(The Same Being Our Forty-seventh Maid
Who Has Gone to Smash Elsewhere.)
A week ago we had a maid,
Whose memory will never fade.
You should have seen Louisa!
She piled the plates on which we dined
So very high they called to mind
The leaning tower of Pisa.

At other times they did not lean,
When carried by our kitchen queen
(Whose other name was Dennis),
But rose as straight as spire or tree,
And then her model seemed to be
The Campanile, Venice.

The leaning tower was first to go.
And when it hit the floor below,
The havoc was appalling!
At once another crash occurred.
And then, alas! we knew we heard
The Campanile falling!

see its shattered remnants yet. Twas half our wedding dinner set—
The other half was Pisa.

My chatelaine her protest filed:

Pray leave, she cried, "ere I go wild!
For Pelion on Ossa piled

Would be sour next, Louisa!"

Prospects are not particularly bright or society this week and unless something more is added to the calendar the fashionables will have little beside club cetings a few informal affairs to enterain them. Of course the Monday mail may relieve things-it usually does-but anyone contemplates anything of unusual importance for the near future she as been remarkably successful in keeping quiet, for even the busy-bodies seem to know nothing about it,

But the busy-bodies have not been without food for gossip of another sort of late. There seems to be no end of things in the gossip has not gone beyond the "confiis, some of it-the fashionables are going D'Malley to sit up and take notice.

Just landed there. Miss Jessie Towne met PHOTOS AT THOUSAND EACH Life Size Prints for Which Photographer Uses a Room

as a Camera. Time was, and not so many years ago when ordering cabinet photographs at $10 or so a dozen was regarded as enough of a luxury to cause one to count over and over again the friends who really must be favored, while imperials costing twice as much were the height of extravagance. Today a photographer has just perfected likenesses at $1,000 apiece. These photographs are lifesize prints. To make these photographs the photographer has built a special camera, very likely the biggest ever for such a purpose. It is really an entire room, the black walls, ceiling and floor of which correspond to the cloth thrown over the ordinary apparplaced for the game and the high scores atus. Within this room camera the operator can walk about and accomplish wonders hitherto impossible to him.

Impressive as a thousand-dollar photograph sounds it is not so extravagant in one way as it seems. The other day a man dropped into the same studio and, seeing framed and hanging on the wall a replicaof a photograph of himself for which he had paid $200 for a single print, remarked: "I would rather have that photograph at the cost of an oil painting of myself than an oil gainting at the cost of the photograph." In other words, he and his family had got more satisfaction out of an expenditure of $200 than if he had paid a portrait painter the $2,500 or so that his means could as conveniently have afforded. What is is true of the $200 photograph is correspondingly true of the $1,000 photograph, for in the latter case the dimensions are brought up to the size of the conventional painted portrait. While the $1,000 photograph discounts the future a bit, the $100 article is already out of the class of rarigles. The finest made at this price, each, are carbon prints on canvass.

An Indescribable softness is furnished by this canvas, the texture of which is effect is that of a portrait in monotone, a rich brown in countless shadings that blend into a perfect whole. Such a photograph should, of course, be absolutely permanent. The same photograph in a carbon print on Japan paper costs $150. The size is twenty-five by thirty inches. As for photographs at $100 a dozenexquisite platinum prints eleven by fourteen inches, on large mounts that fold once -they are not merely an extravagance of the rich, but the moderately well-to-do

TEN THOUSAND-DOLLAR DEALS Brick Building and Frame Houses Change Hands on Two Transactions.

Leo Baroch, 505 South Thirteenth street. has bought the two-story brick building at 1217 Howard street, the lot being 22x132 feet, for $10,000. The property was owned by the Philadelphia Mortgage and Trust company, and the deal was made by Thomas Brennan. Mr. Baroch will move his plumbing shop from the present location to the property which he has just secured.

Quintilla Dresher, who some time ago bought a number of Omaha lots for an investment, closed & deal Saturday through Mr. Brennan's office for the A. E. Becker houses at 1129 and 1131 South Twenty-ninth Mrs. W. R. Davis, and corresponding secstreet, paying $10,000 for them.

By a combined and heroic effort the callant flame fighters finally succeeded in extinguishing the "seething caldron."

OMAHA LEADS IN CLEARINGS In Better Condition Than Any Other City with Exception of One.

The weekly statement of bank clearings again shows Omaha to be in the best condition financially of almost any city in the country, being surpassed by but one city in the per cent of increase for the week. Of all the leading cities of the country but four show an increase and they are the middle west cities-Omaha. Kansas City. Minnespolis and St. Paul. Omaha gained 18.4 per cent, Kansas City 4.4 per cent, St. Paul 5.7 per cent and Minneapolts 27.4 per cent. All the other principal cities show a loss.

WORK OF THE WOMEN'S CLUBS

Boston Biennial May Have to Wrestle with Troublesome Question.

WOMAN SUFFRAGE TO BE ISSUE

Clubs of Second District of Nebraska

Federation Will Hold Annual Meeting in Omahn Next Week.

Indications are that the eighth blennial meeting of the General Federation of Women's clubs to be held at Boston next June is not to be without that dangerous but camera whereby he is prepared to take undeniably interesting element known to conventions as an "issue." To the woman who keeps in touch it is perfectly evident that woman suffrage is to be heard from a Boston, but to her who watches the straws is apparent that this final declaration for independence that has long had the sympathy of the majority of the leaders of this greatest movemen, sor women, the General Federation, but that has been kept under as a matter of policy, can no longer be smothered. For the last ten years at each of its blennial conventions, the General Federation of Women's clubs has been asked to endorse woman suffrage, but al such resolutions have been carefully side racked because it has been realized that y the very nature of its organization the deration could not in safety so much as ven admit the subject for discursion in ts metings. At St. Louis in 1904 woman suffrage was finally presented to the conention, but it was entrusted to that woman pest fitted perhaps of any among the memership to handle it judiciously-Mrs. Sarah Platt Decker-subsequently elected president of the General Federation, and xperienced in municipal and state politics n her home state, Colorado, one of the four in the union that has granted woman full suffrage. Woman suffrage as presented by Mrs. Decker was a revelation to the great majority in that assembly, but there was no discussion of the subject. At St. Paul two years later fresh from a variety of legislative experiences encouraging and otherwise, resulting from the fede ration's pledge at Los Angeles in 1902 to work for reform in child and woman labor, apparently at close range, and the general agitation for a discussion of woman suffrage that refused to be quieted and that was only kept from the floor by the untiring and skillful efforts of the more conservative ones. In averting this the Colorado delegation, all good suffragists, and many of them well known politically, had an active part. But it is to be different at Boston next June. Few women now believe that the subject can be kept from coming before the house in one form or another. To begin with, Boston has been the hotbed of the movement ever since its inception and Massachusetts women believe in it. Another difficult thing to be overcome is the fact that such women as Mrs. Florence Kelly of the Consumers' league, Miss Jane Addams of Hull House, Miss Mary McDonald of Chicago University Settlement and a long list of other women equally prominent in the work for social reform and in the General Federation are among those most loudly demanding the ballot for women. That woman suffrage will be discussed from the floor of the Boston convention now seems more than likely, but that the General Federation of Women's Clubs will endorse it at that meeting is still a question upon which there is much room for doubt. Second District Meeting. The clubs of the Second district of the meeting in Omaha January 26, 27 and 28 Mrs. Edward Johnson of Omaha, vice president of the district, has issued the nvitation for that time that all the clubs may have the benefit of the programs of the state conference of charities and corrections to be held in Omaha then. All of the state officers and district vice presidents have been invited to be present. The Second district includes the Omaha Wom an's club, Dundee Woman's club, Woman's club of the railway mail service.
