Large Delegation of Commission Men Make Trip to Alliance.

ATTEND STOCKMEN'S MEETING

Member of Exchange Sheds Some Light on Vexed Question of Payment for Live Stock Which Is Condemned.

An unusually large crowd of South Omaha commission men left Wednesday evening for Alliance to attend the meeting of the Western Cattlemen's association The party was under the leadership of Secretary Stryker of the South Omaha Live Stock exchange. The delegation was somewhat larger than usual, owing to the determination of the local commission men to impress on the stock raisers the importance of the crisis now at hand, namely, the contest with the packers over the matter of the purchase of cows. The delegation left over the Burnington railroad in a special sleeper. The party reached Alliance about 2 p. m. yesterday, where great preparations had been made to receive them and the other members of the association. Senators Brown and Burkett will play prominent roles in the meetbrought against her by Williams for dam- ing. Representative Kinkaid will also be present. Some such treat awaits the Omaha men this time. The delegation will return to South Omaha Monday morning. Consumer Pays the Loss.

"Few people know what a wide influence government inspection has on the markets of the world. Fewer yet know how many individual crees of condemnation occur, said a commission man of long experience yesterday. "For instance, I happen to know that at one packing house today 100 hogs were condemned for tuberculosis and other diseases. This looks like a very large item and it is, truly. But it is the very fact that our government seizes this diseased pork that has opened up the European markets to American products more E. C. Enapp to Sunday Schools—The than any other factor. Our export is clean Sunday schools of Omaha will unite in a and healthy and commands a third larger price than it did before inspection was inaugurated. So you see the mest packer in the increased market gets the benefit or evening to listen to an address by E. C. at least very ample remuneration for the animals lost. Of course, the item, when placed in the profit and loss columns of the packer's books, amounts to an enormous sum in a year. It may equal $135,000 for each of the larger packers of the country. Looking on this item, the shareholder would naturally say to himself: great loss being saved should go to increasing the dividends.' Naturally, therefore, he would favor putting the loss back on the raiser of the stock. The shareholder forgets, however, that this item of profit and loss has been reckoned on by the management, both in fixing the price paid for live stock and the price asked for beef or other products. Therefore, the loss by inspection to the packer is absolutely nothing, except on a paper balance, for the packer fixes both ends of the market. But you can see plainly that the consumer of meats pays the loss eventually by the smallest fraction of a per cent add to the price of the meat which he dally consumes. The expense is inconsiderable to him and he cannot feel it. Neither can the packer feel It. But if the loss is put on the actual shipper of the stock it will mean an acute and personal loss to him, sometimes to a The proposed excursion to Bellevue was third or a half of his band. Programs Arranged for Succeeding

Days to Culminate Tuesday Evening, When Secretary Taft and Judge Spencer Spenk.

With a reception to the clergy of Omaha the first part of the program for the formal opening of the new Young Men's Christian association building at Seven teenth and Harney streets was carried out Thursday night and ministers representing nearly every denomination and faith in the city inspected from top to bottom the beautiful structure, in groups in cure of a guide and then gathered in the gymnasium room on the first floor, after being served with a light lunch, to listen to a speech by Willlam E. Sweet of Denver, president of the Young Men's Christian association of the Colorado metropotis.

In the receiving line as the guests entere the building were the local officers of the association, and when the visitors had been welcomed at the door they were held for a brief period and then sent to the fifth floor, where the dormitory was looked over carefully, the fourth, third, second and gymnasium floors being inspected in turn-George G. Wallace was chairman of the reception committee and had charge of the arrangements for the evening. Miss Shadduck's juvenile orchestra provided music for the entertainment of the guests.

The address of Mr. Sweet was the only one made during the evening. Mr. Sweet as been an active worker in Young Men's Christian association matters, and gave $25,000 to the building fund of the Denver organization. Hesides being president of he local branch there, he is also president of the state association, and is stopping off in Omaha now while enroute to attend the students' conference at Lake Geneva, where he will preside.

His talk was devoted to the work of the association and its connection with the church. He pictured the scope, purpose and regults of the association's activities. To give an idea of the interest in the association and the financial greatness as represented in its buildings, he said that during the time devoted to the raising of the fund for the erection of the Omaha building there was enough money raised for like purposes in the United States to build a score of such buildings as the one in

Mr. Sweet argued strongly for foreign missionary work on the part of local bodies of the association to teach brotherhood and the lessons of Christ, saying the work of the society does not end at the Pacific or Gulf of Mexico coasts, but extends into the lands of the uncivilized. He said he was glad to know the Omaha body supports a foreign missionary

SUCCESSOR TO W. J. C. KENYON James L. Paxton, W. S. King and Lee Spratlen Mentioned by

The dispatches from Chicago noting the election of W. J. C. Kenyon as general manager and a member of the board of directors of the Illinois Tunnel company, were read with considerable interest in the Union stock yards circles. Every one was inclined to show pleasure at the event which is looked on as a distinct promotion and honor to Mr. Kenyon. In his management of the South Omaha yards Mr. Kenyon has shown an ability and tact which have won him the confidence of nasjum for their benefit.
