The first game was a real ball game. Not a Denverite reached second except-Babe Adams, who lined one down the left field foul line out of Autrey's reach. But be never got any farther. Thompson was pitching the game of his life and made the Denver bunch look completey outclassed. The game was won by Omaha right at the start. Franck singled to right field and Autrey singled to left and Franck scored on Kinneally's three-base throw of Welch's grounder.

Two more runs made in the second inning on three hits and LeBrand's stolen base. Graham opened the inning with a Hitsbase. Graham opened the inning with a soak to right field and LeBrand's single in the same place put him on third. LeBrand stole second and Belden brought them both home with a drive past Mr. Adams. The Grizzlies then tried to delay the game, praying for rain to stop play before the fifth inning could be finished. It was really amusing to see the way they stalled, but it did them no good, as the rain held offu ntil the fifth was played out, and then they were willing to play ball to see if they could not get back the lead which had been taken away from them. Pat Bohannon, who was doing the slabwork for the Teddy Bears, did all he could to delay the game, including the throwing of two of the balls over the grandstand, but the raingods were with Omaha and refused to loose the bolts until the game was safely stowed away and Omaha was in first place in the Western Harry Welch dropped Cassady's fly in the opening inning and White drove him home with a single. A well directed reof the ball by Autrey might have made the record of shutouts clean, but he failed to make the throw and Cassady scored. welch and Dolan both footed the fielders n the second game, Welch hitting to left and Dolan to right field. Denver would not have four players batting above the 300 mark if they were to tarry in Omaha very long.

Thompson took no chances on several throws he had to first, but carried the ball over each time to tossing distance.

Both games were played fast, as Thomp-son did not stop to fool around much, but kept shooting them over, and he had plenty It was the banner crowd of the season, every seat in the grandstand being filled, the bleachers filled and several hundred squatting on the grass.

Ragan got sore at the remarks of the players on his own bench and refused to finish out the second game as umpire. He was succeeded by Gonding. Franck's error came because he threw the ball a little high and Dolan did not light on the base until Cassady was safe. That Cassady is something of a ball player.
