Many hours after they struck trains bear ing nearly 300 injured came crawling cautiously out of the torpade districts, leaving them one town-Purvis; Miss -- ntterly demolished, five others practically blown away and fifteen little villages in more or less acute stages of ruin. With these wounded came the details of one of the worst, wind disasters in the history of the

First of all it became known that negroes comprised most of the dead, that the picturesque darky cabins, noted for their flimey, happy-go-tucky construction, had hean converted by the wind into wholesale deathtraps. It was in the fall of these cabins, which went down almost without warning, that most of the negro deaths occurred. These always overcrowded cabins also furnished most of the badly wounded. The identified white dead early today numbered forty-two. In addition it was reported that four whites had been killed at McCallum, Miss., which would bring the White death list up to forty-six. The number of negroes killed was between 150 and

One child is said to have been kneeling to prayer, her uncle bending over her in an attempt to shield here, but despite his care, a timber, which did not touch him, killed the little girl. Scarcely one brick of the school house was left on the other.

School had been dismissed only a minute before the tornado struck. In a field near the town, a farmer who was plowing saw the storm approach and managed to get the members of his family outdoors and behind stumps before the wind came. house was blown away, but none of the farmer's family was injured. One of the children killed is said to have been lifted high in the air and while still well above the ground to have been struck by a heav; flying timber which caused its death.

When the storm was over, a special train bearing twelve physicians and fifteen other persons went to Pervis. Meanwhile a sec and relief train started for Lumberton.

One train was stopped by a woman waying a red cloth and when the engineer ran ahead to see what she wanted, the woman fainted and the engineer found that the red color of the cloth was caused by blood. A search revealed her home near the railroad and three members of her family were found dead and four injured. A man who drove into Purvis last night reported that he saw the bodies of several dead, whom he took to be negroes, lying beside the road. At nightfall, what was left of the town was put under martial law, a militia company preserving order.

FORT OMAHA APPROPRIATION

OTHER ARMY POST BETTERMENTS

Postoffice at Gilmore to Be Discontinued Because No One Can Be Found Who is Willing to Take the Job.

(From a Staff Correspondent.) WASHINGTON, April 25 .- (Special Tele gram.)—The house committee on appropriations today reported the aundry civil appropriation bill, the last of the big money bills. In it is found an emphasis that Old Fort Omaha is to be the permanent headquarters of the signal corps of the army. The bill carries an appropriation of $30,000 for the construction of a general storehouse for the signal service.

The War department in its estimate desired an appropriation of $140,000 for the purchase of land for a rifle range at Fort Robinson. The committee, however, did not pass this recommendation, but its friends have good reason to hope this item will be cared for when the bill reaches the

At Fort Yellowstone, Wyo., $47,000 is appropriated for the construction of one double barrack.

The city of Grand Island, Neb., receives $65,000 for continuing the construction of the public building now being erected there. A provision of $50,600 is provided for the purchase of 229 acres of land adjoining Fort Des Moines, Ia., required for drill ground for the garrison.

In the matter of public buildings for Iowa cities, Muscatine is to have $15,000, and Webster City, $10,000, to complete the postoffices at these points now under construc-

There is to be appropriated $2,700 for repairs to roads, bridges, buildings and further exploration of Wind Cave National park in South Dakota during the ensuing fiscal year.

Nebraska Woman Comes First. Senator Burkett is claiming for one his constituents the honor of having been the first widow to realize the benefit of the act of April 19, which increases the pensions of all widows now on the roll at $8, to $17 per month. This fortunate widow is Mrs. Sarah E. Hartley of Bennett, Neb.

Federal Job with No Takers. Senator Brown has been informed that the postoffice at Gilmore, Sarpy county, will be discontinued May 31 and the patrons served from the South Omaha office. The reason given by the department for this change is that the post master at Gilmore has resigned and there is no candidate for the place. For several weeks Senator Brown has been endeavoring to find a resident of Gilmore who would be willing to become postmaster, but his efforts have met with fallure. The residents claim the revenue of The office has failen away because of several rural routes from Fort Crook and the pay is not enough to warrant accepting the responsibility of the office.

by him "The Child's Hospital and Home, speaker over the situation, while other It was a beautiful and impressive service arranged especially for the occasion. A large number of friends were present. Short addresses were made by Rev. A. F. Sherrell and Judge J. W. Savage, and the singing was led by Miss Pennell, whom we all remember as one of the sweetest of Trinity's bygone choirsters. The bishop was happy in the fullfillment of another of his cherished projects. His people and friends rejoiced with him and altogether it was an occasion long to be remembered. "The cathedral and hospital were consecrated within one month of each other, and they stand together as grand memorials of Bishop Clarkson and hi swork. "It was the bishop's first intention that he hospital should be devoted exclusively to the care of children, but in a short time the constitution was so amended as to permit the admission of adults, and the first yearly report ending March 1, 1884. gave the number of children treated as 132, and adults thirty-sight. "Upon the completion of the hospital building the whole property was transferred to the cathedral chapter of the diocese, which assumed its nominal control. After Bishop Clarkson's death in March 1884, Mrs. Clarkson was made its life manager, and its present position and success is largely due to her absolute devotion to its work and interests. It was then re-named The Bishop Ciarkson Memorial Hospital for Children,' and in May, 1892, was incorporated under that name when it passed inder the control of a board of trustees onsisting of Right Rev. George Worthngton, Hen. J. M. Woolworth, Mr. Herman Kountze, Mr. F. H. Davis, Mrs. R. H. Clarkson and Mrs. A. J. Poppleton. John E. Summers, ir., was for a number of years the chief surgeon and head of its medical staff. His work in connection with high reputation of the hospital as a training school for nurses.

Change in Its Name. "In 1890 the full lot adjoining the hospital on the east was purchased, and the small ottage on it was renovated and furnished or the use of the nurses. It was the inention at that time to erect a large addition to the old hospital building, but that plan was afterward abandoned and the offorts of the board were turned toward spot on which we stand was selected from many others which were considered, and ir hundreds of farmers into direct communishort sketch than by quoting from Bishop Clarkson's own story of the very beginning of the house decided to hold up the bill as a of his hospital, which he teld us on the night of its consecration. It is more touchhouse until they show a willingness to pass ing when we remember how barely he was granted his heart's desire. He said:

granted his heart's desire. He said:

"In 1868, shortly after I came to Omaha to live, I was in New York attending the general convention of the church and Dr. Muhlenberg, the founder of St. Luke's hospital in that city, asked me to make an address on its anniversary. I had sften visited the hospital and had been especially touched by the lovely and well ordered children's ward in that great institution and had made up my mind that if God spared my life I would certainly do what I could to found a childe' hospital in Omaha. Accordingly, in my address to the large crowd of people that filled the chapel of the hospital I said that I desired very much to see such an institution in the city of my home before my episcopate had ended, and, that if I sould get a nest egg for the fund it was sure to grow. A dear little child who was present and heard me say this returned to her home and opened her mite chest, where her little savings had been accumulating, and gave the contents, about $5, to me with the request that I would make this the nest egg for the childs' hospital fund, and I did so. That little child who has grown to be a woman. who has grown to be a woman. is present at this dedication of the hospital, which has been erected with the fund that has gathered around her little nest egg. I pray the Lord may fill us with the spirit of charity and unselfishness and to make us all willing to do what we can in this life for the relief an happiness of others."

Twenty-Five Years After, "Today, twenty-five years later, we have assembled ourselves together for another service of thanksgiving to Him who has furthered us in all our doings with His continual help and to implore His blessing upon our work of erecting this new and larger hospital.

"We are saddened at this time by absence of those faithful members of the board of trustees who have passed away before the accomplishment of the object for which they so steadfastly worked. They were associated with us for many years in the business management of the hospital and we remember them with gratitude and affection. It was the earnest wish of Bishop Worthington to celebrate with us the layng of this corner stone, but Providence ordered it otherwise. We miss his genial presence here and his helpful words, but we cannot but feel that the blessing which he so often invoked upon this work resta apon it and will remain with it.

"This, above all other occasions brings to our minds and hearts the loving remembrance of Bishop and Mrs. Clarkson. They were the true founders of this hospital. They began the work in faith and continued in the spirit of charity and unselfishness to the day of their deaths. The power of their influence and their example has kept it up and carried it on through years of patient waiting, until at last we oan see the bright dawn of success lighting up the way to the fulfillment of all their hopes and plans, and the Lord being our helper, we will build here a memorial hospital worthy of their love and benediction, which shall be called by their name." Address by Bishop Williams.

A byntn followed, after which Bishop Williams delivered a brief and impressive address in which he characterized this as an epoch-making day. "We propose to finish this work in memory of its founder," said Bishop Williams. "You may ask why is it that we propose to expend here $150,000 in building and furnishing this structure? It is because Jesus Christ still works, ministering to and healing the sick of body and soul, through the agency of physicians, nurses and mencine and for the forgivness of our sins. It is because he wishes us to bring back to men health, wholeness and holiness. Let us write here the loving history of our deeds. The good women of this diocese have pledged themselves to raise $20,000 additions to the furnishing of this hospital. It may be pleasing to you to know that Bishop Worthington had endowed a room in this hospital in loving memory of his sister, and that Mrs. Worthington has donated it sum sufficient to build a chapel in thi hospital that shall be known as the Bishop Worthington chapel."

The buildings under construction now are be administration building and a part of it is widely known and to him is due the the ward buildings that will radiate from the former. The main structure will be 120 xio feet, five stories in height and is built of a light gray pressed brick with stone facings and copings. The structure will be strictly fireproof and will be ready for ocupancy about January 1, 1909.
