PLAY GROUNDS AT JAMESTOWN

Friend of Children Equipe Ground with Home-Made Apparatus that May Be Inexpensively Duplicated at Any City.

Through the generosity of a friend of the children a novel model playground for underprivileged 300 children will be opened at the Jamestown exposition July 1 by the Playground Association of America. This ground will be unusual in that it will be home-made and contain not a single piece of patented apparatus. As a result the equipment may be duplicated by any good supervisor at small expense for any city or society that wishes to provide play facilities for its population. The entire purpose of the exhibit is to show municipalities and societies, particularly in the south, the great need in opening playgrounds. To further this the association hopes to be able to furnish those officials concerned with complete plans and specifications of the Jamestown plant for duplication elsewhere. Supplementing the exhibits on display will be a complete play center containing photographs of playgrounds in all cities which carry on such activities and complete data as to the cost of erection and maintenance and the number of people benefited. In addition there will be models in concrete form playgrounds in New York, Boston, Chicago and other large cities. A play week will be held in September, at which will be shown moving pictures of approved games and games in general taken at the association's play convention in Chicago June 20-22, in which 7,000 children will take part. This is the convention to which President Roosevelt, who is honorary president of the playground association, has urged every mayor to send an official representative.

The Shut-In.

One of the interesting organizations of New York City that is gaining ground in other large cities is called the "Shut-ins." The original society in New York now has a membership of over 1,000, among the bedridden, chronic invalids crippled and others who through infirmities are shut in from the outer world and the majority of whom have the additional burden of poverty. Concerning the society and its work its president, Mrs. Helen Brown, says:

"The Shut-in society never turned its back on a single person. It simply grows out of a desire to give other a few sufferers. It also is simply to relieve and cheer the monotonous and wearisome life of the sick, to encourage hope, faith, courage and cheer of the afflicted. To be a sufferer shut in from the outside one is all that is needed to entitle one to the Shut-in society. The Shut-in do all sorts of work in their efforts to help support themselves and the articles produced are received at the exchange for the necessities of the purpose. One of the luxuries enjoyed by the invalids through their membership is the use of wheel-chairs and invalid chairs which are lent to members unable to purchase them. Another is the clementary library and an atmosphere of comfort that affords by the surroundings being. One girl wrote to the president of the society asking if there was not some one who would be allowed to come to the house to help her. She was told to write away the weariness and fatigue and the sending of letters to invalids and the arrangement for mutual correspondence between members and associations has grown to enormous proportions. One warm-hearted New York girl who is an associate member of the society wrote to the president of the society asking if she could be allowed to come to the house of which she had never been seen, but with all whom she keeps in close sympathy and understanding by this means. Some of the most interesting and dramatic stories are discovered in the ranks of the Shut-in. Others are grumpy and complaining but nothing of interest will be established in every large community. A world of good might be accomplished through the agency."

Women's Work for Forestry.

Some idea of the work being done for forestry by club women may be gained from the following report made by the chairman of the General Federation forestry committee, before the council meeting held recently at Jamestown:

The Grand Army Veterans Robbed.

BOONE, Ia., June 15.—(Special Telegram)—Old soldiers returning to Boone this morning left with wholesale robbing carried on in their cars before leaving the encampment at Dubuque. Pockets were picked, tickets stolen and one Ames man lost $20 in money and six valuable notes. Pension Agent Young of Des Moines took charge of the parties who lost tickets and money and saw that they got to their destinations. A negro and a young white man, who mixed in the jam as the cars were filling up, did the work.

A vast amount of valuable data has been taken from answers to the questions sent to each member of the committee.

(From a Staff Correspondent.)

OGDEN, Utah, June 15.—Special Telegram.—Vast weather, including bright sunshine and cold rain, was experienced by the Omaha boosters today during their trip to St. Anthony, Idaho, to Ogden. Our enthusiasm was not dampened and several good cities were visited, ending with a reception at the Commercial club tonight at Ogden. Leaving Idaho Falls at midnight the Omaha advertisers arrived early at St. Anthony, and visited every store, distributing advertising literature and becoming thoroughly acquainted. St. Anthony is in the midst of the mountains in a fine trout fishing country, and many pounds of mountain trout were donated to the Omahans. After a short stop was made at Rexburg, where the boosters were photographed standing on sacks of wool awaiting shipment, a six-hour run with only short stops at Idaho Falls and Pocatello was made to Logan, Utah, a city of 6,000 population, principally Mormons, the metropolis of the terrible irrigated Cache valley. Friends made yesterday by the Omahans at Pocatello and Idaho Falls were on hand at the depots today to meet the returning excursionists on their way to Ogden and wish them God speed.

Good Time at Logan.

Thorough enjoyment was had at Logan, as the trade invaders were met at the depot in the rain by a large reception committee and a brass band. From the depot the Omahans were taken in carriages for a drive on the side of the mountains overlooking the city and the entire Cache valley for many miles, over in sight of snow-covered mountains, for one of the most beautiful scenes yet had on the trip. The new massive Mormon temple and the Utah Agricultural college were visited on the return trip. At the Commercial club punch and cigars were served to the visitors who were afterward taken to the Auditorium, where the annual convention of old soldiers was in session, and an address of welcome to the boosters was delivered by Mayor E. W. Robinson.

The city council had ordered the company to construct a fence along the bank but this had not been done, and the day after the order was made Baker drove over the bank. The woman who was injured at the same time is said to have commenced her case.
