TWO NEW POLICE STATIONS

Plan Which Chief Hopes to Work Out Next Year.

MORE MONEY AND MORE MEN

Thirty Thousand Dollars Additional Appropriation Will Give Thirty-Five Additional Members to the Force.

Chief of Police Donoghue is looking forward to the coming year with some degree of pleasure since under the new apportionment he will have at the command of the department about $30,000 more than during the present year.

It is the hope of the chief during the year to secure two additional police stations. He wants one at Twenty-fourth and Vinton streets and one at Twenty-fourth and Ames avenue.

It has been suggested that, should the bonds for the new fire house near Twenty-fourth and Ames avenue be approved by the people, a slight additional cost would make possible a combined fire and police station.

One of the improvements the chief desires the most important aside from the additional men is a work house. "Such a place," said the chief, "would do more than anything else to drive petty thieves and tramps from the town. Not only would the vagrant thieves fight shy of Omaha, but a number of resident crooks would seek new pastures. The work house is the best preventive of petty larceny ever devised, for a man who would rather steal than work will often resist the temptation to steal where such crime means work harder than he would have to do if he refrained from crime."

An amended petition was filed in the case Saturday.

HIS LIFE AMBITION DASHED

Another Paragraph in the Sad Story of the Quebec Bridge Disaster.

For Paul L. Salapka, its designer, eighteen years of diligent toil counted for naught and the ambition of his life was dashed to pieces when the Quebec bridge fell into the St. Lawrence river. As a result he was nearly heartbroken as he boarded the train at Philadelphia to hasten to the scene to examine into the cause of the accident. Mr. Salapka has been with the Phoenix Bridge company since 1882, having come to the United States from Germany in 1880. He is a man about 35 years of age and has devoted his life to the study of engineering. He was educated in the university at Hanover, province of Prussia, Germany, and took post-graduate courses at Posen and other celebrated German institutions.

Eighteen years ago the energetic engineer began to draft the outlines of the bridge which he hoped would place his name among the engineers of the world. The contract for the Quebec bridge was obtained by the Phoenix company in 1903, and with renewed efforts Salapka entered into the work of calculating to the smallest fraction of an inch the details of the big structure. Almost night and day he and his corps of assistants bent to the task.

Finally the working plans were completed and submitted to the engineers of the Quebec Bridge company and the Canadian government. They were promptly approved, with commendation for their execution. Salapka watched with great personal pride the work as it progressed. Continually, he was devising wonderful machinery with which the heavy pieces of steel could be put in position. Much of this machinery was built specially for this work.

Mr. Salapka made frequent trips to the bridge and watched it grow panel by panel. A week before the disaster he returned from a trip of inspection to tell his wife that the object of his highest ambition in life was growing into a reality. His wife took even more pride in hearing the details of the bridge's erection. Everything seemed to be going better than planned. It was no wonder, then, that the expert designer laughed and called it all a joke when he was called to the telephone and told that the bridge lay a mass of twisted steel at the bottom of the St. Lawrence river. He laughed heartily, then hysterically as the news was impressed upon him as real. Tears coursed down his cheeks as he realized what it all meant. Determined to find the cause, the German engineer and designer sorrowfully took up his traveling bag, boarded the train and started on his journey.

Among the notable structures built by the Phoenix Bridge company are the Girard avenue bridge, in Philadelphia; the Chesapeake & Ohio railroad bridge, over a mile long, at Cincinnati, O., and a bridge over the Ohio river at Louisville, Ky.—Philadelphia Ledger.

NEED STEAM! Get It From Selected Food.

It is good to know the kind of food, those with weak stomachs and hearts can get along with, for when a man or woman is a little below par, an easily digested food is the thing that goes right to the spot.

A man in Kirksville, Mo., tells how he got out of trouble by using Grape-Nuts food. He says: "My trouble was intense suffering in the stomach. It was a gastralgia, but no medicine gave any permanent relief."

"In June of last year I began to grow much worse in every respect. I was terribly constipated and the stomach pains were severe. I ran down until I weighed only 120 pounds. I had to give up my business for my nerves were completely unstrung and I could not sleep more than two or three hours during the night, and that only by smothering during a lull in the pain."

"I tried almost every kind of food, but finally was put on Grape-Nuts and in a little while it began to make its worth known. I began to sleep better nights, my strength gradually came back, and I gained weight rapidly until a little while ago I weighed 185 pounds and have been a well man for months with never a touch of the old trouble."

"My bowels are perfect, the nervous trouble has gone. You can realize I appreciate the value of Grape-Nuts food. This is another evidence of the practical work of Grape-Nuts food in cases of weak stomach and bad digestion. It is the most scientifically made food in existence and contains absolutely nothing but selected parts of the field grains, so cooked and prepared as to admit of almost immediate digestion and assimilation, carrying with it the elements furnished by Mother Nature for rebuilding the nervous system, the gray matter of the brain and the solar plexus."

"When one gets from food what the body needs, it is easy to get well and keep well. 'There's a Reason.' Read 'The Road to Wellville,' in pkg.
