BALKS ON STATUE BOARD Directors Want No Makeshift for Monument and Will View

Before Accepting. Declaring he thought the school board ought to have something to say about the proposed Lincoln statue for the high school grounds and that it ought to reject the piece of sculpture providing it proves unsatisfactory, J. C. Lindsay, member of the school board, says the statue cannot be forced upon the board, even though it is a gift from the school children if it is not an artistic work of art. "No man can force me to accept a gift of a groundhog if I do not want it," says

The Lincoln statue came in for considerable discussion by members of the board Smith, Mrs. F. J. Jurgensen, Mrs. Charles at a meeting Thursday afternoon of the members of the board, entering into the While saying he believed the board would not entertain a proposition of the kind. Mr. Rice thought the board could as wisely spend money for the purchase of a statue of the great emancipator which would be her home on West Harney street. The pro- a credit to the schools and to the city as it could for the erection of school buildings "I have not seen this statue and as far as I know it may be all right, but if reports are true, we had better not have any statue at all than to have one that will be an eyesore," said Mr. Rice.

> Mr. Kennedy also believed the board ought to view the piece of sculpture before it was erected, not to employ a commission for that purpose and, further, that he was as competent to judge the artistic features of the work as J. Laurie Wallace, artist.

At the meeting of the committee on heat and ventilation the changing of heating arrangements in all schools now heated with furnaces to heat by steam was discussed.

CONNELL STANDS BY GUNS Health Commissioner Says No Unvaccinated Child May Attend School, Epidemie or Not.

"As long as I am commissioner of health no child not vaccinated can attend the schools of Omaha at any time, whether there is an epidemic or not. The smallpox quarantine will never be raised and while there are now but a very few cases of contagious diseases in the city, still vaccina tion is as imperative as ever."

This is the ultimatum given out by Dr. R. W. Connell, health commissioner of Omaha. Several hundred children are still out of school on account of not being vaccinated.

"I am in favor of modifying the restrict tions in a measure by the council's changing of rule 31 whereby a child once vaccinated can attend school at times when there missioner. "Rule 31 provides that vaccination must be done every seven years, and I will enforce that rule. However, it could be changed to allow the attendance at school of children who had been vaccinated at least once, even though fifteen years ago. In times of an epidemic, however, a Louisville, Ky. A decoration of green and certificate must be presented showing vaccination within seven years."

Mayor Dahlman says the health commissioner has not conferred with him regarding the matter, but adds that the law is very broad in giving the commissioner almost unlimited powers.

"It would seem to me, though, says the mayor, "that when there is no epidemic children not vaccinated could, with impunity, attend the schools. This semblance of martial law, it appears to me, ought not to prevail in times of peace, in times when there is no epidemic.'

MAYOR IS NOT STAMPEDED Our Jim Thinks New Yorkers Unduly Alarmed Over Fate of Bryan.

Mayor Dahlman is in receipt of a long communication from admirers of Bryan in New York state who are making preparations to send a contesting delegation to the national democratic convention who will be friendly to Bryan, those pushing Irish program was given. The rooms were the contesting delegation preparations disclosing a huge plot in New York to defeat Bryan's nomination by the workings of the two-thirds rule. The communication was sent by Mr. Dahlman in his capacity as national committeeman. The mayor says:

"The New Yorkers are unduly alarmed. They forget that New York is not the whole nation and that even though the regulation delegation from that state is not composed of Bryan men, nothing can prevent the nomination of the Nebraakan at Denver in July."-

St. Regis, New York WORK OF THE WOMEN'S CLUBS

Mrs. C. E. Pollack of Columbus, who was A Hotel Which Offers a New New York Club Women Outline Value Phase of Living.

INCREASING POPULARITY WILL ERECT WIRTZ MONUMENT

There are numerous hotels at home and abroad where one may purchase magnificence at so much a day, where the gaping multitude and the obtrusive newly rich go to see and be seen. Hotel St. Regis, New York, belongs to an entirely different class. Within its portals, whether one engages a modest room or a suite, one is given comfort, refined surroundings and restful privacy equal or superior to that home. Comfort is the keynote of this to chairmen and club women alike:

knowledge of the facts have described this hotel as a palace for millionaires only. A brief sojourn at the St. Regis will convince you of the utter falsity of these reports and you will find there the best the world has to offer in the realm of hospitality at reasonable expense.

In its restaurant, famous as it has become, the prices, which are plainly printed on all menu cards, are the same as those of first-class hotels generally, while the room charges are equally moderate. Large, the prices where the property is the same as those of first-class hotels generally, while the room charges are equally moderate. Large, the properties of the same accomplishing.

Himself.

A peculiar pension case has recently dereloped, in which members of the Second Nebraska Volunteer cavalry were the chief figures. The parties were Peter Whitlow and his son, James P. Whitlow of Nemaha county. The elder Whitlow enlisted in the Second Nebraska cavalry at the time of its organization under the late ex-Governor R. W. Furnas in the fall of 1863. The regiment was encamped for several months at Nemaha City. Orders were finally issued for the regiment to take the field in an Indian campaign in the Dakotas early in 1864. The elder Whitlow did not care to go into the field, and so his son took his place in the company, answered to his father's name and performed all the duties of a soldier for nine months, while the regiment was in the field, and returned with it to Nebraska.

No further service being required of the regiment, the members were given leave to disperse to their homes temporarily, to be reassembled for final muster out when ordered. The orders for muster out finally came, and the elder Whitlew again reported to the regiment and was honorably mustered out with it.

Son is Turned Down.

In the course of time he applied for a pension and it was granted. Upon his death a pension was granted to his widow, and she died last summer in Auburn. Following her death James P. Whitlow, the son, who had rendered the actual service in the regiment for his father, applied for a pension, but was turned down on the ground that no such name as his was on the records of the Second Nebraska cavalry.

It was shown in the proceedings of the pension case that James P. Whitlow had actually served in the regiment, as he claimed, and a number of witnesses confirmed the fact, including his company commander. While he was known in the company to all its members as Jimmy Whitlow, yet he always answered to the name of Peter Whitlow, and was so carried on the rolls. The result was that while the fact of service was abundantly proven, yet there was no record to show the substitution of himself for his father was a technical fact, hence James P. Whitlow will get no pension, nor can he be held amenable for presenting a false claim.

PATRIOT VICTIM OF ROBBER While Serving His Country as Juror Florence Liveryman Loses

Horse and Buggy. While Frank P. Brown, a Florence liveryman, was serving his country on a jury in district court a stranger got away with a horse and buggy from his livery barn. The stranger called at the barn Tuesday and said he was representing the Farmers Co-Operative Creamery company and wanted to circulate among the farmers in the interests of his company. He hired a rig and at last reports is still circulating He was last seen going north about six miles northwest of Florence. A reward of $70 has been offered for the arrest of the man and the return of the horse and huggy. The horse was brown and the man is described as about 35 years old, 5 feet inches in height, 150 pounds in weight. Though the man talked to a half dozen people in Florence he did not mention his name to any of them.

Wirts Monument to Be Raised. The Georgia decission, Daughters of the Confederacy, has announced it will unveil its memorial monument to Wirts, keeper of AnAndersonville prison, June 3 of this year. The monument, which will stand just outside the gates of the old confederate prison, is a plain shaft, thirty-five feet high, and will cost $2.256. In her annual report, Mrs. A. B. Hull, retiring president of the Georgia division, says: And here let me place on record our deep appreciation of the "Woman's Relief Corps of the Grand Army of the Republic," whose president in almost her last act on earth saw to the removal of those unworthy and false statements on signboards and posters in the prisen park at Andersonville. With them goes one great cause for bitterness and resentment, and when our monument is raised we can say, "Well done," and pass on to other living work which is calling us from every side. Considering that this monument is to be erected in spite of the protest of the Woman's Relief corps of the Grand Army of the Republic the action of the Georgia Daughters is being watched with keen interest by women in all parts of the country. Notice has been served by the Reilef corps that if the monument is erected the signs referred to by Mrs. Hull, which were merely markers of the various places in the famous prison pen, will all be replaced and with them others giving further au-

there through the cruelty of Keeper Wirtz.
