Making Omaha Known in the East

In such campaigns as that now being conducted by the Real Estate Exchange, the Commercial club, and other business organizations for the purpose of making Omaha, its advantages, resources and opportunities for investors better known in the east, the value of individual effort, along well-defined lines, is too often underestimated. The merchants of Omaha, for instance, have it in their power to secure, without the expenditure of any considerable amount of money. the best kind of advertisement of Omaha in the east that it is possible to obtain. It can be accomplished by a combination of business and hospitality.

Proprietors, managers and buyers of the big business houses, both wholesale and retail, are already in the east purchasing their stocks for the summer and fall trade. The total of these purchases runs into millions and eastern jobbers and manufacturers are ready to bid liberally for this trade. Let the Omaha merchants make it a condition precedent, if necessary, to placing their orders that the eastern man, become the guests of the Omaha business men . during Ak-Sar-Ben week next fall. Firms like M. E. Smith & Co., the Byrne-Hammer Co., Paxton & Gallagher, Kirkendall & Co., Brandeis & Sons, Kilpatrick & Co., The Bennett company, and the other big wholesale and retail firms of the city have a seductive argument to present to their eastern business friends, if and jobbing houses of the east are the busiest and shrewdest men in the nation. They know, most of them, that they send an immense quantity of goods to the west every year and that collections are usually exceptionally good. They do not know, except possibly by hearsay, of the sources of Omaha's commercial, financial and industrial prosperity, and stability. It would be a good thing for those menand a good thing for Omaha-if they could be induced to visit Omaha when the fall festivities are in progress here. It would be an eye-opener to the eastern men and result in giving the city a publicity boost more valuable than could be secured by the mere investment of money. Every retail and wholesale merchant in Omaha can aid in this campaign.

to have the east know us better. Invite your eastern business friends come out and watch Omaha grow.
