The town is at present without saloons, but a petition has been circulated asking that the question be submitted at the annual election in April, and as the petition has more than the required number of legal signers the proposition will go on the ballot. An Anti-Saloon league has been organized with a big membership and its workers are already busy, although the election is still a month distant. A considerable sum of money has been raised by the league to prosecute the fight against saloons, and the adherents of license are equally active and determined.
