An appeal was made by Whitney to the supreme court of the state and the supreme court affirmed the judgment of the lower court. Afterward execution was issued on the judgment and the sheriff of Harlan county levied upon the real estate of Whitmoter of health and long life; makes ney and it was sold to Harian county, the sheriff's deed, however, was not issued until February 13, 1899. November 29, 1898, Whitney conveyed by quit claim deeds the premises to John Everson and William O. Woolman, who are his attorneys. It was through Everson and Woolman that James Coffey, the plaintiff in this action, obtained title to the property.

The question then arose as to the validity of the sale under execution to convey the title to Harlan county. It was claimed on the part of Coffey that the county title was void for the reason that the judgment of the district court medical booklet containg some of the imposing, as expressed in the judgment, many convincing testimonials received a fine of $22,380, is void under the fourteenth amendment to the constitution of the United States, Coffey's counsel agreed have been cured, and doctor's advice to the proposition, that if the sum named was strictly a fine that it was properly rendered and an execution as such might issue on it.
