SIGNIFICANCE OF CHARMS

Many Kinds Displayed by Women on Watches and Necklaces.

Hardly a woman who loves pretty trinkets is now without a good luck charm on her watch chain or necklace. One woman who has a collection of charm pendants strings at intervals along her watch chain told about them.

"New York is full of Swastika crosses," she said as she showed a square silver cross. "Mine came from Mexico."

"This is Italian, a charm against the evil eye." She twisted her chain to the next one, a blue coral bead. Its thumb, third and fourth fingers were folded down over the palm. The index and little fingers were extended. "Italians believe that these little hands keep off the evil eye."

"You can get hands in any shop that makes a specialty of Italian jewelry. I know a woman who has a necklace chain hung with a row of these."

"Here's a pretty luck charm from our own south, a hare's foot mounted in silver."

"China is all for the elephant as a lucky charm. In the Oriental shops there is no end of the array of pendant elephant charms."

"Most of them come in ivory, but there are also made in coral, crystal, amethyst, jade and chrysopean. In many of the charms the eyes of the elephant are set with tiny sparkling gems."

"It is hard to know where to stop when one tries to choose a charm. There are among the many fascinating ones made of jade, the Chinese lucky stone. As it is the stone itself that brings good luck great scope in design opens for the charm maker. I chose this strictly flounder fish curled into a circle and I couldn't resist this little squat idol of the group of the three mystic monkeys—see evil, hear evil, speak evil. One monkey is blindfolded, the other clasps his ears, the third has his finger to his lip."

"Four leaved clovers inclosed in crystal make popular charms. You can have the four leaved clover you are lucky to find yourself mounted in this way. The crystal may be rimmed with silver or gold."

WHEN BEING PHOTOGRAPHED

Hints to Those Who Would Make Posing and Natural Pictures.

Wear the sort of dress you usually do. You can't make a bigger mistake than to don some sort of getup that you're totally unaccustomed to. If you're in the habit of wearing a stiff collar don't go and get photographed in a flimsy one.

If you are an outdoor girl be photographed out of doors.

Avoid violent contrasts in color or light and shade in your attire. Plain colors are best for gowns, and draperies usually come out much better than frills and flourishes.

If you have a good figure take care to preserve a clear outline. If not, never be taken full length.

Furs usually look well, but unless care is taken of the way they are disposed they are apt to be rather overwhelming. Sable in particular comes out very nicely, but ermine is apt to be hard, and is, perhaps, better avoided.

Much jewelry is a mistake, but one or two really good things look very well. A fine string of pearls is always safe to wear.

PECK BUYS FIVE DWELLINGS

Chicagoan Buys Eleven Thousand Dollars More Into Omaha Realty.

NEXT YEAR WILL BE A HUMMER

Opinion of Real Estate Dealers, Who Agree on Likelihood of Some Readjustment in Operation of Loans.

Sanford Peck of Chicago, who some four weeks ago invested $30,000 in Omaha real estate, increased his holdings Friday by $11,000 when he bought five residences, two of which are located at Thirty-third and Cass streets, and three at Twenty-first and Spencer streets.

Mr. Peck bought the holdings of Spencer Otis last month after making a trip to Omaha and looking over the city and summing up the outlook for the future. More than eighty lots were included in his first purchase and it is said to be his plan to improve many of them. The houses he bought had all features in common.

Mrs. Golda F. McCulloch closed a deal Friday with Earnest Sweet for the residence near Thirty-third and Harney park has sold a home at Twenty-eighth and Hickory streets to John Kercher of Des Moines, Ia., who is coming to Omaha to make his home.

Question as to Volume. Whether real estate transfers of this year will be as great as those in 1906 is a matter of conjecture with real estate dealers, who have experienced the first six weeks of real quiet during the year. The transfers for 1907 are estimated to be $10,000,000, an increase of more than $3,000,000 over the previous year.

"But next year will be the hummer," said H. G. Jordan of the Byron Reed company, speaking of the outlook.

Real estate dealers are generally agreed that the real estate market is likely in the operation of the city real estate loan deals. It has been exceedingly easy to handle real estate on the constantly rising market and with plenty of money seeking investment.

Every bank has been more than willing to advance the consideration being $5,000.

One of the important real estate deals of November was closed when David Cole delivered to Rt. Rev. Richard Scannell, bishop of Omaha, the deeds for lots at Fifteenth and Leavenworth streets, which was bought by the church of St. Philomena's parish, an incorporation.

As this property was in the courts for a number of years, it was sold under contract to give a clear and clean title. Mr. Cole succeeded in securing every detail of the abstract, and it was accepted by the church for $4,000. When Mr. Cole bought it some time ago, he is understood to have secured a bargain at $3,000, the property increasing $4,000 in value while he held it and the opposite corner selling for $15,000.

The Osborn-Hanson Real Estate company will be closed for a week and a day during the holiday season. The shops will close Tuesday night, December 24, and not reopen until Thursday, January 2.

This order comes as a surprise to the thousands of men employed in the shops along the line of the Union Pacific, as there is said to be no precedent for such a move, the reason for which is said to be economy.

At the general offices, where the order was issued, it was said the men had many of them acquired the habit of taking several days off about Christmas time for rest and celebration and this has seriously handicapped the work of the shops.

To meet this emergency is given as one of the reasons for shutting down the shops.

Many of the men have been in the habit of laying off a few days before Christmas and a few days after New Year's and some fall to show up after Christmas, so as to accommodate all as well as to work a little economy at the same time, the shops will be closed for the holiday week, so an official says.

All forces will be laid off for the week and only such men as are absolutely necessary to keep things in shape will be kept at work. "Economy" was the reason given by one of the men in authority. Work has been falling off to a considerable extent and it was figured that by laying off all at a time when most of the men would like to lay off anyway, a considerable sum of money would be saved to the company and the forces would not have to be cut down to make the required reduction in expenses.

The order affects about 1,700 men at the Union Pacific shops in Omaha, about 400 at Grand Island and about 30 at North Platte, besides more at other shops.

Milk Shed to Be Built. The Union Pacific has for some time been working on plans along the line ordered by the State Railway commission, which ordered a creamery service depot in Omaha. When the case was filed the Union Pacific admitted in its answer present facilities were inadequate and for some time has been working with the representatives of the creamery companies and several trips have been made to the Union station to formulate some plan which would be satisfactory to all concerned. Officials of the company say they will construct the needed building to care for the cream and milk, but have as yet not formulated exact plans as to how it will be done.

Several other roads are interested in Union station and their consent will have to be secured to any change made. Now that the commission has ordered the work to be done, the other roads probably will have to consent to the improvement or be forced to do so by the commission.

A wag has suggested that if the State Railway commission has authority to order the railroad company to build a new station to care for the creamery business, it might have authority to order the Union Pacific to proceed with the construction of its headquarters and prescribe the size and height.

Freight officials of the Union Pacific say they have no intention of hauling the cream via freight trains, as suggested by the commission. The cream is now hauled by the Pacific Express company, which is well organized to care for the business, having trucks at each end of the haul, messengers on the trains, blank delivery wagons, and the officials say the business is handled more satisfactorily say they then they could handle it in refrigerator cars on freight trains.

spoke to me about the article I think everybody takes 'The Bee' that there is needed legislation of this kind, no one will deny that it must not be of such a sweeping character as to deny the plying of absolutely necessary vocations, which are materially different in a metropolitan city and the small town. I believe unnecessary work is carried on in this city every Sunday, but I find a wide divergence among conservative men as to what is necessary and what is not. I am opposed to any law which denies the wage earner his pleasure and recreation, as such is the moral foundation of society."

Word over the telephone was received from O. D. Woodward, Friday morning, who says he is recovering nicely from the effects of the wounds he recently received at the hands of a discharged employe of the Kansas City Post. In regard to the theatrical situation at Omaha, Mr. Woodward announces that he will install at the Boyd theater in April a stock company on a higher plane than any he has yet had. It will be devoted to the production of only high class plays. This plan is due to the unsettled conditions of the show business in the east and his desire to keep his Omaha theater open full time. The bookings for the season until April will not be better than in any year by the stock company plan, but after April 1 arrangements will be made to take care of the high grade attractions and keep the house open to stock as well.

RESPIRE FOR PUSHCART MEN Ordinance Not Effective Until New Year at Request of Author, Councilman Brucker. At the request of Councilman Brucker, father of the pushcart restriction ordinance, the chief of police has notified the force not to enforce the terms of the ordinance until after January 1, although by its terms it became effective immediately and some pushcarts already have been driven from the proscribed area.

THE CHANGE in the rule makes the enforcement of the pushcart ordinance coincident with the abolition of lunch wagons. The latter will be discontinued with effect January 1, under its terms, but all horsemen expire January 1 and will not be renewed the sale of lunches on the streets must be abandoned with the new year.
