COMPANY WILL MEET DEMANDS

Head of System and Large Number of Other Officials Visit Omaha and Praise Its Growth and Future.

"Big as these terminals are they will be doubled just as soon as the volume of traffic demands it," said President Hughitt of the Northwestern railroad, who, with other officials of that company and the Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis & Omaha, spent three hours yesterday in Omaha viewing the new terminals and other interests of the combined corporation.

"We are highly pleased with the location and construction of our new terminals," added President Hughitt. "They will subserve our growing interests for a while anyhow and do it well and will enable us when these terminals become too small for the volume of business the Northwestern transacts, then the Northwestern will double the size of the terminals. That's all there is to that."

"Omaha is one of the big and important cities of the Northwest, and I think the people of Omaha realize by now that the Northwestern appreciates this fact. The country tributary to Omaha is growing and Omaha is growing and the situation certainly is encouraging. Your city has a future that is destined to place it already among the best and most progressive. Its growth is steady and substantial and denotes a determination upon the part of its people to seize every opportunity offered by the rapidly developing country back of the city to the west and northwest."

Enthusiasm Over New Line. President Hughitt and party had come down from the northwest, having made the trip over the new Northwestern line from Pierre to Rapid City, S. D., and the president was enthusiastic in his impressions of that country, tributary to Omaha.

(From a Staff Correspondent.) LINCOLN, Oct. 20.—(Special.)—Early today the statement of Chairman Hayward sent out Monday, together with the fact sheet of the redeemed pledges made by the republican legislature has made a happy hit, and is one of the most original campaign documents ever sent by any chairman. Incidentally a nice little story is back of that document.

Senator Burckett started on his tour of investigation of irrigation works and army posts in the West today.

Campaign Progressing Well. The republican campaign is well under way and progressing nicely. Renewal of Cotton Shipments on Large Scale Expected to Also Start Flow of Money This Way.

NEW YORK, Oct. 20.—The principal source of the fresh disturbance in the stock market last week was traced finally to the copper world, but before the conditions had become so acute, money lenders were kept well supplied with all the alarming rumors current and originated others on their own account, sending securities for sale to this market meanwhile, and restricting credits to New York in many ways.

Four of Contractions. Fears of coming business contraction that might run into depression were stimulated by the course of the copper trade and had some incentive also in the advice from the iron trade that the market was not so well supplied with iron as it had been.

Money market continues tight and the growth towards a further curtailment in the stock market. There was evidence of forced liquidation at many points and this was attributed to growing strictness on the part of the banks as to collateral and the throwing out of some securities held as collateral for loans.
