It has been expected that today would see the conclusion of the case, but owing to the decision of several of the defendants to plead their own cause the hearing will go over until Monday. The former deputies are being tried on charges of treason

The final argument will be brief and formal. The prosecutor will limit himself to summing up the Blegal nature of the manifesto and the grave consequences which might have ensued had the people heeded its appeal. The defense will make its strong point on technicalities, holding that the crime, if any, was committed outside the country and that the government has failed to establish the individual responsibility of the defendants.
