Facts About Our Trees

All our standing timber is estimated to be somewhere between fourteen hundred and two thousand billion feet. If we use 40,000,000,000 per annum we can run thirty-five to fifty years at the present rate, provided we do not have any waste. If we use 100,000,000,000 per annum our timber will last fourteen to twenty years on the same basis. If we use 150,000,000,000 per annum in nine to thirteen years our timber will all be gone! We have now about 165,000,000,000 in our national reserves. If we had three times that much we should not have it if it costs twenty acres a Sunday, or forty acres a week, or 2,000 acres a year to print one daily newspaper, what does it cost in acreage to print all the newspapers in all the cities and towns of America? Add to this the enormous editions of our magazines. Add to this the paper used in books. The total staggers the imagination, and yet the amount of timber cut for pulp in the United States annually is less than 1 per cent of what is cut for lumber. Last year we made more than 215,000,000,000 lead pencils. A lead pencil is not very large, but the total number of lead pencils required 7,300,000 cubic feet of cedar. We have cedar enough to last us just twelve years.

More than 100,000 acres of timber, in the whole United States, are cut over every working day. We use many times more timber per capita than any other nation. We have left not over 400,000,000 acres bearing commercial timber. Cut up in your mind some of the small demands of industry upon this supply. Our railroads are said to use one-third of the industrial timber cut for fire. Suppose we could cut 100 times to the acre; we should require 1,000,000 acres a year for fire. We annually reap for telegraph and telephone poles somewhere between 2,000,000 and 4,000,000 acres of land. Our tanneries two years ago required 1,500,000 cords of bark. In the same year we cut 11,683,390 shingles and 2,812,907 laths. Then we had to timber our mines, and for that we used 156,000,000 cubic feet, not board measure, much of which was the best of hardwood—Emerson Hough in Everybody's Magazine.

Try HAYDEN'S First

that they are sure the total attendance will be 30,000,000, which, of course, would break the Chicago record of 25,000,000. The glory of the entire cordial is never to be forgotten and the distinguished French visitors are to be treated with the greatest consideration and hospitality, while special trips will be arranged for trades people from France who wish to see the evidence of the French-British alliance. Some 400 school children are to come to England as guests of the nation.

The exhibitors and, indeed, the exhibits, are not yet actually on the grounds, but no doubt there will be a brave show on the opening day. No one ever expects world fairs to be really ready till almost the time for them to close, so all due allowance will be made for this one's deficiencies in that respect. And anyway Americans arriving early in July will surely find at Shepherd's Bush a display of the resources of twentieth century civilization such as not even the most pretentious of nineteenth century world's fairs was able to rival.

J. Pierpoint Morgan, Poet
 Certainly it seems that the old saying is true that the prophet is not without honor save in his own country. It has been discovered in London that the renowned citizen of whom the United States is so proud—John Pierpoint Morgan—is, in addition to his other claims to greatness, a poet of first rank. A popular London weekly—M. A. P.—devoted some space to Mr. Morgan's trans-

Fast for Sixty-Two Days

For a period of sixty-two days Mrs. Charles Osborne of 1512 Hoytston Avenue, Seattle, has not tasted food in any form.

She declares that she feels but little effects of her long fast, and is confident that she will be able to continue to abstain from all nourishment for at least seventy-five days if necessary.

Mrs. Osborne admits she is not fasting because she enjoys it, or to break any records in the non-eating line, but she says she believes such a course is going to cure her of an ailment that for years has baffled physicians throughout the country.

Recent stories of a man in St. Paul dying after a fast of thirty-one days, and of a man in Los Angeles eating after he had not tasted food for forty-three days because he became frightened, have no terrors for Mrs. Osborne, and after reading the accounts of the latter she laughed.

"I'm in this fast to kill or cure," she said, "and I'm not going to quit till my doctor says so. I could do justice to a big juicy steak with French fried potatoes right now, but I can stick it out a little longer, as the pangs of hunger are not bothering me to any great extent."

Mrs. Osborne weighed 122 pounds when she began her fast and now she weighs 148. Mrs. Osborne is a patient of Dr. Linda Burfield Hazard.

"I have been under Dr. Hazard's care for three months," said Mrs. Osborne. "For three weeks I was placed on a special diet and gradually my food allowance was cut down. Sixty-one days ago I quit eating entirely, and water, all I want to drink, is the only substance that has passed my lips since."

"It was quite an effort to go without food at first. I missed coffee at breakfast. I have always been a hearty meat eater and for a few days I did not think I could stand it, but I conquered myself and by the end of the first four weeks I felt better than I had since I was a girl."

"An beginning to feel the effects of the long fast now, however, in that I get tired more easily than I did at first, but I continue to perform my own household duties, and after preparing my husband's breakfast this morning I swept the floor."

"Dr. Hazard tells me that I am about normal weight now and as soon as he gets me a few pounds below he will begin a dieting course to build me up with good, food stuffs."

"I don't know just how long I shall keep Mrs. Osborne on the present treatment," said Dr. Hazard. "I will break her fast just the minute I think the process of elimination of impurities has been accomplished. It may be tomorrow and it may be a week or two longer."

"A great deal depends on the patient, the temperament and will power. It is no easy matter to go so long without food, although I maintain, and point to scores of patients to prove my words, that there is no danger in fasting."—Seattle Times.
