RESIGNATION OF DR. CLARKE

Action of Love Avenue Pastor Approved by Presbytery Meeting at Bellevue.

The Omaha Presbytery in session assembled at Bellevue Wednesday voted to accept the resignation of Rev. A. S. C. Clarke, D. D., pastor of the Love Avenue Presbyterian church, who has received a call to the pastorate of the Second Presbyterian church of Evanston, Ill.

Dr. Clarke presented the matter formally to the Presbytery in a few words, saying he had arrived at his decision to accept the call after long consideration of his opportunities in both fields.

Dr. Clarke presented his resignation to the church last Sunday and on Tuesday evening a congregational meeting was held and resolutions adopted including the following:

Resolved, That this congregation comply with Dr. Clarke's request for a dissolution of the pastoral relation existing, but desire it to be sympathetically understood that it does so with extreme reluctance, and only because it believes the action meets the earnest wish of Dr. Clarke.

This resolution was read before the Presbytery by J. K. Fleming. After the vote had been taken a number of the Presbyterian pastors of the city expressed their appreciation of the high character of Dr. Clarke's work, his great personal worth and their own regrets at his departure from Omaha.

A committee was appointed to draw up resolutions of regret for the Presbytery.

THEATERS COMPLY WITH LAW

Have All Exits Required by the City Ordinance, Says Building Inspector.

City Building Inspector Withnell takes exception to the statement that the theater buildings of the city are not properly equipped with exits which are maintained according to ordinance. In support of his contention he says inspection shows that all of the larger theaters have as many exits as the ordinance requires and are secured on the inside of the door as required by ordinance; that the city did not expect the theaters to keep these doors unlocked during performances or at any other time, but the ordinance does provide that they shall be secured so that they can be opened by any person from the inside, and that they are so maintained. In addition he says the larger and smaller theaters are all provided with standpipes constantly filled with water, so that any fire can be controlled, and that no permit is issued to any theater where such water pipes or automatic sprinklers are not installed, despite the fact that they are not required by ordinance.

FIRST FLOUR FROM NEW MILL

Maiden Product of Updikes Goes to Commercial Club.

Bread Cast Upon the Waters

Biscuits from the Flour Will Be Served at Noon Lunch Thursday, When All Will Be Able to Eat.

Bread cast upon the waters has returned to the Omaha Commercial club and Thursday the bread served at the noonday lunch will be some of it—made in Omaha.

Members of the club, will receive with the compliments of the Updike Milling company, the first sack of flour, which was made late Wednesday afternoon, and when they break bread together Thursday it will be made from the very first sack which came from the giant steel rollers Wednesday afternoon.

Manager A. Edgcomb of the mill sent the sack of flour to Commissioner Guild, with his compliments, Wednesday as soon as it was made. The commissioner of the Commercial club sent it to the baker and there will be three kinds of bread manufactured from the flour. There will be "Mamma bread," in big home-made loaves; there will be some buns and rolls, and last, but not least, some soda milk and soda biscuits, which will be served hot, with the injunction: "If Nature gives men appetites for things which won't digest, why let them eat whatever delights and let 'Her stand the rest."

Manager Edgcomb asserts, however, that not even a shot of baking soda, which would make the hot biscuit saffron, would make them indigestible to an Omaha man partook of the bread with the knowledge that the flour was made in Omaha from Nebraska wheat.

Arriens Mill as Starter

After being idle for over two years the Arriens mill, one of the most modern in the west, was bought some time ago from the estate by the Updike Grain company and Wednesday the first sack of flour was made. Ten cars of high-grade Nebraska wheat were set in on the sidetrack during the day and unloaded. The machinery had been turning since early morning and the mill was in full operation. Manager Edgcomb pulled open the door which allowed the first wheat to start on its long journey through rollers and screens. The first flour was taken from the mill and a close examination showed it to be of excellent grade and only small adjustments were necessary to grind the sack which will be consumed by the Commercial club.

The mill has a capacity of 1,000 barrels per day and when the demand increases the mill will run twenty-four hours every day and to its full capacity.

The attorneys of the railroad and the stock yards were present at the trial.

BELLEVUE HAS NATAL DAY

College Celebrates Twenty-Seventh Anniversary.

FOUNDED ON THREEFOLD BASIS

President Wadsworth Tells Why the Institution Was Founded—Prominent Men Participate in the Ceremonies.

Twenty-seven years ago, October 16, 1880, Bellevue college was founded. The anniversary was commemorated by special services Wednesday evening. The college chapel was crowded with students, members of the faculty and visitors. On the platform were the pastors of the Presbyterian churches of Omaha and several prominent business men.

After prayer by Rev. Newman H. Burdick and a song by the quartet, President Guy W. Wadsworth made a few preliminary remarks.

"The object of the founders of Bellevue college was threefold," he said. "They founded this school, first, because they realized the importance of education in a general way; secondly, because they believed in the 'small college idea,' and thirdly, because they knew that the ideal college must be permeated primarily by the influence of Christianity."

He showed the general value of a college education by the fact that of 7,000 American men, leaders in various industries and college educations. He showed the fine influence on developing character exerted by the close touch between teacher and student in the small college and indicated the great influence of constant Christian teaching.

Dr. Jenks Speaks.

Rev. Dr. Edward H. Jenks, pastor of the First Presbyterian church of Omaha, made the principal address. He discoursed upon the high fundamental value of individual character. He proved himself to be what Dr. Wadsworth in introducing him said he was, "a man who has never for an instant lost hope in Bellevue."

"I love Bellevue and I believe in her," he said. "The college has a grand future. It is located in the midst of the country that is going to be the center of the world's wealth and industries. Here is this vast area of soil easily cultivated and a salubrious climate. Never in the history of the world has there been such promise of development in any country. Here and there are tracts of land just as fertile, they have a climate just as healthful, but one thing they lack, namely, character in their common people. Ignorance saps them. And so that college has a great future before it. It is very young but it is growing, and with a 50 per cent increase in enrollment this year the outlook is most hopeful."

In concluding, Dr. Jenks paid a feeling tribute to Henry T. Clarke, who presented the institution at its foundation with 255 acres of land and the main building. "I would like," he said, "to see a statue erected in honor of some mighty block of granite and placed here on this campus in memory of the work of that great man."

Creigh an Incorporator.

Thomas A. Creigh, who was one of the incorporators of the college, gave some reminiscences.

"Hastings was the rival of Bellevue, or rather of Henry T. Clarke, in securing the location of this college," he said. "But Bellevue won easily. The first sessions of the college were held by Dr. Clarke in the old residence of his father, Mr. Clarke."

"We had impressive dedicatory services when the main building was finished. In digging the foundation for this structure the bones of a number of Indians were dug up. These were kept in a big store box for a number of years, but were finally brought again to the summit of the hill and there reinterred."

C. M. Wilhelm also made a few remarks.

The program was interspersed with songs by the quartet and the college yells were given several times with a win that shook the roof of the old building. At the close both students and faculty joined lustily in the ringing notes of the college song, "Cheer for Old Bellevue."

Among the visiting ministers were: Dr. A. S. C. Clarke, Rev. Thomas K. Hunter, Rev. H. B. Highley, Rev. W. H. Reynolds, Rev. N. H. Burdick, Dr. Edward H. Jenks, Rev. Kearns and Rev. R. T. Bell of Omaha; Rev. J. H. Salabury of Plattsmouth, Rev. J. Frank Reed of Fremont. The ministers remained to attend an adjourned meeting of the Omaha presbytery.

Father Egan's Share in the Building of St. Philomena's Cathedral Was Great.

OMAHA, Neb., Oct. 16.—To the Editor of The Bee: The letter of "Protestant" in The Bee of the 8th inst., concerning St. Philomena's cathedral and Father Egan's place in its history, deserves an explanation.

Father Egan's name was not given the prominence it deserved in the history of the cathedral for the reason that much of the records of the early church are lost or destroyed and the data used was taken from the baptismal record. Father Egan was the last pastor of St. Mary's, the little church which stood on the corner of Eighth and Howard streets. He left Omaha the latter part of February, 1906. The cathedral, which was under construction at that time, consequently he was not one of the pastors of St. Philomena's. But he was an active force in the erection of the building and is entitled to a greater measure of credit in that connection than has been given a zealous and energetic minister. Mr. John J. Rush was an intimate friend of the priest, and was closely associated with him as teacher of the parochial school. "Father Egan," says Mr. Rush, "was the chief constructive force of the cathedral. He would rank him next to Father Kelly in the honor roll of building St. Philomena's cathedral." The cause of his disagreement with Bishop O'Gorman, which led to his departure from Omaha, had to do with the construction and equipment of the cathedral. According to Mr. Rush, Father Egan went from Omaha to New York, and was living and laboring in the vineyard there at last accounts.

OMAHA HAS FEWER FOR RENT

Not as Many Houses Here as in Kansas City, Says Denver Real Estate Man.

Twenty times as many "For Rent" signs are to be seen in both the residence district and business sections of Kansas City as in Omaha, according to John C. Gallop, former president of the Denver Real Estate exchange, in the rooms of the Commercial club Wednesday.

With several other members of the Denver Real Estate exchange, Mr. Gallop is making a tour of the cities of the middle west to observe methods of government improvement by commercial organizations and purposes for which additional taxes are levied.

"To the real estate men and citizens of Omaha, I feel I ought to say one thing," said Mr. Gallop. "From my observation here Omaha, as compared with Denver, Kansas City, is just as prosperous, but the people here seem afraid of taxes. For parks and boulevards. This is a great mistake. Don't be afraid of additional levies for the purpose of making the city beautiful. It will make you wealthy, it will make every property holder in the city many times as much as the taxes on the present will amount to in a number of years. Kansas City has spent $2,000,000 for parks and boulevards. For years we have lived in the kitchen and neglected the parlors. Now we must look to the parlors. Omaha is a healthy and prosperous city as compared to the cities we have visited, but it is healthy compared to Denver, which we have always believed to be the best ever."

Mr. Gallop told the real estate men that the exchange in Denver was the strongest of the business men's organizations and always got what it wanted after.

LAND TRIALS START MONDAY

Cases of Babcock and Associates Will Open Federal Court.

RUSH IS HERE TO PROSECUTE

Same Old Charge of Conspiracy to Defraud Government Will Be the Basis of These Actions.

The United States district court for the Omaha division will convene Monday morning, with Judge W. H. Munger presiding. It has been finally decided the land trials shall have precedence and the case of the United States against G. H. T. Babcock, John Agnew, Robert Furman and H. G. Furman will be the first heard.

These parties are indicted for conspiracy to defraud the United States out of title, use and possession to large tracts of land in Dawes county during the year 1903, by means of false entries. The indictment contains three counts, with about half a dozen overt acts charged. It is held the entries were procured and proven up in the special interest of Babcock and the other defendants and perjury is also charged in one of the counts.

The defendant Babcock was formerly United States commissioner at Alliance and was also a justice of the peace. Many of the entries were sworn to before him as an official of the government ostensibly in his interest and that of his associates in the alleged frauds. The indictments were returned in 1906 and it was only a few days ago that Agnew, one of the defendants, finally was located and arrested near Lusk, Wyo., by secret service officers and was taken before the United States commissioner in that vicinity and bound over to the United States district court for Nebraska in $3,000 to appear October 21.

Upon the completion of the Babcock et al. cases the next case to be heard will be that of the United States against R. W. Mahaffey on a similar indictment. These old land cases will be disposed of as rapidly as possible and it is the hope of the Department of Justice to clear the docket of most of them at this time of court.

The trials will be conducted by Assistant Attorney General S. R. Rush, assisted by United States District Attorney Charles A. Goss. A large number of witnesses have already been summoned, including a number of women, who were secured to make the alleged fraudulent entries.

Get What You Ask For

There are many reasons why you ask for advertised articles, but absolutely none why you should let a substituting dealer palm off something which he claims to be "just as good" or "better" or "the same thing" as the article you requested.

The advertised article must of necessity be of the highest quality, otherwise it could not be successfully sold and the advertising discontinued.

The buying public recognizes the superior quality of advertised articles. The substituter realizes that fact and tries to sell inferior goods on the advertiser's reputation.
