The Newest in Millinery

There is so much real elegance about our Mid-Summer Millinery, the styles are really fascinating. There are so many different shapes and color effects. Come in at your leisure and see how truly artistic and how different from the hats shown elsewhere, and yet our's are lower in price. That's how we serve you; millinery of elegance without extravagance. In order to obtain these strictly exclusive styles, we send our millinery buyer, Miss Alice Fenner, to the famous French Fashion Artists in Paris, where she makes personal selections for the Thompson, Belden & Co. millinery store. This means style and individuality in millinery that is not obtainable in any other Omaha store. The Mid-Summer display welcomes your viewing and choosing.

Yesterday's developments, outside the discovery of one more body on the farm, centered mainly about Lamphere's possible connection with the deaths. Many more witnesses were interviewed by the prosecuting officers and at least two were subpoensed formally. This brings the present list of witnesses to twenty-one.

Most important of the evidence secured vesterday was the trunk which Lamphere left on the farm of John Wheatbrook where he was employed since February last. Mr. Emil Paim, a meat dealer of this city, says that for a long time Mrs. Guin ness was a customer of his, doing considerable business. Occasionally she was accompanied by a young man, whom, he claims, answered very closely the description of young Canary. After some time he noted that Mrs. Guinness came alone to his shop and he inquired for the young man. She adroitly changed the conversa tion by commenting upon the excellence of some hams which were hanging on a meat rack near her. Mr. Palm states that Mrs. Guinness then withdrew her patronage and did not again enter his place.

Mrs. William Deissler, a neighbor, who seemed to be on friendly terms with Mrs. Guinness, says that while making a call upon Mrs. Guinness one evening she heard baby crying in an upper room. Asked regarding the child, Mrs. Guinness evaded the question and turned the conversation into other channels. Mrs. Deissler says that upon subsequent visits to the Guinness place she never saw or heard the infant that Mrs. Guinness had tried to lure two young men into her net of death. In a statement today Melvin Kenega says that he was accosted by a strange woman from La Porte last August while on a railroad train. The woman asked him to go to her home with her. Kenega says that he did not think much about it until recently when reading about the Guinness woman. The Biggest Saloon Keeper.

The biggest saloon keeper.

The biggest saloon keeper and liquor desler in the world is the czar of the Russias. He is proprietor of all the saloons in his vast domain, and thus owns the biggest trust on earth, with competition totally barred and with profits increasing enormously every year. The Great White Czar's government encouraged drink to such a degree last year that the income derived from the sale of vodka exceeded $250,000,000. Every year the Russian peasants and workmen are said to get drufker, dirtier, more miserable and more bruish. The imperial grogshops are small and unclean, with a counter at one end and rows of bottles of various sizes all around the walls from floor to ceiling. The people are not allowed to drink on the premises, so they go to the doorstep, break off the necks of their bettle and after swallowing its not allowed to drink on the premises, so they go to the doorstep, break off the neck of their bettle, and, after awallowing its contents, fing it into the street.
