Fall Opening in Millinery

Wednesday and Thursday
18th and 19th September

THE grand climax of the world's highest artistic talents in millinery art; an exposition of Europe's best and America's best. The outstanding feature of Autumn Fashions in Millinery is the abnormal largeness of the hat, combined with the charms of pronounced youthfulness. There's a conservatism and gentility in these "exaggerated" sizes. Our styles are pronouncedly superior to anything shown elsewhere.

BOLL WEVIL IS EMIGRATING

Cotton Pest Has Started on Annual Eastward March.

MAY CROSS MISSISSIPPI RIVER

Water Has Heretofore Stopped Progress, but Fear is Expressed that Passage Will Be Made.

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 14.—The cotton boll weevil, which is about to begin its annual migration eastward, has today reached a point in Louisiana twenty-six miles from the Mississippi river, according to a telegram from the State Crop commission to Governor Blanchard. In the destructive migration of this pest eastward for several years past across all Texas and Louisiana the Mississippi river has been the most interesting milestone to the cotton interests and to scientists. Scientists declare the great river will prove no barrier and will not stop the advance of the costly pest into the eastern cotton belt. Today's news is regarded as making it entirely probable that the attempt at crossing of the first of the weevils will be made this season. The weevils, it is reported to the government, were found at Leland postoffice, in Catahoula parish.

MITCHELL'S NEW CORN PALACE

South Dakota City Intends to Display Resources of State to Uttermost.

MITCHELL, S. D., Sept. 14.—(Special.)—This is the season of the year when king corn reigns supreme in South Dakota, and despite the late season when the seed was planted the crop will be heavy in practically all sections of the state. As a usual celebration of the bountiful crop Mitchell will hold its fifth annual corn palace, beginning September 23 and closing on the 28th.

Mitchell as a corn city has received the greatest amount of advertising of any place of 5,000 inhabitants in this country, and this enterprise has come to be the pride of the city and the state. Mitchell, however, does not claim to be the originator of the corn palace idea. It had its inception in Sioux City, Ia., in 1887, but the enterprise failed to meet the expectations of its promoters and the project was finally abandoned. Profiting by the failure of its sister city, Mitchell conceived the idea of advertising the corn resources of the state and following different lines built the first building in 1892.

The enterprise was promoted by the business men of Mitchell under the management of an executive committee, of which L. O. Gale, was president; J. K. Smith, secretary; N. L. Davison, treasurer; the other members being John D. Lawler, Louis Beckwith, Thomas C. Burns, Charles C. Champeny and R. D. Welch. These gentlemen guided the first corn palace to a magnificent success in 1893. They erected a building that cost $10,000, decorated it with corn and grasses, and invited the people of the northwest to come and see it. They came in such numbers that at the close a little over $2,000 was realized from the enterprise. The second palace was held the following year and with the same resultant success. It was planned to hold the palace in 1898, but during the summer months the business paralysis set in all over the country and the enterprise was abandoned until such time as times became good again. No corn palace was held until 1900, when the board was reorganized and elected practically the same officers. Since then the corn palace has been held every succeeding year with varying success, and it is now conceded to be the finest attraction in the northwest.

In 1906 the corn palace idea had outgrown the building then in use and it was necessary to erect a larger structure. A larger space of ground was leased a block to the north, and there was erected a building 16x100, with a seating capacity of 5,000 people on the main floor, and the large balcony. It cost the citizens over $20,000 to build, but they had a structure that met the demands of the people. The corn palace for 1907 is well under way and will be completed in time for the opening of the exhibition. One of the big features in the agricultural display will be the products brought over from the Black Hills country, where, in the vicinity of Belle Fourche the United States government is conducting an irrigation experiment. It is designed to show the people of the country what can be accomplished in the arid sections by the use of land that has been irrigated from ditches. A carload of the best produce from the irrigated farms will be shipped here for the inspection of the public. The Sousa band will be among the attractions.

JAP CONSUL ASKS SAFETY

Appeals to Police of Seattle to Prevent Demonstrations.

CHIEF SAYS HE WILL KEEP ORDER

No Effort Will Be Made to Stop Chinese from Arming, but Display of Weapons is Forbidden.

PORTLAND, Ore., Sept. 14.—A special dispatch to the Oregonian from Seattle says: Japanese Consul Shimadzu has appealed to Chief of Police Wapensstern to prevent the Exclusion league from holding any kind of a demonstration that might lead to riotous acts in Seattle. A similar demand upon the police chief has been made by some of the newspapers and Chief Wapensstern assured the Japanese consul that whatever happened he would guarantee that the Asiatic quarters are not invaded by a mob.

The Japanese consul declared that his countrymen are not arming themselves to resist an attack. Efforts of the Exclusion league to induce the chief of police to disarm the Japanese and Chinese will not have any effect upon the officials. They will pay no more attention to storage of arms in foreigners' houses than in American homes, but will arrest any person, native or foreign, who is found to be carrying a gun.

OTTAWA, Ont., Sept. 14.—W. D. Scott, superintendent of immigration, left today for Vancouver in order to look into the whole question of oriental immigration. He will deal with the matter on the spot and will report any that are or are likely to be public charges. This step has been taken in accordance with Premier Laurier's telegram to the mayor of Vancouver.
