SQUABBLE OVER RECEIVER

President Wants One Man and Directors Another.

COURT TAKES TIME TO THINK

Deputy Attorney General Rose Says Coffin is Not the One to Advise on the Appointment.

The hearing for the appointment of a receiver for the Nebraska Mutual Fire Insurance company Tuesday morning before Judge Redick developed that there are two factions in the company, one headed by President E. M. Coffin, which is opposed to the appointment of E. M. Martin as receiver, and the other comprising the board of directors, who have already consented to Martin's appointment. After the hearing, during the course of which Deputy Attorney General W. E. Rose declared President Coffin not a proper person to advise the court in regard to the appointment, Judge Redick took the matter of the appointment under consideration.

Mr. Coffin, in an affidavit to support the objection to the appointment of Martin, declared that Martin was a close personal friend and legal adviser of W. H. Rhoades, one of the directors, who, according to Coffin, has subscribed $25,000 to the guaranty fund and has only paid $1,150 of it. Mr. Coffin declared that Rhoades' liability for the remainder of the subscription would be a matter to be adjudicated and he did not think Martin should be made receiver owing to his close personal relationship with Rhoades.

Martin Denies Statement.
Martin in answer to these allegations went on the witness stand and declared he had never received a dollar in fees from Rhoades and in whatever he had done he acted purely as a friend and old schoolmate. He said he had introduced Rhoades to Coffin when Rhoades first came to Omaha and Rhoades had afterward invested money in the insurance company. He had also talked to Rhoades about the condition of the company and had advised him in relation to a proposed contract for the reorganization of the concern, when such a step was contemplated.

Violating Game Laws in Iowa Seems to Carry its Own Severe Penalties.
After a strenuous summer pulling in nets and seines, the game wardens of Iowa and Nebraska will spend a busy December watching for hunters who insist on shooting quail and other game birds, the open season for shooting them having closed Sunday, December 1.

Except to Rose's Assertion.
E. J. Clements of Lincoln, who appeared as attorney for Coffin, took exception to the remarks of Mr. Rose and said if there was anything wrong in the business of the company it would come out. Judge REDICK held a short consultation with those interested in his private office and then announced he would appoint a receiver at 3:30 p. m. Wednesday.

At the close of the session Mr. Coffin made a statement denying that he had withdrawn his money from the concern before it failed.
"Evidently what Mr. Rose referred to," he said, "was the repayment to me of what practically was a loan of $100 several months ago. I took up a guaranty certificate for that amount with the understanding the company would pay me back in sixty days. I did it as an accommodation to the company and it was paid to me. I still have $5,000 in the company which I have not attempted to withdraw."

WARE TO JAIL FIFTEENTH
President of U. B. I. Land and Cattle Company Prepares to Begin His Term.

Rev. George G. Ware, president of the U. B. I. Land and Cattle company, will enter upon his sentence of one year's imprisonment in the Douglas county jail December 15.

Mr. Ware was sentenced on February 25, 1906, to pay a fine of $1,000 and to one year's imprisonment in the Douglas county jail, and has been fighting the case, which culminated in the United States supreme court without success to him.

Mr. Ware is at present at his home in Muller, Hooker county, arranging his affairs so as to enter upon his sentence. He was convicted of conspiracy to defraud the government out of large tracts of land in Hooker and Thosman counties by means of fraudulent entries. The trial lasted fourteen days and was full of sensational features. Two of Mr. Ware's confederates in the fraudulent land transactions pleaded guilty and one, Harry Welch, has long since served his sentence of six months' imprisonment in the Douglas county jail. Frank Lambert, the principal witness against Mr. Ware, also pleaded guilty, but has never been sentenced and is at present in Oregon on $2,000 bail. He is being held as a witness in some of the land cases to be tried before the federal courts in Omaha during the present term. Lambert was the agent for a number of cattlemen in procuring men, soldiers' widows and others to make fraudulent filings under the Kinkaid law in the cattle country.

PAT CROWE IN HARD LINES

"Luckiest" Man Hits Town on the Night of Seven Burglaries.

"Pat Crowe has been called the luckiest man who ever committed a crime, but I don't know whether he's going to be able to keep that reputation or not," observed a philosophical police officer Tuesday morning when the general topic of conversation was the seven burglaries of the previous night.

Crowe arrived in Omaha from Chicago Monday evening and in view of an embargo placed against his presence in this city some time ago, he went directly to Mayer Dahman to announce his presence, the fact he intended leaving Tuesday afternoon and would "beat" while in town. After the next morning seven burglaries are reported to the police.

"It's blamed hard luck," said the officer of a philosophical turn of mind.

Diligent efforts are being made by the police to ferret out these burglaries, in each of which the same methods seem to have been employed, the same outfit may have committed all of them.

The most important job was done at the Western Fur company's store at 516 South Sixteenth street, where the burglars secured entrance by raising a back window and got away with about $25 worth of goods and $20 in cash. The articles stolen consisted of twenty nine skins valued at $10 each; one woman's near seal skin jacket, valued at $30; one gentleman's calf skin cloak, of the value of $15 and a mink scarf, valued at $20.

A window was raised in the rear of the Reliable Employment agency's office at 115 North Fifteenth street by burglars and $70, some clothes and a box of tools were stolen.

The Gate City Cleaning Works place at 512 South Eighteenth street was entered by burglars, who secured $175 from the money drawer. The money was gained by forcing open the rear door.

Burglars entered Barkston Bros. book store and stole six fountain pens. They broke open the rear door.

The Omaha Meat company's shop, 608 South Thirteenth street, was entered by pulling open a rear window. Thirty-five pounds were taken from the money drawer. The store of Charles F. Kreile, at 610 South Thirteenth street, was broken into by raising a rear window. The burglar secured $5 in cash, nine knives and ten boxes of cartridges.

TRANSMISSOURI CARED FOR

Shippers Have Guild and Maxwell on Committee on Freight Classification.

Interests of the Missouri river shippers will be well taken care of before the standing committee of shippers on classification, as J. M. Guild, commissioner of the Omaha Commercial club, and F. W. Maxwell, commissioner of the St. Joseph Commercial club, have been appointed to membership on the committee of five in the western classification territory. This gives the Missouri river two representatives, while some shippers in the territory named a standing committee of fifteen members, five from each of three classification territories, while the shippers have just named their representatives. As the offices of the standing committee of railroads and shippers are highly important in the regulation of freight rates, through classification the Missouri river shippers are congratulating themselves on securing two members of the committee of five.

At a meeting of the executive committee of the Commercial club Tuesday noon the report of the committee on municipal affairs recommended the removal of all push cart merchants and peddlers in the district from Capitol avenue to Jackson streets and from Twelfth to Eighteenth streets. The ordinance before the council was endorsed by the committee and it was decided by the executive board to leave the matter entirely in the hands of the municipal affairs committee.

D. M. Carr, editor of the Trade Exhibit, was called before the committee to defend his position advocating the Von Meyer plan of parcels post plan, and after a long address the executive committee voted to "stand pat" against any parcels post measure.

A communication from the Council Bluffs West Side Improvement club, asking the Commercial club to assist them in the hearing before the Interstate Commerce commission, for a $-cent fare across the Missouri river on cars of the street railway company, was referred to the transportation committee.

J. C. Bixby was elected to membership in the club.

DIFFICULT TO GET A JURY

Sixty Men Either Oppose Hanging or Refuse to Hang White Man for Killing Chinaman.

A new venire of forty names reported for duty in Judge Troup's court Tuesday morning for service in the Pumphrey murder case, the first venire having been exhausted Monday evening. At adjournment of court Tuesday at noon seventy-three jurors had been examined and fifty-eight of them excused either for cause or by the exercise of peremptory challenges by the state or defense. The state had used up three of its six challenges and the defense had exercised twelve of the fifteen allotted to it.

Practically all of those excused for cause declared they were opposed to capital punishment or would not hang a white man for killing a Chinaman. The answers indicated a strong prejudice against the yellow man's business. A few were excused because they had already formed opinions as to the guilt or innocence of Pumphrey.

Look Out for Sack Merchants—John G. He says there has grown up a custom of selling a "peck" of vegetables in a fourteen-pound sack and that such sack will not contain a peck. A sixteen-pound sack, so filled that it cannot be tied, will hold a peck. The inspector says that the next complaint he receives of "pecks" in fourteen-pound sacks will result in the arrest of the merchant.

Boys Steal Milk and Cream—Residents of the neighborhood extending from Twenty-sixth street and St. Mary's avenue to Twenty-ninth avenue and Pacific street have been finding difficulty in securing cream for their coffee. Complaints to the office of the dairies bring forth the statement that the cream and milk have been delivered as usual, but below stairs the householder is met with the statement that no milk has arrived. Watch was set upon the milk deliveries with the result it was ascertained a gang of small boys had followed the milkmen from house to house and had removed bottles as fast as they were left. The case was reported to the probation officers and arrests will follow unless the practice is discontinued.

IOWA GAME LAWS OWN COURT

They Seem to Invoke Retributive Justice in Case of Violators.

Violating game laws in Iowa seems to carry its own severe penalties.

After a strenuous summer pulling in nets and seines, the game wardens of Iowa and Nebraska will spend a busy December watching for hunters who insist on shooting quail and other game birds, the open season for shooting them having closed Sunday, December 1.

A. M. Green, an Iowa game warden, who was in Omaha during the slaughter of birds had been something "ferce" during the short season and that the season should be closed for ten years, as quail were becoming so scarce as English pheasants.

"I have destroyed $12,000 worth of nets and seines," said Mr. Green, and it looks as though the fines for illegal shooting would amount to about that much if the preliminary skirmishes can be taken as an indication of the number of arrests which will follow the closing of the season."

But the way of the transgressor is hard, according to the game wardens, who have a list of the offenses committed and the punishments which have followed. One Iowa sheriff, who had enjoyed public office for twelve years, was caught fishing illegally by the game wardens and was defeated for office three weeks ago. E. E. Jansen, a Waukegan country farmer, was so badly when he fell into the water and died of pneumonia. Some of the punishments dealt out seem like nature fakes, but are meted in a serious manner by the game wardens, as though warning the hunters. B. R. Johnson, an Iowa farmer boy, trapped for quail before the season opened, caught a mink, which bit his hand when he put it in the cage and his doctor bill was $2. An Omaha hunter shooting near Omaha shot Seabright bantams for quail and the birds cost him $0 and a good whipping from a broad-shouldered farmer boy. Many have lost the respect of the game warden, thrown away their guns and given up shooting. Such was the case of a Dakota City lawyer who is said to have followed a bunch of quail into a pasture, attempting to get a shot at them without hitting the cattle, when he scared a covey, which kicked a cow fatally, and cost him the fees he had received for two divorce cases.
