Mr. Ellsworth went to the place in March and is now ready to turn the po-

COST OF NEW COURT HOUSE

Forty Cents Per Thousand-Dollar Home for Million Bonds.

KENNARD FIGURES IT OUT

Use Sideslip Discussion at Real Estate Exchange and Exploits What Board Has Done Instead.

To take care of the interest on bonds for a $1,000,000 court house and retire half the bonds in twenty years would require only 40 cents a year from the man with a 1,000 home.

This was the estimate given to the Real Estate exchange by County Commissioner Kennard, who had figured the problem to find what a new court house would mean in taxes to the average citizen. A levy of 2 mills would be all that is necessary, he said.

The county commissioners had been invited to a complimentary luncheon by the exchange and after eating they were invited to talk on county finances, particularly on the court house proposition. W. G. Use sideslipped the question and spoke entirely of the deeds accomplished by the county board in the last two or three years.

Mr. Kennard was in favor of a new court house. Mr. Bruntner, who was in favor of delaying the vote on bonds until next year's regular election, or until a special election might be called. Their idea was that the voters are not ready for the proposition. Commissioner Solomon was not present.

Use Sings His Song. Mr. Use said the county had paid all its debts for the first nine months of the year and had $25,000 on hand for expenses of the remaining three months. The board had cut 25 expense bills in two years, he said, and had encountered only one appeal to the courts, that being in case of some land washed away by the Elkhorn river, for whose erratic actions the board did not think the county responsible. With no unexpected expenses, Mr. Use thought the county levy ought to be about 12.4 mills for several years.

Addresses complimentary to the commissioner on account of their good work in office were to have been made, but were omitted from lack of time.

Commissioner Gull of the Commercial club enlisted the support of the exchange in securing signatures to the petition asking the county commissioners to submit the question of annexation of South Omaha to the voters at the fall election. Several members took copies of the petition. It is necessary to have the names of 1,635 voters by Saturday morning, but to allow for those which may be thrown out on account of a question of registration, it is proposed, not to stop with less than 2,000 names.

Omaha Impresses Ohio Manufacturer So Well He May Locate Plant Here.

Charles M. Peters, a leading business man of Columbus, O., one of the founders of the Columbus Buggy company and at present at the head of the Peters Dash company, the oldest and foremost buggy company in the United States, was in Omaha Tuesday for a few hours.

"I am surprised at the marvelous growth of Omaha, particularly during the last year. This is the first opportunity I have had to get a partial view of your new business and jobbing houses. They surpass anything in the country for a city anywhere near Omaha's size. It far surpasses anything of the kind either in Columbus, Cincinnati or Cleveland. The twin M. E. Smith company's buildings are models of their kind. The other great business houses in your jobbing district are a revelation in the line of business architecture. Omaha certainly has a great future. There is a wholesome in the business enthusiasm and enterprise of Omaha that surpasses that of almost any other city. I am amazed at the number and energy of your retail business streets.

"I see there will soon be a necessity for our concern possibly to establish a branch house here in Omaha in order that we may share in your prosperity. This matter has been suggested to me and I may become a resident here before another year. I am going from here to the meeting of the carriage builders' national association in New York, which convenes Monday and shall have something to say there of my impressions of Omaha."

DISPUTE OVER GAS TERMS

Records Show City is Not Getting What Ordinance Calls For From Corporation.

There is a controversy between the Omaha Gas company and the city gas commissioner over the terms of the ordinance regulating the quality of gas sold. The September inspection shows an average of 282 British thermal units to the cubic foot, while the ordinance calls for 60 such units and the commissioner has notified the gas company to strengthen the heating power of the gas. The company claims the total shown by the commissioner is in excess of the amount required by the ordinance, holding that the 60 units required are to be the standard gross units while the commissioner insists they are net units, making a difference of about 6 per cent.

Another matter of difference is in the correction of the figures for temperature and air pressure. The commissioner carried his figures for a temperature of 56 degrees Fahrenheit and thirty inches pressure on the barometer. The company insists upon a correction to 32 degrees temperature and thirty barometric pressure. This would make a further change in favor of the company. Before the matter is settled the council may be asked to amend the ordinance to make the points at issue plain.

FESTIVE WOES FOR POLICE

Carnival Brings Usual Amount of Trouble to Officers.

CHIEF HAS HAND ON THE KEY

He Will Deploy His Men with Sagacity Tonight to Guard Against the Smooth-Handed Men.

Chief of Police J. J. Donohue was at his desk early Wednesday morning. "I might have known it," he said as he hung up the receiver of his busy telephone. "There is one of the 'smoothies' which has worried the detectives all night. It is a party called the 'smoothies' that he had been 'touched' during the parade Tuesday evening and lost some $45. Detectives have been hunting for pickpockets, but the man's pocketbook, with $40 in it has been returned to the department by a woman on lower Douglas street, who reported finding it in her pocket after the man had left."

As a matter of fact pocket picking has been at its minimum during the Ak-Sar-Ben carnival and almost every complaining witness has found the money which they claimed to have lost. Not $100 worth of property has been "lifted" since Saturday evening, which included a number of small burglaries. Wednesday evening Chief Donohue expects trouble. If there is to be trouble at all, and has told officers to warn people leaving for the parade to hide their valuables, if they leave their homes alone. The chief also insists that when the parade passes all through the downtown district, the crowds about Sixteenth and Farnam and other crossings of Farnam street, are inexcusable, as the same features are shown and may be seen just as well from any point on Sixteenth street.

"If people would go as far north as Cumming street, or as far south as Leavenworth, they could see the parade," said the chief, "and there would be less danger of being injured or robbed."

Picking Up Suspects. For several days the police have been busy picking up persons whose actions seemed suspicious and besides a large number have been picked up who celebrated the carnival week by getting drunk. Judge Bryce Crawford has attached neat little fines to almost every one arrested, if for no other reason than their "misplaced civic pride."

Most of the victims have been frank in blaming the whole thing on carnival week, but the judge has been able to hold a large number for "ten days" who would have been working the crowds had they been at liberty.

"I was just going to the depot to meet my folks from the country," said a man Wednesday, with a three-inch strip of skin missing from his nose, which had doubtless fallen on some cobble stone. "The train was late and I—"

AFAIRS AT SOUTH OMAHA

Five Hundred Names Added to Registration List on Second Day.

An official count of the registration yesterday will show that about 500 names were added to the books in South Omaha. The lowest unofficial count in the city was at the first precinct of the Fourth ward where only 15 names were added. Of these 5 were republicans and 10 democrats. The largest registration was 63 in the second precinct of the First ward. Here there were 6 republicans and 18 democrats. In the first precinct of the Sixth ward out of 46 registered there were 23 republicans and 12 democrats. In the second precinct of the Sixth ward there were 41 republicans, 24 republicans and 10 democrats. The second precinct of the Third ward showed a small democratic lead, but not more than 6 out of 38 registrations. The average registration will be about 60 to the precinct. From the indications the republican registration will outnumber the democratic fully 2 to 1. This being the case the total lead of the republicans in the first two days of registration will be about 250. Judging from the experience of past elections and unless the scheme of registration has materially changed, many democrats will be registered as republicans. The opportunity is exceptionally good this year, however, for the republicans to capture South Omaha easily.

New Industry Organizing.

It is reported that the efforts of F. J. Trainor, the republican candidate for county commissioner, have interested a number of Kansas City people in a new industry in South Omaha. The proposition is to contract with certain of the South Omaha packing houses for the unfinished product of hair from the hog killing floors and establish a plant for drying and preparing this for commercial purposes. It is understood that two or more acres of ground near the Swift plant is available for the erection of such a plant. Some members are of the opinion that an open-air treatment of the hair would produce a better grade of the product and others think the more economical plan would be to introduce a steam process. This would necessitate a large outlay at the beginning. L. C. Collins of Kansas City was in South Omaha a week ago to look into the advantages of the project and he is expected to return in the course of a few weeks for further investigation. Several of the packing plants already have the necessary machinery to complete the processes for their own supply of hair. How many might be contracted with to advantage is unknown.

Tannery Rumor Denied.

Every month or two a rumor gains credence that one or another of the South Omaha packing houses is about to erect a tannery in connection with the present packing establishment. The last report referred the matter to the Cudahy company, but many inquiries failed to develop any foundation in probability. In fact the officials took pains to explain why such a project would not be feasible.

More Trouble for Queenan.

Joe Queenan was again arrested yesterday for leaving his wife. His last arrest was for breaking and entering the Jetter brewery. He was then in the company of two vagrant women. The brewing company gave up the prosecution. Queenan has been arrested for trouble with his wife on sev-

OTHER, WITH A HANGOVER EXPRESSION ON HIS FACE.

"My mother is very ill and I wanted to leave yesterday afternoon for Craig. Missed the train and waited until morning."

"Now you've missed another one. You have no money to go to Craig and you got drunk going to the bedside of your sick mother," said Judge Crawford. "Your visit would do her no good. Ten days for you." The judge had been putting up a stove at home and was not in the best of humor, according to the "hang-on" lawyers who wait before the people's bar to grab clients. City Prosecutor Daniel grew hoarse from calling the names of arrested persons and the clerk's table looked like a Mexican monte table on a busy day. Over 200 cases have been heard by Judge Crawford since Monday morning, and not one of them was more serious than to draw more than thirty days in jail or $100 fine.
