

BRIEF CITY NEWS

Have Roof Fixed. A. H. Ritchie rem'd to 503 Brandeis Bldg. Rinehart, photographer, 18th & Farnam. We always have Rock Springs Coal, Central Coal and Cokes company of Omaha, 15th and Harney streets. For Christmas—Second edition Mr. Mann's book, "The Evolution of a Great Literature," $1.50 net, postage 15 cents. Bookstores or 622 New York Life. Woman Gets Divorce and Alimony—Lillian Burns has secured a divorce in Judge Redick's court from William A. Burns. She charged extreme cruelty and was allowed $150 alimony by the decree. Salt Lake Beasts Extermination—Officers of the Omaha Commercial club have received invitations to the annual dinner of the Salt Lake City Commercial club, an affair celebrated in the west for the extravagance of its banquets and list of prominent speakers. Charge of Forgery—A complaint has been filed in county court charging Frank E. Foster of Florence with forging a check for $5 on the First National bank. The signature attached to the check was Jacob C. Jacobson. There are two counts to the complaint, one charging forgery and the other passing a forged check. Fifty Dollars for Killing Man—Suit against the Union Pacific growing out of the killing of Rufus Hamner by a train near Waterloo last June was settled in county court Monday for $50. The railroad offered to confess judgment for this amount and George Johnson, administrator of the estate of Hamner, consented. Inspection of Rooming Houses—Inspectors of the Department of Health will complete inspection of hotel and rooming houses by the first of the year. At some places the work is made difficult by the attitude of clerks and managers, but the commissioner is firm in his determination to examine all places, and under specific instructions, every house is thrown open. Bob Houghton in Britain—A card has been received by County Auditor Smith from Robert Houghton, who is touring England and Scotland, stating he arrived in Liverpool December 6 and was in Wigan, Scotland, when the card was written. He said it had been raining ever since he landed and that he would not live in Great Britain under any circumstances. Florence Items' Holiday Number—The Christmas issue of that lively weekly, the Florence Items, is a gem of beauty this week. It comes out with a handsomely illuminated cover and is well stocked with Christmas advertising, including many from Omaha. The newsy features are exceptionally good and give a very comprehensive review of the doings of that thrifty and enterprising community. Ad Surprised at River Work—F. D. Weir has returned from Washington, New York and Boston. Mr. Weir was one of the delegates of the Omaha Real Estate exchange and Commercial club to the National Rivers and Harbors congress held in Washington and declared his return the earnest work for river improvement surprised him when he attended the sessions. He had not expected the demonstration to take such large and serious proportions. Omahans Kill Rockefeller Buffalo—J. W. Elwood and J. E. Wallace of the North-western School of Taxidermy, Omaha, have returned from Belvidere, Kan., where they killed the two largest buffalo on the ranch belonging to Frank Rockefeller. The meat was shipped to Omaha. The bulls will be mounted for the United States government. While there Mr. Elwood and Mr. Wallace enjoyed a quail shoot with Frank Rockefeller. Little Boy Breaks Leg Twice—Irvine Jetteron, an 8-year-old boy, living at 302 William street, fell from a garbage wagon Monday morning at Second and William streets and broke his left leg below the knee in two places. He was taken to the police station in the ambulance and attended by Police Surgeon Fitzgibbons and Dr. C. A. Newell. He objected to being taken home and was taken to St. Joseph's hospital. Flurry Hurts Nothing for Good—Colonel A. S. Mercer of Basin City, Wyo., is in the city on his way east. "The financial flurry has not injured legitimate going business in the state," said the colonel, "but it has delayed some few undertakings. We have plenty to eat and wear and our resources will not run away, so while some of them may be compelled to wait a little longer for development in the long run the result will be the same." LaFollete Boomer at Work—The LaFollete press bureau at Madison, Wis., is flooding Omaha with circulars in promotion of his candidacy for president. Several Omaha men prominent in politics received the literature Monday. The envelopes contain reprint of Wisconsin papers boomerang LaFollete for the republican nomination and a souvenir postcard containing the picture of the candidate himself. Christmas Mail Rush—The corridors of the Omaha postoffice was thronged all day Monday with parties sending out Christmas packages by mail. An additional force of clerks had been pressed into the service to help out in the big rush which surpasses that of any day thus far in the history of the Omaha office. The receipts of Christmas mail from abroad are piling up rapidly and all the substitute force of carriers is put on duty to help in its delivery. County Board Examines Out-Of—Members of the county board went out over the Lane cutoff Monday to examine the overhead crossings where county roads pass over the railroad tracks. The trip was made at the request of the Union Pacific officials, who want the board to pass on the crossings. There are three overhead crossings between the limits of South Omaha and Lane. The under-track crossings were examined by the board about a year ago. One Day For Shirt—Amos Jones appeared in police court Monday morning to answer to the charge of vagrancy. He had all the earmarks of a man who never works. "How long have you worn that shirt," asked Judge Crawford. "Ten days," was the answer. "Then," said the judge, "I will just give you a ten days sentence, and in the future I think this court will adopt the rule with vagrants to sentence them to as many days as they have worn their shirt." Leaves of Absence Granted—Leaves of absence have been granted the following officers of the regular army stationed in the Department of the Missouri over the holidays: Captain John McClintock, Thirtieth cavalry, Fort Leavenworth, an extension of five days; Captain Thomas J. Powers, Thirtieth infantry, Fort Leavenworth, for ten days; First Lieutenant George R. Allen, Sixth field artillery, ten days; Second Lieutenant W. H. Cowles, Fourth cavalry, Fort Meade, for three months, and second Lieutenant Louis Solie, Sixteenth infantry, Fort Crook, for fourteen days. Colonel Cody at Home—Colonel W. F. Cody has returned from Des Moines and Chicago, where he has been for the last week, assisting in the funeral arrangements of Lieutenant Clarence Stigt, who died suddenly from exposure in South Dakota. Colonel Cody will remain in Omaha several days at the Merchants hotel, taking this time to take a complete rest. William McCune, Colonel Cody's western representative, who accompanied Colonel Cody to Des Moines, has also returned. Mrs. Stott went immediately after the funeral to North Platte, where she will in the future reside with her mother. County Hospital is Popular—The cold weather and the financial stringency have combined to send more people to the county hospital in other cities are setting out. Approximately 225 inmates are being cared for, which is twenty-five more than the usual number. Superintendent Farrar ascribes the influx of inmates to the fact that numbers of men are being discharged from construction gangs by the railroads and that factories in other cities are letting out men. A large proportion of the recent arrivals are of the transient class who happened to get sick while passing through Omaha, and being without money had to be cared for at the hospital. Kindergarten Class Doll—The kindergarten teachers of Franklin school initiated a neat idea Friday when the Christmas exercises were held in the school. A large doll was neatly dressed and presented to the class by the teachers, who said the doll was to be the class doll and the property of all the girls. The doll was provided with a little dress suit case in which was a robe de nuit and the doll and the girls were told they could take turns talking the doll home with them, when they were to clothe it properly for sleeping and sleep with it. The little tots were delighted with the idea. Nothing Like It in Omaha. There have been fruit stands and candy stores before, but never a Fruit Emporium or a Candy Bazaar; simply because these must necessarily be on a large scale. Omaha has one now. The CRYSTAL CANDY CO. can justly claim this title. A visit to their beautiful establishment will convince all. Jungles of fruit and candy; tons of ice cream and fountain stocked with delicious soda concoctions. Liberal samples of candy for the asking. All orders promptly delivered. Telephone orders solicited. Tel. House, 22 Masonic Temple Bldg., 18th and Capitol Ave.

CHICKENS, CATS AND DOGS

Elements that Will Make Up Next Big Auditorium Show. TRI-CITY POULTRY ASSOCIATION Entries for Fifteen Hundred Birds Are Filed, to Say Nothing of the List of Four-Legged Creatures. Beginning Monday, December 23, and lasting until Saturday night, January 4, will be heard at the Auditorium, the crowing of the roosters, the cackling of hens, cooing of pigeons, meowing of the cats and barking of "purrs," for the third annual exhibition of the Tri-City Poultry association will be in full swing. Because the exhibitors come from a number of western states, the affair will be known as the "Transmississippi Poultry Show." Secretary O. D. Talbert has entries for more than 1,300 birds and the specimens at the coming show will be far superior to those of any other show. To make the show larger than first planned the time for receiving entries has been extended and exhibits will be received by the association until midnight of Monday, December 23, the officers requesting that poultry be shipped Sunday or during the day Monday, and it will arrive in time for the show unless delayed in transit. But the late entries will not be included in the catalogue which the association is to publish, giving the name of the exhibitor and the number and variety of fowls shown. To Hatch Eggs at Show. One feature of the show will be the hatching of eggs by the different incubator companies. Hundreds of eggs have been "set" in the machines two weeks before the date of the show so the little, downy chicks will burst from their shells to the delight of the many visitors. City folks who have never seen a chick come into the world and start on its journey to the butcher's knife or farmer's ax, may see the unique show for 25 cents, and be entitled to look over all the full grown birds, turkeys, ducks, geese, pigeons, rabbits and carves besides. But the show is not to be entirely a poultry show. Feathers and fur will retain the great auditorium, and some society cats will be quite as big a part of the attraction as the 1,300 specimens of poultry. Lusty lipped delegates to the big convention will begin to arrive Saturday, but the annual disturbance does not open until Monday, and by that time the best show place in Nebraska will be neatly decorated with sawdust, and the artists who have brought the back yard oratorio to Omaha for the benefit of fanciers and society folks, will be in their element. Aris' Jessie Pets in Apartments. By the rules of the association each entry is to have a front room with bath, facing the promenade. The birds will get the attention of the farmers and good people, while the felines will attract society, especially the women. "Faust," the famous Iowa cat who has grown round-shouldered carrying medals won at various cat conventions, is to be in Omaha with his attendants, as well as the cats from various parts of Omaha. As for the dogs, they will speak for themselves when the show opens. Some of those present have ribbons enough in the prize collection to decorate the Auditorium. As most of the prize dogs would give their medals and ribbons to get at the hands of the judges, they will be placed on the opposite side of the ring, and society will be between them and their dear foes most of the time, which will prevent disturbances of the peace. Police will have no time to settle quarrels between the cats and dogs, being too busy with Sunday law violators, and each animal is to be placed on his or her own honor to keep the peace, and not cover the visitors with fur, feathers and sawdust because of a rough and tumble rough house, which might keep people from attending the show. Many Special Premiums. Besides the regular cash premiums of the association, fourteen special premiums are offered by fanciers, manufacturers of poultry foods and other parties. These consist in everything from a silk hat for the owner having the best scoring cockerel to a dozen bars of perfumed soap for the best scoring hen. Then there are club specials from the following associations: American Flymouth Rock, International Rose Comb Black Minorca club, Silver Laced Wyandotte club of America, the Blue Andalusian club, the National White Wyandotte club, National Single Comb Buff Orpington club, American Black Minorca club, American Buff Cochin club and the Cornish Indian Club of America. Among the exhibitors will be some of the best known Nebraska poultry fanciers, a few of whom follow: Some of the Exhibitors: P. H. Patterson, Florence, Neb. M. C. Peters, 1113 South Thirty-third street, Omaha. W. D. Stambaugh, North Bend, Neb. George H. Lee, Omaha. Hopson, 282 Franklin street, Omaha. J. E. Talbert, 424 S. Street, South Omaha. Robert White, 233 Parker, South Omaha. C. B. Tower, Papillon, Neb. H. G. Klodde, Twenty-second and O street, South Omaha. P. J. McCaffrey, Columbus, Neb. Charles Bruns, 1215 International. John Pitts Roberts, South Omaha. J. W. Aiden, Papillon, Neb. H. H. Ward, 227 W. Avenue, Omaha. C. E. Grundy, South Omaha. J. E. Arnold, Thirty-second and I street, South Omaha. S. S. MISSION TOTS IN BIG CROWDS Children Overflow Quarters and Larger Ones Are Necessary. READY FOR SANTA CLAUS TO COME More Gifts for Girls and Boys Are Needed to Make the Auditorium Christmas Tree Complete Success. The children of the City Mission are holding the Sunday school market, to use the language of Wall street. Sunday school, common, which stood around par a few weeks ago and which frequently dropped far below that figure, soared to 122 on Sunday, December 15, and yesterday 120. In other words attendance at the City Mission Sunday school yesterday was 120. Miss Magee had looked for a big boom, but she hardly expected such a crowd that larger quarters would have to be sought. Yet that is what had to be done and a big contingent was sent up to the Union Gospel Mission room on Fourteenth street. The boom in Sunday school attendance just before Christmas time is as proverbial as the ubiquitous dutifunness and good behavior of the small boy and girl at the same season. But the City Mission ran away ahead of the average Sunday school boom. Nearly every regular scholar had brought a friend. In some cases these friends had attached themselves to regular scholars and refused to be shaken off, being grimly determined to "get in" on the good things of the season. One little regular boy confided to his teacher, "I tried to sneak off without Bill," he apologized referring to a pale and pinched little fellow who shyly stood in a corner of the Sunday school. "But he seen me and followed me. I knowed Sandy Claws ain't got enough for the regular children and I didn't want to make it no harder for him. I was going to give Bill part of my candy when I got home. But he was afraid he wouldn't get none." Alphonse, the uniquely named colored boy, was present and conducted himself with all the dignity of a regular scholar among the Christmas sporadic. Alphonse had brought with him a small colored youth who tried humbly to efface himself by shrinking into his patron's larger bulk. "Why, who is this little boy?" inquired Alphonse's teacher. "Oh, he's jes' a cousin o' mine," grinned Alphonse as they, seeing that his dear teacher smiled appreciatively he added, "He's liable to be 'roun' here mos' any old time, ain't you, Washington."
