It is possible the exchange may take a holiday, as it did last year, and attend the meeting in a body. Almost all the grain men attended last year.
Mathison Stays in Jail—William Mathison, who is charged with breaking into the home of Falconer Gifford and stealing Jamin Root's $15 wedding trousers and a coat and vest, waived preliminary examination in county court Tuesday and was bound over to the district court under $500, which he was unable to furnish.
Father Williams' Arm Broken—Reverend John Williams, rector of St. Barnabas church, fell in the United States National bank building Monday afternoon, breaking his left arm above the wrist. The fall was caused by a misstep on the polished mosaic floor. Doctors Bridges and Summers made an examination and pronounced the injury not serious. Father Williams spent a painful night, but was feeling better Tuesday morning.

Bonding Elevator Inspectors—Boiler inspector Wolfe is sending out notices to all liability and casualty companies requesting them to cause their elevator inspectors to give bonds to the city, as required by boiler inspectors under the ordinance. By this method he will be able to keep a record of the men and have some control of their movements. For a time it was believed that a new ordinance would have to be passed before this could be accomplished, but an opinion from the legal department was to the effect that the boiler inspectors' ordinance already covered the point.
Troops Near Omaha—There is a less number of United States troops in the vicinity of Omaha just at this time than for several years. The departure of the Thirtieth infantry from Fort Crook leaves, including the company of the Eleventh infantry recently arriving there, but about 100 soldiers at that garrison, and Fort Omaha, though reputed to have four companies of the signal corps has in reality but 150 men at the post at this time. About twenty-five general prisoners are under guard at Fort Crook, and but two general prisoners are in confinement at Fort Omaha.
Weather for June—After all June was about an average month as far as temperature was concerned. It was not the coldest June Omaha has seen, for that was in 1876 when the mean temperature was 65, nor the warmest June, for that was in 1871, when the mean was 73. This year the mean was 68. The mean for the last thirty-seven years was 71.4. June this year had plenty of precipitation, the total being 4.69, which was a deficiency for the thirty-seven years of record of 0.38 inch. Last year it was 2.36 inches and in 1906 it was but 1.73. But clear days were very few during the month, the rest being cloudy or partly cloudy. The greatest precipitation for any twenty-four hours was June 6, when 1.15 inches of rain fell. There was no snow in June.

ROYAL TOURIST Royal Quality People of unlimited wealth who are accustomed to quality in everything do not care what a motor car costs. The price is a matter that interests them least, whether it be $4,000 or $40,000. They'll pay any price to get the kind of car they want. Intelligent people are aware that price doesn't indicate quality and that a high price doesn't mean best. So with a great many higher priced cars on the market, the aristocracy and wealth of New York, Boston, Baltimore, Washington, Philadelphia and Chicago are driving Royal Tourists. The Royal Tourist happens to possess the very characteristics which appeal to their inborn desire for quality and they'd buy it if it cost $40,000 instead of $4,000—the price it now brings. Accordingly your appearance in a Royal is infallible indication of your love of real merit—real beauty—power—speed and engineering balance. The Royal did not make the mistake of placing a good engine in a poor body or a poor engine in a good body. It made a good engine, for a good body and is, therefore, healthy organically and minutely subject to none of the mechanical ills of motordom and a delight at home and abroad, on the boulevard or across country. Royal Touring Car, $4,000. Royal Limousine—$5,000. Correspondence direct with the factory invited. A Catalogue containing blue prints and illustrations gladly mailed free. Members A. L. A. M.
