Nebraska Man Who Disappeared

Twenty Years Ago Rejoins Wife. PEORIA, Ill., April 4.—The latest Enoch Arden case turned up in the circuit court here today, when the New York Mutual Life Insurance company produced in court James Ellison, who has been dead to his wife for ten years. The widow was suing for the amount of the policy, and on seeing the profile of her former husband and hearing his voice, the woman recognized her husband and the case was dismissed. Twenty years ago James Ellison and his wife were living at Curtis, Neb. Shortly thereafter, he left the country under a cloud, and his wife, who had a fitting tribute and testimonial to the founders of their business enterprise and reliability. It has ever been the policy of this company to have only the very best men in each and every department, and so trained, experienced and ever ready employees is the result. In November, 1866, this company succeeded to the business of Green, Mills & Co., and two months later followed the merger of the American Commission company at South Omaha. By strict attention to the requirements of its many customers, their advance has been of the steady and substantial kind that has made it a success. The personnel of the South Omaha "boy" is a satisfactory proof of the foregoing. Cattle—What salesman is better known than E. W. Cahow, whose first name is Ed. His record as a steer salesman is one of which any one might be proud. Ability, tenacity and a keen eye for a customer are his legions. T. A. Thilman, better known as Theo., sells the cows. From South Omaha to the Big Horn basin, Wyoming, his name is upon the lips of many when cars are ordered for loading. These two, with the able assistance of Dell Johnson, compose a trio in the cattle yards that render the service and are second to none. The feeder buying department of this company is one which deserves special attention. C. E. Rogers, who has been among cattle ever since he could walk, is in charge, and the time is yet to come for the first order of some of the best of feeders is exacting in the highest degree and requires a keen knowledge acquired only by years of experience. Mr. Rogers is known to possess every requisite for giving the very best service and satisfaction. Hogs—In the hog department we find this progressive company maintaining two divisions, having a different salesman for each, the only firm at the yards employing this up-to-date method. Of C. S. (Carl) Hibbard and R. C. (Bob) Martin, the salesman, too much cannot be said, as they are known throughout the hog producing district, and the fact that their company for a long time past has handled more hogs than any other, attests to the efficiency of the "National" system and its salesmanship. Their right hand "borders" are Frank Mitchell and William Leil, upon whom much depends in feeding, filling and weighing. Sheep—G. J. Kye, better known as "Kid" Kye, linked his fortune with the "Na-

A REPUTABLE COMMISSION CO. Something About the Personnel of a Live Wire Concern of South Omaha. A history or mention of South Omaha, Neb., its various enterprises, would not be complete without notice of the National Live Stock Commission company. This company, whose card appears upon another page, while young at South Omaha, is old at the other markets and the "leader" in the business of live stock in Chicago in January, 1888, by Thomas Kelly, later joined by his brother, Charles Kelly, the business has grown step by step, day by day, year by year, until today their business at the six leading markets amounts to over $50,000,000 per annum, and during its existence of twenty-five years $90,000,000, a fitting tribute and testimonial to the founders of their business enterprise and reliability. It has ever been the policy of this company to have only the very best men in each and every department, and so trained, experienced and ever ready employees is the result.
