fish departments and real sportsmen began more and more to seek the cooperation of the land-owner. Today, over large areas of settled country, the farmer leads the way in wildlife restoration.

"When I began to realize what rural America is doing for wildlife, I asked the question, 'What is there in it for the farmer?'

Added Values "I've got a lot of different answers. The one that strikes me as most logical is that wildlife restoration adds materially to the value of the farm. The bulk of fur marketed in the United States is taken on farm lands; hunting privileges can be made to pay if the farmer wants to collect; sport and food for farm dwellers are made possible through cover management. But on top of these reasons why farmers are conservationists is the fact that they are becoming increasingly conscious of real estate values. A farm on which wildlife and wildlife cover are abundant is improved property in the same way that a home surrounded by a lawn, flowers, shrubs and shade trees is improved.

"The cost of wildlife restoration on the farm is small. It is not to much a matter of doing the right thing as not doing the wrong thing. Excessive cultivation, leaving no nooks or corners for wildlife, is poor business. Excessive grazing doesn't pay. Many drainage projects are ruinous.

"Farmers know this. National Wildlife Restoration Week will point out in every community, what has been accomplished and can be accomplished for wildlife on the farm. And through the General Wildlife Federation the farmers in America will be given a real voice in national wildlife restoration. For, after all, the biggest stockholder in outdoor America is the farmer."

OHOAN ACTIVE AT 82. CHANGED JOBS WHEN 60

CANTON, O. (UP)—A second life began at 60 for 82-year-old Edward A. Zinninger, who, after 41 years as a teacher in the Hardin and Stark county rural schools, became stationary and supplies storekeeper at a manufacturing company.

He has no thought of retiring. He says he owes his position to the fact he is able to keep down the overhead in his department. Zinninger works 44 hours a week and credits a temperate life for his good health. He is an abstainer from tobacco and intoxicating liquors.

GOVERNORS SWAP BEANS

BOISE CITY, Ida. (UP)—Gov. Barzilla Clark of Idaho and Gov. C. R. Stanford of Arizona have been swapping beans. Clark recently sent Stanford an 18-pound sack of Idaho beans. Stanford immediately replied with a 20-pound sack of Arizona beans. Who got the most publicity is not known, but Clark figures in any event he got the most beans.

PEG LEG PUT IN VAULT

VISALIA, Cal. (UP)—While serving a five months' sentence for vagrancy, Ohan Gedeikian, 42, native of Turkey, will have his leg locked up in the county jail's safe for safe keeping. As the leg is of wood, jail authorities felt that Gedeikian would be handicapped at the time of his release should he break it in jail.

WELL DIGGER FINDS GOLD

NAPA, Cal. (UP)—C. D. Skrable, rancher, engaged a well digger. A few days later, he went to see how the well was progressing. Instead of finding the well digger busy at his job, he found him sitting on the edge of the small hole he had dug busily panning for gold which he had discovered in the silt from the well.

WOOD CARVING TAUGHT

BERKELEY, Cal. (UP)—Wood carving is undergoing such a veritable renaissance, especially in the western states where fine woods are cheap, that the University of California has inaugurated a wood carving course for adults.

GALE KILLS 2,000 CHICKENS

SALINAS, Cal. (UP)—In a recent 72-mile gale over this part of California, Earl Albertson had 2,000 chickens killed.

John, Mary and Jack DENTISTRY and PUBLIC HEALTH Approved by American Dental Association and the United States Public Health Service PLATTSMOUTH DENTAL SOCIETY

CHAPTER XLVI One morning shortly after he had graduated from high school, Jack awoke with a decidedly uncomfortable feeling in his left jaw. As the day wore on, the feeling increased. By evening he could scarcely close his mouth. It was actually painful to chew his food.

Unaccustomed to physical discomfort, Jack was worried. Mentally searching for the cause of his trouble, his active imagination fixed itself on mumps. Impossible! A young man his age, virtually on the threshold of adulthood attacked by such a juvenile disease as mumps. Positively humiliating!

Unable to visualize himself as a victim of mumps, he considered other possible causes. Suddenly, a light dawned on him. Lockjaw! Horrors! Could it be possible that he should be laid low at his early age by this enemy of mankind. The thought of lockjaw sent Jack into a blue funk.

He curled up on theavenport in abject misery. Presently his mother, Mrs. Reynolds, came into the room. "What's the matter, Jack?" she asked. "You didn't eat any dinner tonight. Don't you feel well?"

"Something wrong with my jaw," replied Jack. "I can hardly open my mouth. I don't know," he added disconsolately, "whether I've got mumps or lockjaw."

"Nonsense," replied his practical mother. "You've probably got a bad tooth. I'll have Dr. Young look at it for you."

Although Joe was convinced that his trouble did not lie in his teeth, he took his mother's advice and went down to see Dr. Young.

"Hump!" exclaimed the dentist after examining Jack's mouth. "Third molars—that's your trouble—cutting the last of your teeth. Wisdom teeth, you know," he added by way of explanation.

Jack's spirits rose. Visions of the dreaded lockjaw and inglorious mumps faded.

"Cutting teeth?" he asked. "Whoever heard of a fellow my age cutting teeth. I thought I got the last of my teeth when I was thirteen years old."

"No," replied the dentist, "but you are getting the last of them now. The third molars, or wisdom teeth as they are commonly called, usually erupt between the seventeenth and twenty-first year. So you see, there is nothing abnormal about getting your teeth during your eighteenth year. From the looks of your mouth, you are going to get all four of your third molars within a very short time. Fortunately you have ample room for them so they will come in with little difficulty. Many people are less fortunate—their wisdom teeth erupt either impacted or locked under their other teeth. You can be mighty thankful that your third molars are coming in straight."

STRESS URGED ON "THREE RS" SAN RAFAEL, Cal. (UP)—Marin county educators have launched a drive for a revival of the "three rs" in the lower school grades, and especially of the first of the "rs." They insist pupils are reaching high school now without a sufficient knowledge of English to enable them to pursue higher studies profitably.

SCHOOL'S BELL STOLEN

CONTRA COSTA, Cal. (UP)—The Lone Tree school here is bell-less. Thieves climbed to the top of its 35-foot tower and in some way made off with the 500-pound bell.

MURDOCK ITEMS

Miss Irene Gorthey is spending the week end with her friend, Ruby Brokhage, at Yutan, Neb.

George Miller and John Gake-meyer were looking after some business matters in Weeping Water last Wednesday.

Paul Stock was called to Omaha and as well to Weeping Water on Wednesday of last week to look after business matters.

Warrent T. Richards and Louis Schmidt of Wabash were visiting and looking after business in Murdock Wednesday of last week.

Virgil Tweeton, who conducted a garage here for some time has moved his work shop to Ashland, where he will operate the same, although continuing to make his home here.

A caucus was held for placing in nomination candidates for members of the board of education, who are to be elected April 5th, the caucus being held last Friday at the school building.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Tweeton was blessed last week when the kindly old stork presented the couple with a new baby girl. Both mother and daughter are getting along nicely.

Dorothy Mae Gorthey was home over the week end from Peru, where she attends the State Teachers' college. She brought a friend, Willa Rathbun, home with her. Friday night they had a slumber party, with a group of a half dozen girl friends as guests. A merry time was had, with taffy-pulling, etc.

Visited at Weeping Water

Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Tool were in Weeping Water last Sunday, where they visited at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred H. Gorder. Mr. Tool and Mrs. Gorder are brother and sister.

In Memory of Their Father

The seven sons of the late Fred Stock and his wife, who were very active in church work at Callahan, presented a large pulp Bible to the church. The gift was thankfully received and will serve as a remembrance of one of the sturdy and faithful pioneer members of the congregation.

Murdock Man for Sheriff

Henry Carson, who has been manager of the Murdock Farmers Grain Company, last Thursday threw his hat in the ring for the office of county sheriff by perfecting his filing as a republican nominee at the court house in Plattsmouth. The primary election this year will be held in August. Mr. Carson has many friends over the county and has made a success of his position as manager of the elevator, having repeatedly been re-elected to that position.

To Resume Pilgrimages

L. Neitzel substituted for a substitute last Sunday at the Callahan church to teach a Sunday school class, seemingly to the satisfaction of all, he says, because they invited him to return soon. It is time for Mr. Neitzel to take up his seasonal pilgrimages to visit all the churches he can reach during the pleasant weather.

Showing Good Improvement

Carl Buck, who was in the Veterans hospital for treatment a few weeks since and returned home a week ago is reported as showing continued improvement and is able to get out and around town to call on his friends. It will be some time, however, before he is able to do any work on account of the severity of the injury which he received in an auto wreck.

Here on a Visit

Mr. and Mrs. Leo Schultz and Chester O'Krey from Stevens Point, Wisconsin, also Johnny Sherwinsky, from Beverly Hills, Calif., arrived in Murdock Sunday afternoon for a visit at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Merle Gillespie.

The boys are cousins and Mrs. Schultz is an aunt of Mrs. Gillespie. They have spent the winter months in California and were on their way home in the east.

Mr. and Mrs. W. O. Gillespie and Miss Everett had them and also Mrs. H. V. McDonald as their guests at a dinner Sunday evening.

Letter from Steve and Homer Mrs. H. H. Lawton received a letter a few days ago from her husband, mailed at Portland, Oregon, in which he told of the trip he and Steve Leis were completing. He said they had a very trouble-free journey from here to the west with only one flat tire to mar their enjoyment of the country through which they passed. They visited relatives of both parties on the way out. Mr. Lawton wrote they were leaving Portland for Seattle last Saturday morning, and expected to be there by the end of the week. (A letter has been received by the Journal field man and is also published on this page).

Mewhinney's Candies MADE AT SPRINGDALE FARM ARE NOW SOLD AT Bates Book Store

Building Progressing

Frank Melvin, the carpenter and builder, and Messrs Leo and Will Rikli, are getting along nicely with the task of rebuilding the house of the Rikli estate. A portion of the building has been torn away, a new porch added and other improvements made. The Rikli brothers have about completed their portion of the work and Mr. Melvin is getting along nicely with his portion of the job. Mr. Melvin will live in the building when it is completed.

Letter from S. P. Leis

Writing to the Journal field man from Seattle, Washington, under date of March 13, S. P. Leis says:

"Well, Mr. Briggs, I am writing to my friends in Cass county: will you please print it in the Journal? Had a good trip on our way out, one blow out but no damage. Found my brother Charley at Oregon City doing fine. Am now visiting at Seattle for a few days then will go back to Oregon City and may locate there. Flowers are blooming fine around here. Would you please send my paper to Oregon City and let me know when my subscription runs out and I will send you the money to renew it. Best regards to all my Murdock friends and if any of you come out here, hunt me up."

Father Still Hale and Hearty

William Weber, the father of Rev. F. C. Weber, who makes his home at Platte Center, is still hale and hearty although he has passed his ninety-third birthday. The aged man was born in Germany but has lived in this country for many years. On April 17, 1931, Mr. Weber and wife celebrated the passing of their 56th wedding anniversary, with a large number of relatives and friends in attendance to help them enjoy the occasion. Later in November, 1935, when they had been married more than sixty years, the wife passed away.

The son, Rev. F. C. Weber, is pastor of the Callahan church near Murdock.

Held Excellent Meeting

Last Sunday at the Evangelical church at Callahan a large number of the members of the church were gathered to enjoy the entire day with dinner, preaching and other activities of the church. There were 155 out for the regular church service. In the afternoon the Woman's Missionary Society had charge of the program, commencing at 2:15. Rev. W. E. Lewis of Lincoln brought a very enlightening message during the afternoon, outlining conditions in Africa, and in the evening he showed pictures. The aggregate attendance for the day was estimated at 750 and the offering for missions amounted to $85.00.

Plattsmouth Deanery Entertained

Mr. and Mrs. John C. Rauth entertained members of the Plattsmouth deanery, N. C. C. W. on last Monday, March 14, when fifteen of the members of the organization were guests for the day. Arrangements were perfected for the holding of a deanery meeting for this district at Avoca on May 21st.

Father Robert Salmon of St. John's church, Plattsmouth, was a guest speaker. Besides the delightful meeting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Rauth, the guests were entertained by a very fine luncheon that was served by Mesdames Rauth and Walter Mockenhaupt.

Wabash News

The two little daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Guy Hinds have been wrestling with whooping cough, and while it quite badly, they are getting along nicely now.

With other members of the family ill, Mrs. Orville Gerbeling has been suffering from an attack of sinus trouble, but is reported considerably better now.

John Browne, who has been kept to his home and bet a good portion of the time with a severe cold on his chest, is now able to be up and expects to be able to get out soon if the weather continues good.

Reports from the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. R. Murfin, where Mr. Murfin and his son have both been sick, the former with double pneumonia and the latter with whooping cough, are to the effect that both are much improved, although Mr. Murfin will not be able to be out for some time yet.

Installed New Motor Block

Clifford Browne had the misfortune to have his car freeze up during the recent cold weather, bursting the motor block. He secured a new block and now has the car in operating condition again.

Wabash Kensington Meets

On Wednesday of last week, the members of the Wabash Kensington took advantage of the spring-like weather and held a meeting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Orville Gerbeling. Although it was one day in advance of St. Patrick's day, they observed the occasion with green predominating, and all had a splendid time with their work and the social hour that was climaxed with the serving of refreshments.

Both are Feeling Better

For a week Sherman Hardaway was kept to his home with an affliction of his throat, which has extended to the back of his neck. As a result of this affliction he has been running a high fever and was confined to his home for nine days.

During the fore part of his illness, Mrs. Hardaway was able to care for him, but later in the week she was taken very ill.

At latest reports they were both much better and Sherman expected to be back in the store the first of the week.

Brotherhood Meets

For a number of years there has been in existence in Weeping Water an organization known as the Methodist Brotherhood. Recently its scope has been enlarged to include members of the Christian and Congregational churches and the name changed to the Christian Union Brotherhood of Weeping Water.

Last Monday evening this organization met at the parlors of the Congregational church, where an interesting and worthwhile program was enjoyed. At the conclusion of the program an oyster supper was served and some special work was given by a number of the CCC boys, which added much to the pleasure of those attending.

A Story for Husbands Exclusively By IRVIN S. COBB

THIS little story is meant for husbands, only. Wives, especially wives of pronounced social ambitions, are requested not to read it. Two citizens met on the street. They hadn't seen each other for

IN FACT SHE'S ACTUALLY BORING months. One of them was married to a lady who figured frequently in the columns of fashionable intelligence in the newspapers. After they had exchanged views on things in general the other asked: "By the way, is your wife entertaining this winter?" "Not very," was the sad reply. (American News Features, Inc.)
