

Weeping Water

Wm. Asch was called to Plattsmouth last Saturday to look after some business matters and was also visiting with friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Sudduth and the children from near Murray were enjoying a visit at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Askew.

M. R. Whitney and wife who have been residing in the east part of Weeping Water moved the first of this week to the Taylor property on the west side of town.

Many of the members of the Weeping Water Woman's club were at Nebraska City Tuesday attending the district meeting, and were royally entertained with a fine program and dinner by the Nebraska City ladies.

Earl Oldham last Tuesday was assisting in the hauling of fodder for the Robert Baker dairy, they getting the feed in and stored before the rain, altho the wind in the morning was rather adverse to their making the best progress.

Much Corn Moving

During the past and present week there has been much corn moving to market in the neighborhood of Weeping Water, not that the prices have been so attractive, but with the coming of spring and the nearing of the time for planting another crop and the need of some money, and not very much of a promise of advancing prices the farmer naturally reasons that he had just as well get the corn off to market.

Fred H. Gorder Some Better.

Fred H. Gorder, former county commissioner who has been kept at home for several months on account of poor health and having to have a special nurse, is reported as being much improved of late and evincing a desire to get out and go down town to see how affairs are going. His better judgment however was to remain home and secure all the good effects of the rest that his health might further be restored. Mr. Gorder has many friends living all over the county who are very desirous that he be restored to his former good health again.

Student Develops Severe Headaches.

Billie Whitney, 12, a student of the Weeping Water schools, is taking a layoff from his school work as he continues to develop headaches when he has studied for a few hours and the remainder of the day seems to be no good to him in his studies. Examination of his eyes developed nothing which could solve the problem and so he has been kept home for a number of days to see if the rest of his eyes would relieve the headaches.

Visited at Omaha Sunday.

Messrs. and Mesdames Ross Shields and Boyd Knox were visiting for the day Sunday at the home of friends in Omaha, and were also attending the funeral, or cremation of the out-of-date automobiles which the automobile dealers had consigned to oblivion in an effort to get rid of the older models. They were piled up in a huge pile, oil poured over them, and ignited. Some 15,000 people witnessed the spectacle, filling the street and parking on the hillslopes.

Variety Store to Open Soon.

When the new variety store building was started, the date set for completion of the building and the stocking of the same, was Easter. Many thought that this would be impossible of accomplishment with all the work to be done clearing away the debris, erecting the new building and stocking the store, but it now seems that the date set will see the new store open for business. All of the workers, including Mr. and Mrs. Michelsen, have worked hard to realize this goal.

After Half a Century.

During the early part of the month of December in the year 1887, Weeping Water with no means of fighting fires, a conflagration visited the fair city and wiped buildings from the same five business lots which was then looked upon as such a calamity, and which it was, but the people of Weeping Water then went to work rebuilding. Year followed year, and after nearly fifty-one years another fire of flame wiped out the same five buildings, and now this generation like that of more than a half century ago is faced with the restoration of the fair city again. One new building is now completed and is to be occupied the coming week. Others will follow and this generation will surely accomplish what the sturdy citizenry did fifty-one years ago. The hindrances which present themselves will be overcome by the people of today and Weeping Water, like Chicago in 1871 will become a bigger and better city notwithstanding the great loss the fire entailed.

Records Were Burned.

C. H. Gibson, whose store was burned in the recent fire, lost all of his records, and had a small fortune outstanding on his books. Mr. Gibson purchased another grocery store and is still engaged in business in Weeping Water and serving the people. Many who knew themselves indebted to Mr. and Mrs. Gibson have come forward and paid their bills as well as they could with the records burned.

Present Excellent Entertainment.

The University of Nebraska glee club was in Weeping Water Tuesday of this week and presented a most thoroughly enjoyed program of music. The entertainment was given at the parlors of the Congregational church which was filled to comfortable capacity.

Fed Ninety Hungry Women.

The Woman's Missionary society of Weeping Water entertained many of the grand officers of the state association and also those of the eight midwestern states represented here. The main address was delivered by Mrs. John C. Stoval, who brought a message of encouragement to members of the different clubs and societies assembled. Mrs. M. E. Gilbert of Omaha, vice president of district No. 1, of the Methodist church, was also present. The ladies of Weeping Water fed some ninety of those in attendance.

Brotherhood to Meet.

The Brotherhood, which has extended its membership to include the men of the Congregational church as well as the Methodist, will meet at the parlors of the Methodist church the coming Monday evening. All interested are cordially welcome.

Have Excellent New Business.

When the fire which came to check the courage and business sagacity of the people of Weeping Water and wiped out so many of the active and flourishing businesses of Weeping Water, it took among them the business of Mr. Joyce and wife, and since they have been quietly going forward getting their new business house in working order. The new cafe has been completed. The writer visited the new business house on our last visit in Weeping Water and found it functioning and doing good work feeding the hungry. The place was opened last Saturday and has many modern appliances for the best serving of the public.

Government Quarry Opened.

The government quarry, which was semi-dormant during the winter weather, with the coming of warmer weather have started work again, and many have been put to work. This work has come with welcome not only to the men but to the merchants who are highly pleased, as well as the general public.

Fred Egenberger, Jr., Killed at Des Moines

Former Resident Here Dies in Train-Auto Crash in Iowa Early Monday Evening.

Fred B. Egenberger, 57, former resident of Plattsmouth, was killed early Monday evening in an auto-train crash at Des Moines, Iowa, where he has made his home in recent years.

Relatives here were notified by telephone last night shortly after 9 o'clock of his death but none of the particulars of the accident was given, merely the fact of the death in a wreck.

The deceased spent the greater part of his lifetime here where he was born and was married here to Miss Eva Rötter, who with ten children, survives his passing. He also leaves his mother, Mrs. Mary Egenberger, of Omaha, three sisters and a brother, Mrs. Nick Baumgart of Plainview, Nebraska, Mrs. Florence Turpin and Mrs. Mary Bell, of Omaha, and Carl Egenberger of this city. His father, J. V. Egenberger, one brother, Edward, and a sister, Anna, have preceded him in death.

Mr. Egenberger has been engaged in working with a large roofing company at Des Moines for some years. No announcement has been made as to the funeral arrangements as yet.

MURRAY MAN TO HELP CORN GROWERS OF THIS SECTION

Ivan De Les Dernier of Murray, local representative for the DeKalb Agricultural Association announced today that he had been able to secure an allotment of DeKalb hybrid seed corn to distribute to farmers in his locality under the most liberal terms ever made in the hybrid seed corn industry.

Mr. De Les Dernier stated that the DeKalb Agricultural Association has had under consideration for some time a plan that would enable farmers, particularly those in drought stricken areas, to enjoy the advantages of hybrid corn during 1938 without having to make a heavy outlay of cash this spring for the purchase of seed. The association's plan was finally completed and announced to Mr. De Les Dernier who was fortunate in securing a supply of the DeKalb seed corn in this territory.

The plan as drawn up only requires a small initial down payment for the seed this spring with the balance to be paid in the fall out of the yield harvested in the fall. "This will be easy to do," stated Mr. De Les Dernier "because the yield of DeKalb hybrids over open-pollinated corn in the state yield trials in Nebraska last year was about 8 bushels to the acre. On this basis, using last season's crop for example, farmers should get an increase of 64 bushels of corn for every bushel of DeKalb hybrid seed they purchase."

The supply of hybrid seed which they purchase will be here Friday and Saturday and will be available to the farmers of the community as long as it lasts.
