The Eagles' lodge of Florence has taken a leading part in the civil affairs of that city and making it a pretty suburb of Omaha. Definite action was taken Wednesday evening when at a meeting of Fontanelle aerie, with more than 150 members, a resolution was unanimously adopted requesting the mayor and marshal to cooperate with the owners of all saloons and dillard and pool halls, in order that these the blinds may be removed from the saloon windows on Sunday

Florence is awakening to a keener sense of its importance and of its fine situation as a desirable residence suburb of Omaha. It has "gone Omaha one better" in the matter of sending delegates to the navigation congress in Sloux City, for, a citizen points out, Florence sent a delegate for every 600 of its population while larger cities sent only one for every 1,000 population. Florence paid the expenses of its delegates which other cities did not do.

Without any great blaring of trumpets. without much literature in regard to linelf. a very strong and worthy aggregation of singers and players announcing simply grand opera in Italian, or Italian grand opera, ventured its way yesterday into Omaha and stole out as quietly as it came, but it left an impression. Seldom, if ever, has so little noise been made beforehand about a visiting operatic company, and seldom has there been such unanimous opinion as to its excellence after it was

Mr. Ivan Abramson, the man behind this interesting organization, says that he has been watching the operatic situation for some years, and that while other managers have presented grand opera in English, English grand opers, and mixed repertoire, he is the first to organize a strong company of people to present in the most attractive way, and with fullest attention to detail, he standard Italian operas at prices which are certainly within reach of all. Grand opera as it is conducted in this country is certainly for the rich, or at least the very well-to-do, for the engaging of the biggest stars costs a large amount, and the prices must be high in order to give the manager an opportunity to come out even. Here is a company which presents no ultra-brilliant stellar attraction, but presents a balanced cast and that is what true opera production means. The costumes were in good condition and effective, the scenery was quite adequate and as Currier, Miss Brown, Mrs. Eva Wallace, tractive, the grouping and detail of the stage effects were most commendable, the admission fee was most reasonable. The chorus was not heavy here and light there, but pronouncedly solid, and sincere and earnest in all its work, which was of a high character. The orchestra was not large, but every man counted; the playing and support did not invite criticism. These two potential arms of the operatic body were in control of Signors Merola and Fornari; and a word about Signor Mercia; when this company comes again (as it Criss, Miss Fannie Howland, Miss Maud probably will very soon, in response to various requests and inquiries at the box office) it will be well to go and watch this energetic, wonderful worker. The people on the stage received many complimentary rounds of applause and acknowledged them; but down in front, with a magical baton in his hand, and music in his soul, and temperament from his innermost fibres to his finger tips, sat a man with a work to do, and he did it. Such clear, vitalizing, enthusiastic and sincere conducting is sure to get results, and much of the verve and dash and finish and confidence of the tont ensemble was to be laid with a bouquet at the feet of Maestro Merola.

Mme. Norrelli in the part of Leonora showed some beautiful top tones and gave to the part a very faithful portrayal, Her voice is one of beauty, as is evident from the work at the beginning of the opera in the afternoon, but through cold or hoarseness or lack of "timbre," as the French call it, in the lower and middle parts the voice became veiled later. Mme. Norrelli day with Mrs. Harry Wilkins.

Miss Katherine Hanting gave a kensing-eagerly looked forward to. As Azucena, ton for the Eianess club Wednesday, when Mile. Strauss displayed a voice of decided she shows that she has had good schooling. But even the best-known teachers, alas! have not yet recognized that darkenand sings as brightly there as she does higher up, will add greatly to her value as a singer. Her acting was never overdone. Manrico, in the hands of M. Louis Samollov, was well taken care of. His singing of this popular part was gratifying and at times positively astonishing; sure of his ground, confident in his tone delivery, earnest and artistic in his entire picturing of the Troubadour and his love. He was instantly in favor. M. Samollov will yet be heard from. He has much to commend him, but not the least is the fact that him voice was more brilliant and resonant and beautiful at the close than it was even at the beginning. Signors Oteri and Pezzetti in lesser parts gave good account of themselves at both performances. Signor Alessandron, as Count Di Luna in the afternoon was received with great splendid type of the traditiona! Italian singer, for in manner, gesture, acting, tone, production and general vocal equipment he gives one a feeling of satisfaction. His voice is full, virile and rich in quality, and while he seemed somewhat heavy in the famous "II balen," he soon warmed up The part of Henry was taken at night by Signor F. Zara, and in it he did some very good singing and fair acting. The voice is vantage. Mile. Almert played the part of Lucy.

Mr. and Mro. Brown left for Duluth and She had a very clear, well poised voice, from there they will go to Omaha, where excellent pronunciation, much colorature and not a little histrionic skill. She is she is already working on. She was enthusiastically received. Signor Torre as Edgardo was rather free with the part. He has a mighty good voice, a splendid man-ner on the stage and a decided gift in act-He made much of the last of the closing scene, and also of the quarrel scene after the sextet in the second act A considerable study of the legate siyle without which Italian singing is but sounding brass and tinkling cymbal would materially help the otherwise very interesting Signor Torre. (Pherhaps his name accounts for his use of what might be termed the 'evangelistic' style of tone-production.) Mile. Bossie did some splendid work in the part of Alice and is worthy of good things.

Relden Gives Some Ideas. 'I believe the Omaha corn show will do great service for the farmers of Nebraska and western lows, and that in establishing the big exhibition and short term course of instruction, which it is proposed to have in connection with the display, that Omaha will be doing a great thing for the farmers," said C. C. Belden of Thompson & Belden, speaking of the corn show, plans for which are now being

"It has seemed to me from the first that he educational value of the show is uppermost. Of course we must have something else to attract city people to the show, but the farmers will come, anyway, for the things they will learn about corn and grain. "It is already apparent that the intefligent handling of the corn will result in increased production. We don't need to say scientific, simply the right way to handie the seed and the right kind of seed. "If by having the corn show here, with the instructors front our agricultural colleges, we can give the farmers new ideas which will result in Thereased production. I do not know of a greater service Omaha business men could do the state.

"But I do not underrate the value of th corn show as an attraction. As I understand it, the show will not be a quiet or silent affair. I think the proposition to have a good band at the show would be a good thing. Make the display decorative, something on the order of the corn palaces. and while city people will come for the music, the novel decorations and the promenade, the out-of-town people will get the benefit of the educational part of the

"For this reason I favor the largest possible number of contributions. While large contributions will be necessary, I think the small ones do the most good, interest the most people and result in leaving the proportionate earnings of each in a fund, where the earnings on large contributions would probably be withdrawn." December Best for Hotels, Ralph Kitchen, proprietor of the Paxton hotel, said: "I am in favor of the corn show and favor holding it in December. From a hotel standpoint the December weeks will be better than most any other time. This year the traveling men were not at the hotel much during the holidays or the weeks just preceding. This is likely to be pleasure by the audience and he is a the condition the coming year, as it is almost every year. "With the increased hotel capacity which Omaha will have this year the large crowds can be nicely cared for. I believe the corn show will bring people to Omaha from outside, and the Auditorium will came nearer fulfilling the purposes for which it was erected.

"As an educational proposition I don't know of anything which would do more for the people of the surrounding agricultural territory than a great corn exposition, and when a farmer once attends and secures ideas which increase his crops he will want the show permanent and bring number with him pext year. It should offer advantages which are not offered at farmers' institutes and from the traveling schools from the agricultural colleges,"

While pretending to look at some underclothing he slipped the coat under his large overcoat, but not so carefully as to escape detection. He attempted to leave the store, but the woman in charge stopped him and demanded the coat. He gave it back and ran away. A boy ran for an officer and Captain Troutan arrived in time to make the arrest. Green was found to be intexicated when he arrived at the station. He said. 'T'm an honest man, a plumber and a good lodge member." These protestations availed him nothing and he went into the

The other case was that of Lewis Zabawa, newly arrived in the city from Poland. Plowing in January in the Southwest.

The farmer in the Southwest is plowing in January and Febru-He lives an out-door life the entire year, and is never shut in by blizzards and the like. Snow is almost unknown and it is seldom cold enough to freeze. He has none of the hardships of winter to bear. He does not have to build expensive barns for his stock, nor does he have to feed and shelter them all winter. Neither does he have to remain idle half the year.

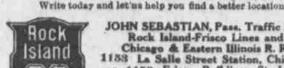

The Southwestern farmer has all the best of you. Besides avoiding all the discomforts and expenses of winter he has bought his land for a small part of what yours cost, and he can often raise two and three good crops on it.

Why don't you leave the cold winters and become a Southwestern farmer yourself? You can get a big farm in the Southwest for what a small farm costs in your state. In a few short years this cheap Southwestern farm will become a high-priced farm in a highly prosperous, closely settled community.

Now is the very best time for you to move to the Southwest. Two or three years hence you will have to pay more for your land.

The low rate occursions via the Rock Island-Frisco Lines on the first and third Tuesdays of each menth offer you an apportunity to see the Southwest-at very little cost. Take this opportunity to get away from the cold for a few days, and enjoy the delightful weather the Southwestern farmer is having.

Let me send you some interesting literature about the Southwest to read those long evenings. Our books about Missouri, Kansas, Arkansas and Oklahoma are full of photographs and reliable information—the very information a man thinking of settling in one of these states ought to have. I'll send you absolutely free any of these books you want. The Rock Island-Frisco Lines have no lands for sale and are only interested in getting good, energetic settlers for the fertile unoccupied lands along their lines. To such men every help possible is freely given.
