RIP VAN WINKLE AT THE BOYD

Thomas Jefferson and Company Give Fine Performance of the Comedy.

The rich comedy and tender pathos of "Rip Van Winkle" have not yet lost their charm. Smiles and tears are produced through the play as of yore, and the indignation aroused by Rip's irresponsible vagabondism is as earnest as the sorrow for his mishaps is genuine. Immortality is certainly the part of this tender tale of folk lore, for it goes to a spot that the more involved discussions of human affairs can not reach. It is humanity in its plainest. That is why people continue to laugh and cry and feel interested beyond the ordinary in the play. That is why Thomas Jefferson is doing a good work in keeping it alive for a generation that did not know his revered father. It is a worthy undertaking. And, after him, will come another comedian of taste who will hand it on, and so it will go on and on, because it contains the elements that will please as long as men and women have hearts to touch and tears to shed.

Mr. Jefferson follows his father very closely, feeling that a certain amount of reverential fidelity to the example of the still well remembered master of the role is proper, yet he gives some little touches of his own personality. Without departing from the play as a whole, his conception of Rip is good and his way of rendering the part is such as gives it in its best light. His parting with his family at the end of the second act is especially a strong piece of acting. In drunken dignity, mortally offended by the righteous aspersions of his wife, Rip stands in the doorway and proceeds to prophesy what follows with a gravity that is almost ludicrous, saving the scene from the effect that would follow a wife's driving her husband into the storm under any provocation. His return to his home is almost made an effective bit of comedy.

Miss Maggie Moore is very well cast as Gretchen. She has avoided the temptation to make the wife of Rip, a virago, and makes her a loving, gentle helpmeet, whose patience has been sorely tried by a worthless scamp of a husband, who would land in the divorce court in about a minute this day. The rest of the company is well situated and the performance as a whole is worthy.

The Boyd theater was well filled last night by an audience that enjoyed the show immensely, and applauded the work of the actors with great enthusiasm. The bill will run till after Saturday night, with a matinee on Saturday afternoon.

"Are You Crazy?" at the Krug.
The musical farce, "Are You Crazy," drew a good house Thursday night at the Krug theater. Jack Freshman, a lawyer, has for his first client a woman, Angelina Smithers, who gives him a large retainer to find her "affinity." She furnishes him with a good description of him and also his photograph. Jack disguises himself and palms himself off on her as the affinity, and the ruse works well until the real affinity shows up. Many ludicrous situations are presented before she discovers the dual character of her affinity. Some good musical numbers and specialties are introduced during the play. Frank Damsel and Francis Parr made a hit with their burlesque opera selections, and Margaret Gallagher did some meritorious specialty work. The Teddy Bear chorus was unique and the string quartet. The play will be repeated Friday night.

REV. C. W. SAVIDGE ROBBED

Rev. Charles W. Savidge tied his horse in front of his residence at 5:30 p. m. Thursday on his return from performing a marriage ceremony. When he came out at 9:20 the horse and buggy were gone. The animal was hitched to a runaway with a black mare, 7 years old and weighs about 1,000 pounds. The police station was notified, but no trace of the animal or vehicle was discovered.

"I thought a lot of my horse and buggy and my loss means much to me," said Rev. Savidge, "but the thief also stole my Bible, and that is a lot of that. I wish some of you newspaper men would get into communication with the Lord today and ask Him to return my property to me. If you would communicate with Him it would do you good, whether I got my property back or not."

Found on the street. When you find something that doesn't belong to you it should be advertised in The Bee's want columns. Pretty nearly everybody reads The Bee, and those who don't read it are not the ones who have valuable things to recover.

At Happy Hollow.
Mrs. C. S. Lobingier was honor guest Thursday at a pretty luncheon given at the Happy Hollow club by a few of her old friends who were officers of the Daughters of the American Revolution at the time of Mrs. Lobingier's departure for the Philippines. The table was attractive with a centerpiece of salvia. Those present were: Mrs. Lobingier, Mrs. Charles Offutt, Mrs. E. Barklow, Mrs. J. R. Webster, Mrs. C. E. Johannes, Mrs. B. C. Hall, Mrs. W. D. Williams, Mrs. J. F. Mawhinney, Mrs. A. C. Troupe, Mrs. Charles Sweet and Mrs. J. W. Griffith.

NOTES ON OMAHA SOCIETY

Dance and Luncheon at Country Club for Out-of-Town Girls.

BALL OVERSHADOWS ALL ELSE
Other Social Functions Shrink to Secondary Consequence Compared with Coronation Ceremonies—Visiting Girls Entertained.

All other social amusements were secondary yesterday in comparison with the Ak-Sar-Ben ball. Never has society manifested more genuine interest or tried to make out-of-town visitors have one joyous good time as they have this season. It would seem that a repetition of the same event year after year would find society's interest waning, but there has been a marvelous revival of interest this year and the new features of entertaining the out-of-town maids by a committee of the prominent women of Omaha has contributed largely to making the week a pronounced social success. The out-of-town maids of honor arrived Wednesday morning, the day of the electrical parade. In the evening they were honor guests at numerous window parties, followed by suppers at the various homes and clubs; Thursday they were honor guests at luncheons and in the evening the board of lady managers for the ball gave a large dance for them at the Country club. It proved a delightful affair, about 100 guests being present. It also afforded the desired opportunity for the visitors to become acquainted, so that they will not feel like strangers at the ball. Friday, this same committee, which includes Mrs. Joseph Cuddeby, Mrs. Luther Kountze, Mrs. J. R. Soobie, Mrs. Victor Caldwell and Mrs. Joseph Barker, Jr., gave a luncheon at the Country club. Their guests were seated at seven small and one large table, which were beautiful with pink roses. Those present were Miss Mary Lee McShane, Miss Beanie Brady, Miss Ruth Prentiss of Lincoln, Miss Ruth Raymond of Lincoln, Miss Marion Connell, Miss Hazel Connell, Miss Dutch, Miss Nightingale, Miss Helen Davis, Miss Duff, Miss Perkins, Miss Willing, Miss Bowley, Miss McMillan, Miss Louise Burnham of Lincoln, Miss Ruth Bressler of Wayne, Miss Hansen, Miss Sneeve of St. Paul, Minn., Miss Mason, Miss Mabel Marr, Miss Anna Bourke, Miss Francis Wessels, Miss Kimball, Miss Ann Brown, Miss German, Miss Rogers, Miss Gwendolyn White, Miss Elizabeth Congdon, Miss Lucy Updike, Miss Evans, Miss Jewell, Miss Rix, Miss Webber, Miss Meyers, Miss Farrell, Miss Ada Kirkendall, Miss Marion Johnson, Mrs. Sam Caldwell, Mrs. Ten Gallagher, Mrs. George A. Jody, Mrs. P. H. Davis, Mrs. John A. McShane, Mrs. John B. Brady, Mrs. F. P. Kirkendall, Mrs. Barlow, Mrs. C. H. Wilhelm, Mrs. T. J. Mahoney, Mrs. J. E. Baum, Mrs. W. G. Watters, Mrs. Morgan, Mrs. A. ### REPAIRS TO WATER PLANT

Improvements to be Made Engaged Time of Officials Home from the East.

E. M. Fairfield and A. B. Hunt of the Omaha Water company returned Friday morning from a trip to the east, where they consulted with the president of the water company regarding necessary improvements and repairs to be made to the plant. The company has installed four new boilers this year and two of them are just being put into commission. Work on this improvement is believed by local officials to be one of the utmost importance, and they hope to have authority to proceed with this work.

While company officials are busy talking of improvements and possible extensions of the Omaha Water board is not idle. There will be a special meeting of the board Saturday night at the city hall to consider the proposition for a bond issue for a new water plant. It is not probable that final action will be taken Saturday, the chairman of the committee dealing with the water plant experts predicting an adjournment until next week, by which time the report of the special engineers will have reached Omaha. This report was practically formulated during the visit of the experts to Omaha last month and the matter was placed in the hands of M. L. Holman of St. Louis to be put into shape for the water board. It is expected that the report will show a detailed plan with an estimate of cost considerably below that fixed by the appraisers as the value of the Omaha Water company's plant. On this report the board will consider the proposition for a bond issue to cover the cost.

Twenty days' notice is necessary for an election to vote on a bond proposition and there will be time enough after next Wednesday to this purpose. Members of the Water board are not backward in predicting that a request for a bond issue will

FIRST CAR OF NEW CORN DUE

Initial shipment to Omaha Market Comes from Pottawattamie County.

The first car of new corn for the local market is due to arrive Sunday or Monday at Droge Bros' elevator at Council Bluffs. It probably will be offered for sale on the floor of the Omaha Grain Exchange. It was grown in Pottawattamie county, Iowa.

"That western Iowa corn looks like cord wood," said Elmer J. Kiddie. I drove a couple of days through the country around Underwood a short time ago, and the crop surely looked enormous."

Hunking will not be general yet for some time. The field which yielded the first shipment was of unusually early grain.
