New York Woman Talks of Imposition Upon Professional Musicians by Clubs that Pose as Helpers.
The May educational meeting of the local Women's Christian Temperance union was held Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. W. C. Hughes, 2722 Charles street, and was largely attended. During the business hour it was decided to send a communication to the Board of Fire and Police commissioners asking the enforcement of the Slocumb law in the removal of screens from the windows of saloons in the city. In pursuance of a plan for scientific temperance instruction in the public schools the union will investigate a plan for contest essays on temperance subjects, now employed in the schools of Kansas, with a view to introducing it in the Omaha schools.
A program followed, including vocal numbers by Miss Elizabeth Hamilton and Miss Violet Hughes and a paper on "Motherhood" by Mrs. M. P. Roe, which was given originally at the temperance institute at South Omaha recently and repeated by Y. W. C. A. Building for Pittsburg.

She said in part:
I am not about to bring to your consideration a dead matter, but in the musical world, but to place the professional musician and his interests in the foreground. It has been shown that the best charity is in helping people to help themselves, and the noblest and truest philanthropy is not in giving alms, but in seeing that the blind are enabled to see, and the lame to walk, and the deaf to hear, and the ignorant to be taught. We are organized clubwomen, help to work out problems dealing with human nature, free health, education of the blind, care for the crippled, and help for the poor, yet as clubwomen are holding what may be termed an un-

SEVENTEEN NEW DOCTORS

University of Nebraska Confers Degrees on Omaha Medical College Graduates.
DR. SENN OF CHICAGO ADDRESSES CLASS
Impresses Upon the Members Importance of the High Calling of a Physician and Urges Faithfulness to the Trust.

Seventeen young men and one young woman, graduating students of the Omaha Medical college, the clinical department of the University of Nebraska College of Medicine, were given their parchments at the fifth annual commencement of the school, held at the first congregational church, Thursday evening, and the degree of doctor of laws was conferred upon a member of the profession in recognition of his heroic, self-sacrificing work in the advancement of knowledge regarding disease, which sacrifice resulted in an illness rendering it impossible for him to be present.

The members of the graduating class who were granted diplomas were John Franklin Allen, Elmer William Arnold, Edgar David Banghart, Mathilda Lovisa Berg, John Buiss, Edgar Christy, John Jacob Foster, Robert Anderson Hamill, John Fay Hyde, John Beckman Potts, Charles Stein, Charles Stewart Stokes, Guy Percival Stokes, Edward Miller Ware, Merie Frank Warner, Charles Henry Willis, James Madison Woodard and Merlin E. Wyatt. All of these marched before Chancellor E. Benjamin Andrews of the university and were handed their diplomas, except Dr. Arnold, whom illness resulting from overwork rendered unable to be present.

The program opened with music, after which Rev. Edwin Hart Jenks of the first Presbyterian church pronounced the invocation and Dean Henry Baldwin Ward administered the oath of Hippocrates to the candidates and then presented them. The degrees were then conferred by Chancellor Andrews, when he introduced Dr. Nicholas Senn of Chicago, pronounced the best known surgeon in the world, who read the commencement address, the title of which was "The Choice of a Profession."

Address of Dr. Senn.
In beginning his address Dr. Senn rested for some time on the importance of carefully choosing a profession after the evident inclination of the subject. The choice, he said, should be made by the man or woman personally, and not by a parent or other person for him or her, as this has frequently led to failure and worse. When he arrived at the point of taking the step, in his discussion, from among the three professions which he characterized the most useful to mankind, theology, law and medicine, he said the most serious and responsible of all is the last named.

The speaker enjoined the class that now, before entering on higher study, each member give the matter of fitness and aptitude grave consideration, in order that a change might be made still early in life. But if each has honestly and unqualifiedly continued in spite of pitfalls and drawbacks, he urged even greater study and harder work than ever and wished all good speed.

In beginning their careers, Dr. Senn mentioned three things that should always be kept in mind, first, the value of time; hard and talk little. Time, he said, is the most valuable asset of each and should be well invested.

"During the span of our lives," he continued, "there will be great revolutions in the practice of medicine, and it will require all the time you can give to study and reading to keep up with the improvements. Never sink into commercialism," he admonished with emphasis. "The profession is too sacred to be used for sordid purposes. I must acknowledge with shame that there are quacks and dishonest doctors, who are as baited to the sacrificial, conscientious, well-meaning members of the profession."

Dr. Senn closed with a call for endeavor from humanitarian impulses alone, and not for fame, wealth or social reward, and told the class to remember the value of united effort and co-operation in order to gain ground in medicine and surgery.

Degree for Dr. Carroll.
The degree of doctor of laws was conferred on Dr. Ames Carroll, who lies ill in bed at Washington as the result of his heroic sacrifice in the cause of the fight against yellow fever, allowing himself to be infected to give an opportunity for experiments on his person. The honor was conferred upon him because of this service.

Proclamation to Confering Degrees.
James Carroll, doctor of medicine, major that surgeon in the army of the United States, scholar, writer, teacher and inspirer of youth, professor in the George Washington university, citizen of noble life, patriot, investigator, critical contributor of biological science, philanthropist, demonstrating for the benefit of science and humanity, at the forefront risk, the actual shortening and the almost loss of your career in the yellow fever, and for this sublime deed, standing by fore mankind as its most meritorious benefactor now alive, in whose presence the face should bow with bared heads, on you, in recognition of such virtues, attainments and immortal but unremunerable services. I do, by order of the regents of the University of Nebraska, and in accordance with law, confer the highest academic honor granted in America, the degree of doctor of laws. It taken whereof please accept this diploma.

A letter from Dr. Carroll, written in bed, was read by Dean Ward, in which he expressed his extreme regret at being unable to be present and mentioned his appreciation and gratitude for the act. A resolution was also read by the dean, passed by a committee of the alumni of the University Medical school, in which the work of Dr. Carroll was commended.
An informal reception for Dr. Senn, alumni, graduates and guests was held in the church parlors, with refreshments, after the conclusion of the program.
The annual alumni luncheon and reception to the seniors was held at the Cheasapeake restaurant at 1:30 p. m., followed by the annual business meeting of the Alumni association.

ROYAL ARCANUM OPEN MEETING

Interesting Program of Music, Addresses and Awarding of Prizes.

Union Pacific council of the Royal Arcanum entertained its members and their friends at an open meeting last night with a musical program, cigars and an address by Judge Sutton on the work and efforts of the juvenile court in this city.
Several members of the grand council of Nebraska were present to award prizes to the members of the order who had secured five or more members between February 14 and April 22, prizes being awarded to B. F. Lewis, Robert O. Steward and P. A. Matthews of Overland council and to W. H. Jones and S. P. Postwick of Union Pacific council, S. P. Morris making the presentation remarks.
On behalf of the grand council, Grand Regent H. M. Compton of Cedar Rapids, Neb., presented a souvenir memorial to N. F. Richard that had been authorized at the last session in the form of a past regent's jewel.
Judge Sutton said: "The object of the juvenile court is to do with the boys and girls who have no homes and to improve conditions or find homes for those whose surroundings are not good for the growth and proper development of the child."
Soles were rendered by Mr. Pryor, H. B. Payne and Captain Dunn and were roundly cheered, each responding.
E. S. Thompson favored the audience with Jack Crawford's (the poet) recitation, "When Bill Comes Home," in a very realistic manner.
Dr. Baird responded with a few remarks upon how the juvenile court could be assisted by establishing playgrounds where the boys "could blow off steam" and not keep an eye on the officer's beat should they happen to be playing in some unoccupied vacant lot.
Dean Beecher expressed his pleasure in attending the meeting and made a few complimentary remarks about American citizenship as compared with those he observed while in Europe last year.

DAVY CROCKETT AT THE KRUG

Robert Braylock in the Name Part Gives Good Performance of Stealing Play.

The Elmore stock company presented that old favorite, "Davy Crockett," at the Krug last night to a well filled house. Robert Braylock as David Crockett is all that can be desired. After many years he meets his old sweetheart, Ella Vaughn, and the supposedly dead center of his love are at once rekindled. She is in company with Neal Crampston, to whom she is betrothed, and they are overtaken in the woods by a snowstorm and Crockett gives them shelter in his cabin. All night the storm rages and the hungry wolves surround the cabin and try to jump through the windows and doors and Crockett wards them off while Ella's impulsive lover falls asleep. During the night Crockett rescues Ella from "Lochinvar" to her. She does not grasp his meaning at the time, but later, after the party has been rescued from their perilous position, and Ella and her lover, whom she does not really love, are about to have the marriage ceremony pronounced by the preacher, Crockett proves himself a sure enough Lochinvar, and steals the bride and bears her away on his horse. The supporting company is strong and the stage effects good. The play will be repeated Friday and Saturday nights.

S.S.S. CURES BLOOD POISON

The first symptom of Contagious Blood Poison is usually a little sore or ulcer which does not always excite suspicion because of its insignificance; but as the poison becomes more firmly rooted in the blood, the mouth and throat ulcerate, copper-colored spots appear, a rash breaks out on the body, the hair begins to come out, glands in the neck and groins swell, and often ulcerating sores form on the limbs, hands or face. But this is not all: if the poison is allowed to remain it works down and attacks the bones, causing necrosis or decay, and makes a complete physical wreck of the sufferer. It will not do to tinker with a disease so powerful as Contagious Blood Poison, for every day the virus remains in the blood the trouble is progressing toward a more dangerous stage, and may in the end get beyond the reach of any treatment. There is but one certain, reliable cure for Contagious Blood Poison, and that is S. S. S., the greatest of all blood purifiers. This remedy attacks the disease in the right way by going down into the blood and forcing out every particle of the poison. It makes the blood pure and rich, strengthens the different parts of the body, tones up the system and cures this humiliating and destructive disorder permanently. The improvement commences as soon as the patient gets under the influence of S. S. S. and continues until every vestige of the poison is driven from the blood, and the sufferer completely restored to health. S. S. S. is not an experiment, it is a success and has cured thousands of cases of Contagious Blood Poison in every stage, and being entirely free from minerals, is as safe as well as certain treatment. If you are suffering with this debasing disease get the poison out of your blood with S. S. S. before it does further damage. Special home treatment book on the disease and medical advice sent free to all who write.
