A Philosopher at 88. Miss Fanny Crosby, who has written thousands of hymns in her long lifetime, says on her 88th birthday: "I believe that wherever I go or whatever I do, there is a power watching over me and taking care of me, and that nothing can go wrong so long as I do what I can to make the world happy." This optimistic philosophy might be considered remarkable in anyone at 88, but it is doubly so in Miss Crosby, for she has been blind almost from her birth. The sincerity of her creed is beyond question. It shows itself in her hymns, some of which are truly poetic, and all of which breathe faith and devotion. It is worth while in these days of nervous unrest to pay a passing tribute to her long career of cheerfulness and serenity.

NOVEL POINT IN THE LAW

Patron of Saloon Who Sues for Damage Alleges Keeper Was Responsible for His Safety.

In the suit for $5,000 damages filed in district court by W. A. Cox against Louis Nelson, a saloon keeper, and the Stutz Brewing company, a point new in cases of this kind is raised by the plaintiff.

Cox alleges in his petition he went into the saloon of the defendant on South Sixteenth street for refreshments. He alleges Nelson struck him and so bruised his arm that mortification set in and the member became stiff at the elbow and of no further use. He sets up under the ruling of the supreme court in the case of Clancy Theodore Ringwalt, a point new in cases of this kind is raised by the plaintiff.

Nelson was responsible for his safety in the saloon; he was a guest at the saloon and therefore entitled to hospitable treatment and the saloonman was responsible for any injury that might come to him.

In the case of Clancy against Barker, Clancy, a boy, was shot accidentally by a boy employed as a bellhop at the Barker hotel. Suit was brought for damages, and the supreme court held Clancy was entitled to recover, as the hotel man was responsible for the safety of his guests.

Miss Louise McPherson, daughter of Thomas E. McPherson, the live stock commission man, and Miss Marie McShane, daughter of Felix J. McShane, are the two Omaha young women to whom The Bee referred recently as planning a tour of the world in pursuit of the American fleet.

The two young women are neighbors, residing at 704 and 706 Park avenue, respectively, and are intimate friends. They are making detailed arrangements for a gay voyage, though Miss McPherson says: "We are not positive as yet that our good Uncle Sam will permit it, though we feel all but certain. I know a report is out that the government has given its permission, but we have not yet received such notice."

A copy of the decision has just been received by United States Attorney Goss, from the clerk of the United States supreme court.

Hallowell was convicted by a jury in the United States district court in Omaha of taking liquor onto the reservation. The case was at once appealed to the circuit court of appeals and was argued at the Denver sitting of that court in September 1906. The defense which was conducted by Thomas L. Sloan, himself a member of the Omaha tribe of Indians and he held that the Indians being citizens, of legal holders and otherwise accorded the full rights of citizenship, were amenable only to the state laws, could no longer be held as wards of the government and were entitled to exercise all the rights of citizenship as accorded to other citizens of the state of Nebraska.

Until the matter is definitely decided by one of the courts it is not probable that any of the cases now on the federal docket pertaining to the introduction of liquor onto Indian reservations will be tried.

THIRD CRACKER PLANT COMES J. M. Bechtel of Davenport Looks for Location for Factory in Omaha.

Water, wafers, soda, crackers and ginger-snaps promise to be the food of the average Omahian and all will be non-trust goods. J. M. Bechtel of Davenport, Ia., is in Omaha looking over the field with the hope of securing a location for an independent cracker factory regardless of the fact that L. H. Hunt & Sons have bought a $50,000 building, in which they will open a factory within a month, and the Loane-Wiles company of Kansas City will open a wholesale house here April 15 and put a score of men in charge to sell crackers and biscuit in the Omaha territory.

Mr. Bechtel has been corresponding with Commissioner Guild for more than a year with the view of establishing a cracker factory in Omaha. He arrived Friday morning to look over the field, and as it is the opinion of expert cracker manufacturers that Omaha is an ideal distributing point, Mr. Bechtel has decided to locate a factory or at least establish a large sales agency carrying from $15,000 to $20,000 stock and employing from five to ten salesmen.

Among others who have been looking at the field, "Roxey" Johnson of Sioux City, formerly with the National Biscuit company, and a large cracker factory in Seattle, has visited Commissioner Guild and looked over the situation. Mr. Johnson recently organized the Johnson Biscuit company at Sioux City and his salesmen cover five or six states.
